—G. E. Mickey has just received another big shipment of goods, including principally, dressers, chiffoniers, stands, folding beds, dining tables, kitchen safes and stoves, with many other pieces of new and novel articles. He finds his present location too small to handle the trade during the holidays, and has rented the old City Market building for a short time, where he will show some of the heavier pieces. We beg the indulgence of our customers, in this somewhat inconvenient plan, for a short time, when we will try to arrange to serve them more to their satisfaction as well as ours.
