ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO COOS BAY DAILY TIMES Marshfield Oregon

HARMONY ON COOS BAY.

In another column of this evening's paper The Times publishes an interview with Peter Loggie, in which that enterprising and progressive business man presents to the world few choice bouquets plucked from the blossoms of the manufacturing plants of North Bend and formed into flowers of speech. There is one discordant note in Mr. Loggie's song, or to preserve the simile—a rag weed in the bouquet. Mr. Loggie is a bit caustic in his criticism of the apathy of the North Bend Chamber of Commerce. The Times cannot agree with him in his conclusions and thinks it only fair to say so frankly. Mr. Loggie was one of the first gentlemen the writer met on his arrival on Coos Bay and was impressed with him as a type of city builder that helps to make for progress. That estimate still stands. Energetic, broad-gauged, big brained and brimming over with energy, Mr. Loggie is the type of men who do things. He is a human dynamo of energy and an encyclopedia of information when it comes to expounding the greatness of the resources and the boundless possibilities of the prospects of Coos Bay. We think we can understand that such a personality, vibrating with a desire for achievement and prompt realization of the promise of the future greatness of this harbor becomes impatient at times with what seems slow progress. It is natural that he wishes to see things moving at all times with dash and spirit. This is well. It is also good that he seeks as many avenues as possible for the outlet of energy that will promote the welfare of North Bend and Coos Bay. The Times thinks, however, that one of the chief requisites in the development and progress of the Coos Bay country is the harmonizing of all the elements that are laboring for a common goal. The Chamber of Commerce may not be as full of ginger as Mr. Loggie thinks it should, but it is nevertheless a splendid feature of the commercial life and work of North Bend and Coos Bay. If something more progressive along strictly commercial lines is desired it is excellent to have it, but let it be approached in a spirit of harmony and feeling that all are laboring to the same end.

No sooner does the average man buy a home or a piece of property than he sets about improving it and making it what he wishes it to be. There are some things about it that he does not like. Naturally, as soon as he can he begins the task of changing them. He does not point out its defects to his neighbor every time the topic is brought up except to allow the neighbor where he intends to better things.

It is with a city as with a house—if it is not in proper condition in this or that respect, the thing to do is to remedy it. Work toward this end without effort will accomplish as much in one as in the other.

There is something in this that will bear thinking over by all who are interested in the development of this great section. Let everyone's efforts be supplementary to his neighbor's for we all desire the welfare, progress and prosperity of North Bend, Marshfield, Empire, and all the cities on Coos Bay.

That's what we are here for. Let's get together!

GOOD EVENING.

And when a happy moment, complete and rounded as a pearl, falls into the tossing ocean of life, it is never wholly lost. For our days are made up of moments and our years of days, and every swift realization of a lawful joy is a distinct and lasting gain in our onward flight to eternity.—Agnes Repplier.

YOUNG AND OLD.

When all the world is young, lad, And all the trees are green; And every goose a swan, lad, And every lass a queen; Then hey for boot and hose, lad, And round the world away; Young blood must have its course, lad, And every dog his day.

When all the world is old, lad, And all the trees are brown; And all the sport is stale, lad, And all the wheels run down; Creep home and take your place there, The spent and maimed among; God grant you find one face there You loved when all was young. —Charles Kingsley.

There are some Marshfield men who never fail because they never try.

Music is said to have charms to soothe the savage breast, but certain Coos Bay music is calculated to render the peaceful breast savage.

While there are many people who protest against the omission of the motto "In God We Trust," from the new gold coins, it is not probable that any will refuse to accept them because of it.

SHOOTING SUN INTO THE SEA

Sunset Salute of Uncle Sam's Soldiers at San Diego by the Sea.

IN THE SUNNY SOUTHLAND

T. E. Dow Writes Breezy Letter From The Land of Orange Blossoms To His Friends on Coos Bay.

National City, San Diego Co., Cal., Dec. 6.
 Dear old Coos Bay and the inhabitants thereof:

I saw in last evening's paper that there was a well defined storm on in Washington and Oregon. The paper added "We hope to get some of it." Now I am not that selfish. I have the generosity born of one who has spent several years on Coos Bay, or I might add I know when I have enough. That is not saying I will never want any more. Simply find a good turkey dinner and am willing to wait until I am hungry again. This sunshine suits me all right. Why this dear old southern sun of Southern California don't know anything else but shine. It costs the government quite a sum to make it quit shining. Uncle Sam has an army post here. The chief work is to shoot the sunrise and sunset gun. The sunset gun seems to work all right for the sun drops into the ocean at once. But the sunrise gun, our southern sun, pays no attention to it. Perhaps it is because it has quite a start before the boys in blue shoot it, one would think.

Well if I was shot at twice a day I would quit coming to be shot every evening, and come up smiling every morning and resume business at the old stand, giving color to the roses, California poppy and the many flowers in field and yard. My home in Paradise valley looks good to me. We have six mails per day. You see the chance I have to hear from you. The postoffice has no sign hanging in the window "The mail has not arrived." Twenty trains (steam cars) per day. Last Sunday the electric cars, giving half hour service with San Diego, commenced running. That is going some.

There is quite a boom on down here. Prices are reasonable. Lots $250 to $300 within one block of business center. They still dig claims out of the mud. Some day I expect they will try to shoot them on the wing. All same Coos Bay.

Friends here greet me with "Dow, you look fresh." Yes, fresh and green; just in out of the wet. I must admit my friends here look dried up. But when I get dry I know where to go.

Saturday morning 9 a. m.: Oregon mist has arrived. Well is that the best you can do? In half an hour our Southern California sun has put Oregon mist out of business. "Behind the clouds the sun's still shining," but it doesn't stay there long in this land of sunshine and flowers. I wish some of the Coos Bay people could step in and sit here in the sunshine with me and smell the perfume of orange blossoms as it comes in the window. By the by, that reminds me, I promised to send orange blossoms when the conditions were right. C. W. Wolcott comes first on the list. "Get busy;" there are some young ladies on the list also. It is not often I say "Take something," but wish you were here to have lemonade with me. (Lemons fresh off the tree). Have taken to drink since I arrived in Paradise. Wife wants me to sign the pledge. (Too late). I have the habit. Can't let up now. Say all you good people come and see me in this land of sunshine and flowers. T. E. DOW.

Dance to be given in the North Inlet Hall Xmas Eve, Dec. 24, 1907. Music will be furnished by Harry Benson, of Ten Mile, and Oscar Ohman, of North Inlet. Launches will leave North Bend for upper landing of North Inlet. Step right off from boat and on to plank walk.
