> Bank business yesterday differed in-no way from that of any day during the past two weeks and it may confidently be stated that normal conditions have reached this point along with the same state of affairs in all parts of the country. Bank men in the city are enthusiastic over the way in which Marshfield has carried herself throughout and the following are some of the statements made:

J. W. BENNETT, of the Flanagan and Bennett bank:-"We would hardly have known the holidays were off if someone had not mentioned the fact as they have been practically off the last ten days. The correspondents in Portland and San Francisco of the banks here shipped all the money which was ordered and were ready to ship more, therefore there was no necessity of taking advantage of the holidays after that condition of affairs arose, and the banks throughout the state were all being supplied also, therefore there would be no fear of the money in the county being taken somewhere else.
