Senator Fulton on Financial Situation

The worst of our financial troubles are over, said Senator Fulton, in his room yesterday.

"Not only locally is this a fact, but all the business world in the Northwest has been open to us to build up our trade.

"Our banks will open on Monday, but we will not have to wait long for the private banks and the government banks to open.

"The new system is working well and the government banks will open on Monday.

"If the private banks do not open until Monday, we are all prepared to take their place.

"This is a very promising time for the Hawaiian people.

"We are now making a good start and the future looks very bright."
