Need No More Men at Panama.
Washington, Nov. 27.—According to a message received from Chief Engineer Goethels, of the Panama commission today, there is no room for additional laborers on the Isthmus. He states the unemployed men without funds are sources of embarrassment. Because of the recent curtailment of industries in this country applications for work on the Isthmus are being received at the rate of several hundred per day.

—The Palace will serve turkey dinner both morning and evening.

—When you want Reliable Hardware of Standard Brands go to Milner's.

Prizes on Exhibition.
The prizes for the Redmen masquerade dance to be held in the Odd Fellows' hall on Saturday evening, are on exhibition at Magnes & Matson's store. There is a grand array of fine things to be given away to those who participate in the dance that evening. The display attracted a great deal of attention yesterday and decided many dancers on attending and striving for the prizes.

Stopped Over at Banquet.
New York, Nov. 27.—Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, today declared James J. Hagan had no authority to pledge Tammany's support to Bryan for the democratic presidential nomination, at Washington last night. He added: "Hagan spoke for Hagan, not for Tammany Hall," and said if Bryan was the democratic nominee, Tammany would support him, but it is not pledging support to any candidate at the present time.

—According to the Campaigner's statement, it cost $14,460 to run the city for 1906 and seven months in 1907. How much were the running expenses for the previous 21 months?

Fleet Will Be Ready.
Washington, Nov. 27.—Naval officials state that there is not the slightest doubt that the battleship fleet will be ready to start December 16. The amount of work to be done on the big ships was probably over-estimated and it is said two days each on dry dock is all that will be required by three of the battleships. All that work can be done in a week.

—Everybody has something to be thankful for! Little Johnny is thankful that McArthur's Pharmacy makes his Castor oil tasteless.

—From whose books did the Campaigner get the financial report?

This is a big country, and the author who writes a good play never gets through taking royalties, it would seem. After it has its run in the big towns it "tours the provinces," and sometimes half a dozen different companies are giving the same show nightly in different states and all of them paying a liberal rakeoff to the lucky playwright.

The "Wizard of Wall Street" company has two shows on the road, one in Iowa and one in Missouri—Lew Virden is giving the same piece in Texas and "The Musical Wizard of Wall Street" is hitting the high spots throughout the Missouri valley.

"Buster Brown" and his dog Tige are playing simultaneous eastern, western, and central dates. "Under Southern Skies" also is being played by three travelling companies. There are three "Tom" shows of consequence on the road, all of them north of the Mason and Dixon line—not to mention the repertory companies that include "Uncle Tom's Cabin" as one of their best attractions. Even now if a man had royalty rights in "Uncle Tom" he would not need to work.

William A. Brady's "Man of the Hour," aside from the indefinite run in New York, is being played in Texas and Indiana at the same time. "The Missouri Girl" is being seen both east and west, as are also "At Cripple Creek," "At Yale," and an "Aristocratic Tramp."

At present there are two "College Widow" shows in the country, while "Artie" and "Chairman" are all being played nightly to the enrichment of George Ade.

Death by Strangulation.
The form was laid at the feet of the chief and his nephew, Jose, and while the Indian braves held her, these two strangled her to death with a hempen cord. Two days of wild orgy were necessary to complete the ceremony.

It is claimed among the Creeks that the culprits should no more be held responsible than a Government hangman who hangs a condemned man. The Indians believe the devil possesses himself of the bodies of people in exactly the same way as was done in the days when Jesus walked on the shores of Lake Galilee and drove the devil into the herd of swine of Gennesaret and thence into the lake. When an Indian becomes feverish he is watched carefully, it being believed the devil is trying to possess him.

If delirium comes, the devil wins, and it is believed that if the victim lives he becomes a raving maniac and a ferocious cannibal. Hence the prompt execution for the safety of this savage society and to relieve the victim of further sufferings and agony.

The Indians are helpless in case of sickness, and murder is the most efficacious treatment they know. They say: "Do we not put our horses and dogs out of their misery? Why not our friends and relatives in the same way?"
