EMPIRE

Considerable agitation has been indulged in certain quarters with regard to the name which the consolidated city on Coos Bay should bear. The general opinion was supposed to be favorable to the name Coosbay or Coos Bay. It seems, however, that a large number of citizens would prefer another name. They say the bay is composed of water and is an arm of the sea, but that the city is not water and is not an arm of the sea but rather a municipality on that arm. How absurd therefore, it is to call the city a bay. But then the question comes up what shall be the name of the great seaport which is to be? The name should be euphonious, suggestive, inspiring and easily remembered. It should also be unusual. Coos without the bay has been suggested, but few seem to take very kindly to that.

A large number of the older residents of Marshfield and North Bend have at one time or another lived in Empire, well known to fame as Empire City. They like the name and it is quite often asserted on the street and in public places that the name of the new city should be Empire. The name is really quite as well known in the East as Coos Bay. They say that the city should be Empire and the bay Coos Bay. Empire on Coos Bay is a very sounding name. It would be known everywhere as the Imperial City. It is not the purpose of the Times to advocate either one of these names or the other, but it would like to know whether the citizens of the peninsula which Coos Bay enfolds in its watery arms prefer to have this city called Coos Bay or Empire or any other name. It will therefore arrange to take a vote of all who may be interested in the question as to what name the voter prefers. In Sunday's issue will appear a ballot in which will appear the name Coos Bay, Coos, Coosbay and Empire and a blank left for the voter to write in a name. He will cut out the ballot and put a cross against the name which he prefers, and then mail the same to the Coos Bay Times. It is not merely a matter of interest to citizens of the proposed city, but also of the whole district and of all who read the Times. This proposal is to be made in this manner for the purpose of ascertaining the sentiments of the people and the votes will be received at the Times office during the week and the result will be determined by count each day, and the final result announced Sunday, November twenty-fourth.

THE DUSKY HINDU

Coos Bay will have a taste of Asiatic interest. It has been stated that a large number of Hindus will arrive on the Breakwater and that they have been sent here by employment agencies in the large cities with the purpose of passing them along the line and getting rid of them. The situation is not one for the display of any violent hostility against these unfortunate people. They have come to this country from a land of famine and a condition of despair, in the hope that they may better their condition. Whoever sent them has done them no service. This is not the place for them. In their own country they worked for a pittance if they could find work. There they lived on extremely frugal fare. It did not cost them more than what an American would regard as a trifle to keep soul and body together. They have seen starvation prevalent all around them. In this country the American laborer feels that the Hindu, personally harmless and asking for very little, is a menace. But the Hindu, if he is a menace, does not mean to be.

There is nothing on Coos Bay for these poor, isolated refugees from desolation and famine. There is no need to feel or express any passion against them. They will go away again and their unhappy lives will continue to be unhappy. The Hindu is not himself a menace. The corrupt, selfish, greedy interests which have been guilty of bringing them to this country and which are ready to undermine American labor or destroy American industry are the laboring men's enemies. The Hindus are victims. Violence against them is cowardly and uncalled for, and it is gratifying to feel that the unions and workmen generally realize that skilled labor is in no danger, and that the Hindu cannot compete with any form of labor which is now active on Coos Bay.

THE BANKS

The people of Marshfield were not disturbed at the announcement that the banks had decided not to permit withdrawals by depositors to any larger amount than $25 per week during the "holidays." They understand that it was merely a move to prevent money from being taken away from this locality and shipped east. Most of the more intelligent ones recognized this as a measure of cooperative protection and expressed full approval of the action of the banks. The present financial situation is regarded as the most unusual, extraordinary and inexplicable in history. It is believed to be unjustifiable and traceable to the arbitrary action of New York financiers who have expressed their dislike of President Roosevelt and have not hesitated to lay the whole responsibility at his door. Yet everybody knows that Mr. Roosevelt's expressions and acts have been directed against "successful dishonesty." It seems that successful dishonesty is getting back at President Roosevelt.

Yet notwithstanding the facts that banks have concluded not to allow withdrawals of cash in greater sums than $25 per week the financial situation is improving throughout the east. The large receipts of gold from Europe in New York City have restored confidence in a large measure and the stock markets show an upward tendency. All that is necessary is to be patient and in a few days the situation will have cleared and business will have resumed its normal condition.

TAINTED COIN LOOKS GOOD TO POCATELLO

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 13.—The city of Pocatello is torn asunder by bitter strife on the saloon question. Some time ago the county attorney of Bannock County ordered the sheriff to close the red light district, and the order was complied with. This action deprived the city government of its principal source of income, licensing of these resorts having been in vogue there for many years.

In order to retaliate on the county an ordinance has now been introduced in the city council prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor in Pocatello and the ordinance has passed its first reading. If passed this ordinance will deprive the county of its chief income. Efforts to compromise have been unavailing, and members of the council assert the ordinance will be passed this week. The county attorney says he will remain firm, and that the red light district has gone for good.
