Origin of Attar of Roses.

The preparation of the famous attar of roses, according to the Circle, seems to have been discovered by accident. From India we get the tradition. The favorite Sultana of Sebahangh caused a bath of rosewater to be prepared for her use. The burning sun of India brought its might upon the bath prepared in the royal garden and soon globules of oil were found floating upon the fragrant water. Decanting the bath impure and attempting to skim off the oil, the attendants broke the globules, and at once the garden was filled with fragrance. The finest essence is not gathered from the rarest and most costly flowers, for the fragrant oil plants are most abundant in the petals of the free blooming, old, common kinds.

Machiavelli. Nicolo Machiavelli, from whose surname has been coined a synonym for treacherous craft, was a writer of nervous and concise Italian. He took high rank as a dramatist, his comedy of "Mandragola" being pronounced inferior only to the work of Voltaire. Leo X. admitted it so much that he had it played before him in Rome. His book on the "Art of War" won the praise of so competent a judge as Frederick the Great of Prussia. His policy in statesmanship embodied in his work "The Prince" was the direct antithesis of Washington's sentiment that "honesty is the best policy."

DUELING IN THE NAVY

The Tragic Affair That Put an End to the Practice.

A MIDSHIPMAN'S CHALLENGE.

It Was Accepted by the Lawyer, and the Battle Was Fought in Delaware. Sad Fate of the Two Principals in the Unfortunate Meeting.

That settlement of quarrels by appeal to the code of honor was no longer to be the unwritten law of the American navy was determined by a duel in which William Miller, Jr., a Philadelphia lawyer, was slain in a personal affair fought along the northern circle of Delaware. The man who fired the fatal shot was Midshipman Charles G. Hunter, and the encounter took place along Naaman's creek on the afternoon of Sunday, March 21, 1830.

Singularly enough, neither Miller, who lost his life, nor Hunter, who killed him, was principal in the original quarrel that led to the meeting on the bank of the little creek in Delaware. Neither had seen the other until a few hours before the challenge was sent and accepted.

Simply a misshot in a game of billiards played at Third and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia, led to the tragedy that plunged two homes into sorrow and embittered the life of the man whose pistol shot causelessly shed human blood.

Henry Wharton Griffith and R. Dillon Drake, prominent society men of Philadelphia, played the game of billiards, and Griffith made the misshot which called forth a taunt from Drake, who was immediately struck in the face with a cue by Griffith. A challenge to a duel was sent by Drake, but Griffith declared that the challenger was beneath his notice and that he would not demean himself socially by consenting to meet him.

Then followed a long and wordy warfare in which each posted the other as a coward. Lieutenant Duryee of the United States navy was called to make an effort to settle the dispute, and it was then that Miller, the lawyer, and Hunter, the midshipman, became involved in the quarrel. In the heated discussion Hunter accused Miller of publishing a confidential letter, and a challenge was at once sent by the midshipman and accepted by the attorney.

It was decided that the duel should be fought early on Sunday morning of March 21, but it was nearly 10 o'clock before carriages containing the principals, seconds and surgeons left a house that stood on Chestnut street above Sixth. The presence of the company excited some suspicion at Chester, where the party stopped for lunch, but they hurried down the post road, tied their horses close to the highway and proceeded 200 yards behind a clump of trees that would shield them from observation.

As the sun was setting two pistol shots rang out simultaneously as one of the seconds counted "One, two, three—fire!" Hunter stood unharmed as the ball from his opponent's pistol struck at his feet, but Miller cried out that he was shot, placed one hand on his breast and fell with a bullet lying close to his heart. In a few minutes he died, while pale and anxious faces watched the convulsive breathing of the dying man.

"Gentlemen," said Hunter, "I had no enmity against this man. I never heard of him until two days ago. Let those whose quarrel embroiled him be responsible for his death."

After a hurried consultation it was decided that the midshipman should leave the state at once, and he was driven rapidly to New Castle, Del., where he boarded a boat for New York and rejoined the navy. In order to hide the tragedy it was decided to wait until dark and take Miller to Philadelphia in a carriage.

Seating the dead man between them, two seconds held him in an upright position on the long journey to Philadelphia. News of the duel had reached Chester, and a crowd of men stood at Third street bridge to intercept the carriages. The first buggy contained the surgeon, and, as his explanation was satisfactory, he was permitted to proceed. The dead man in the second carriage was driven through the crowd without the ruse being detected, and at midnight the body was placed in a house in Walnut street, where vigil was kept by the seconds, who drank heavily to support them in the terrible strain under which they had been placed.

Miller's father said that he held no malice against Hunter, but the midshipman, who was suspended for a year for punishment, was haunted by the specter of the dead man lying on the bank of Naaman's creek, slain by his hand, and died a prematurely old man after a lonely life, shut off from all hope of preferment in the navy. He was buried by the newspaper men of New York, who erected a tombstone over his grave.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Tattle of the Town

Little grains of fact sifted from the chaff of gossip flying up and down the town.

A Leap Year Girl.—Born at North Bend, January 8, 1908, to Mrs. Lundquist a daughter.

Is Convalescent.—Mrs. W. R. Simpson, who underwent a very critical operation at the Mercy Hospital, is slowly improving.

Pastor Convalescent.—Rev. Summerlin has so far recovered from his recent illness that he was in his pulpit at the M. E. church this past Sunday.

Plant Is Delayed.—The steamer Plant, which started for her trip to Frisco last Saturday, was delayed until yesterday by the bad condition of the bar.

Home From Hospital.—Will Piper, who underwent an operation at the Mercy hospital, has so far recovered as to return to his home on North Coos River.

Ladies Art Club.—The Ladies Art club met at the home of Mrs. F. M. Flye Friday afternoon. There was a good attendance and everyone spent a pleasant afternoon. Delicious refreshments were served. The next meeting will be with Mrs. H. M. Tattle January 24.

Repairing the Mill.—Robert McCann has had a number of men for the past three weeks repairing the old North Bend mill. They hope to have it ready for operation in a few days. They have put in a new log hauler and wood-saw which is quite an improvement to the mill.

Surprised Pastor.—On Tuesday evening at North Bend some 65 members of the Presbyterian church gave Rev. and Mrs. I. E. Burkhart a surprise party and presented them with a purse as a small token of their appreciation as a beloved pastor of that church. The evening was very enjoyably spent with vocal and instrumental music after which dainty refreshments were served when all dispersed wishing them a prosperous new year.

Stores Will Move.—The billiard parlors of Archer & Mercer, in the ground floor of the Garfield building, will be moved to the vacant store in the Lockhart building about the first of the month, as their lease for the building will run out. The place now occupied by the billiard parlors will be used by the Melrose restaurant, which has secured a three year lease on the premises and will move into the quarters as soon as they are vacated.

Still Seeking Her Son.—Chief of Police Carter has received a letter from Mrs. Mary Pailer, of Ludlow, Kentucky, asking for the whereabouts of her son, who left San Francisco several months ago for Coos county, and who has not been heard from. His name is Frederick F. Pailer, 23 years of age, tall and heavy in build. He worked in a lumber camp near Coos Bay. This is the second query from the anxious mother, and if any person knows of the son's whereabouts they will confer a great favor on the worried lady.

Moon Causes Rainbow.—A rather unusual phenomenon was witnessed Monday morning about 5:45 o'clock by those who were not wrapped in the arms of Morpheus, at least the people who were up at that hour and glanced skyward. A huge rainbow circled from the north to the south of the city, but it was without colors. Mrs. Thomas Dimmick saw the phenomenon. She says that the stars were shining and that the moon was still shining in the west. There was no sun, as it was before daylight, and yet this huge rainbow stretched across the sky, more the color of the moon than anything else. This is the second time Mrs. Dimmick has witnessed such a sight on Coos Bay in a number of years.

Celebrates in Western Home.—Charles Westman, for twenty-four years a well known rancher on Haynes Inlet, and a citizen of Coos County for thirty-eight years, unfolded a huge national flag over his new residence in Marshfield Sunday to celebrate his first Sunday in his new quarters, which he has aptly termed "Western Home," the name being printed on a sign over the door. The residence is small but snug, and is located 100 yards west of Front street, nearly opposite Max Timmerman's shipyard. Mr. Westman's family is in California and he states that he is glad to be alone. He is a son of Swedish parents and was born in New York. With his father and mother he spent a number of his early years in South Africa, Madagascar and other parts of the world. He went to school in Sweden until about twelve years old and when he grew up he took to the sea for a living. After many years in the service he arrived on the west coast in 1869, coming around the Horn in the good ship "Queen of the Seas." He later located on a ranch in Coos county which he recently gave to his wife, and he believes the climate here to be the finest in the world. He likes Marshfield and has built himself a small home and will spend the rest of his days here.

HOLD DELIGHTFUL DANCE AND SOCIAL

C. A. Smith Offices Scene of Enjoyment Saturday Night.

A very delightful dance was held at the handsome offices of the C. A. Smith Lumber company last Saturday night. Everybody present enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The rooms were nicely decorated and a good program of songs and solos made the evening pass pleasantly, dancing and refreshments helping to make the event of the most sociable nature. Smith's quartet sang several selections, Miss Painter played a piano solo, Miss Ostlund sang and other guests with various accomplishments proved that they were well equipped with talent. Among those present at the function were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Oren, Mr. and Mrs. Berette, Dr. and Mrs. McCormac, Mr. and Mrs. Powers, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, Misses Painter, Helm, Minot, McCormac, Johnson and Mathison; Messrs. Hugh Bailey, Warren Painter, Laurence Holmberg, Alvin Lofgren, G. Browne, W. J. Conrad, William Eckblad, D. A. Allison and George Goodrum.

THE LAST THREE NIGHTS

The Young Company Will Give Three Farewell Performances.

Young's clever company of players concluded a two night's engagement at the opera house Sunday night and left for Bandon Monday morning. They are to return on Thursday next for a three night's engagement which is to conclude their stay in this city, as they sail by the steamer Plant for San Francisco. For their farewell appearances the management has selected "The Mascot" for Thursday night; "The Girl From Frisco" for Friday night; and "The Irish Jubilee" for a closing number on Saturday evening. There is a wide diversity of style in these selected plays that calls for the display of versatility on the part of the players and the musical numbers will all be bright and catchy. Seats now selling.

BANDON NEWS NOTES

What Is Happening in the Busy City by the Sounding Sea.

(Special to Times)
BANDON, Ore., Jan. 21.—A new Sibley fire engine of the most modern type was tried out here yesterday and gave excellent satisfaction. The machine cost the city duds something like $5,000 and will be stationed on the wharf to protect the frontage.

Dr. E. W. Barnes, who located here some time ago from North Powder, will leave in the course of a few days for the interior. His health is not good in the coast region.

Word has been received here that the dedication of Sweeney & Walker addition to Bandon has been approved by the county court at its last session.

Eugene O'Connell, of Marshfield was a visitor in Bandon yesterday. The Bandon and the Washelore arrived yesterday and the Hill and Elizabeth left on the same tide.

E. M. Rose, the young Hawaiian athlete of this place, who was taken suddenly ill a week ago was recently moved to the Coquille hospital for treatment.

In a practice game last night, the Bandon Basketball Club team of girls defeated the High School girls' team by a score of 7 to 2.

The funeral of D. A. Hill occurred Thursday in Bandon, although it had been reported that the body would be moved to North Bend for burial. The ceremonies were conducted by the local lodge of I. O. O. F. of which order deceased was a member in a Portland lodge.

Dr. Frenth, who has been seriously ill, is again around and able to attend to accumulated business.
