FLYING TO ROOSEVELT

Movement at Hand for Special Session of Congress for Passing Controlling Laws.

Washington, Nov. 2.—It was learned today from undoubted sources that President Roosevelt is now being urged to call an extra session of congress to deal with the financial situation. The request comes from and represents the judgment of conservative leaders in the financial world who have represented that the present situation is one compelling action of a character that will eradicate all grounds for suspicion of American industrial methods. The president has been assured from most reliable sources that there will be no opposition on the part of the great industries of the country to the enactment of necessary laws to carry out his ideas of federal control to the extent to which he has expounded them in his recent public utterances. These assurances are made at this time to avoid what has been represented as the most dangerous situation which has confronted the country during its extended history period, that is, a seeming growing lack of confidence based on known irregularities in soundness of methods in some quarters and no sure and speedy means of separating the good from the unsound. To this end it is suggested that the president set congress to the task first, of making such amendments to the financial laws as will result in a minimum of flexibility with a minimum of basis of change in our present system. Next, and perhaps of the most importance, is that the president embody his suggestions in succinct recommendations for enactment into laws. In this connection, attention has been directed to what he said at Provincetown, Mass., August 20, last, in which he advocated national incorporation law for corporations engaging in interstate business. "Almost every big business concern," said the president, "is engaging in interstate commerce and such concerns must not be allowed by dexterous shifting of position as has been too often the case in the past, to escape thereby all responsibility either to the state or to the nation." To meet his views the president has suggested amendments to the Sherman anti-trust law and adoption of a criminal clause to that and the interstate commerce regulations. That the president has given the request for an extra session careful consideration is indicated by those who have been asked to lend their advice in the matter.

TO THE WOMEN.

The Times wishes to publish every society item that occurs in Marshfield and North Bend, but it is simply impossible for a newspaper to gather such matter unless the public lends its aid. It is taken by the editor of the Times that such a department is a part of newspaper work, and that the people, particularly the women, are interested in it. This department will be made a feature of the Sunday issue if we can secure the co-operation of those who entertain. There need be no feeling of modest about informing the Times of these matters, for we wish them and must depend upon those who entertain to aid us to a great extent. Miss Edna Welder will have charge of this department and news of this nature should be given to her. The office may be telephoned, or items may be sent in enclosures to the "Society Editor," and they will be gladly accepted.

Grand Prize Mask Ball.

—The arrangements for the Red Men's annual grand prize ball on the evening of November 30th are fast nearing completion. The order expects to have a prize list which will foot up $500 and the event is looked forward to as one of the best parties of the season. No pains are being spared this year in planning to make the ball the best ever given by the Red Men.
