EASTSIDE

A new town is born, it seems, on Coos Bay. The people of what has been hitherto called East Marshfield and also of Bay City, have decided upon separate municipal existence and will soon hold their first election. Whether this action on their part is wise or unwise depends largely on the point of view, but from any point of view it must be regarded as natural. Hitherto the peninsula has included three cities which have been designated by somebody as triplets. Now we may speak of the cities of Coos Bay as a quartette.

The future of Eastside is a foregone conclusion. It is in no cynical or envious word that we declare that her destiny will be a great one. She stands at the mouth of one of the most notable inlets or estuaries in any country. She is on the shores of a bay whose possibilities as an ocean harbor have made her famous. Her position is sure to give her advantages which will multiply her population and make her great and wealthy. These four cities, North Bend, Empire, Marshfield and Eastside, depend one and all on Coos Bay and Coos Bay's development, for that success which is usually considered desirable among cities. Eastside is as well located in this respect as any of them. But the future of Coos Bay also depends on the interest which the cities take in making the bay a harbor and in order to make it a harbor Eastside, Marshfield, North Bend and Empire must consolidate as one great city. It will be the history of other bay cities over again. But as the five boroughs of Brooklyn, Bronx, Manhattan, Williamsburg and Queens make up the city of Greater New York, so the five boroughs of Empire, North Bend, Marshfield, Eastside and, perhaps, ultimately, Coos Bay City or Blanco, will unite to make the great city of Coos or whatever other name may be accepted. It is a good augury for the future success of the borough plan of consolidation on Coos Bay that Eastside is born, and the Times wishes the new city no better and no less good, than that she will soon gain that prosperity and greatness which she is bound to gain sometime, in any event.

BOOST THE BOOSTER

That's the official slogan of a certain town in Arkansas which thru' boosting itself and boosting its boosters has doubled its population since the 1900 census.
 Boost the booster!
 The Arkansas town has been quarreling among itself for years, and standing still. It had boosters, but it had others who refused to boost the boosters, refused to stand by them and yell, "Good boy—keep it up."
 Boost the booster!
 Finally the town got together with itself, organized a "Boost the Booster Club" and began to boom. Now its principal thoroughfare, which was a streak of mud, is a stretch of asphalt, and it has new buildings to match. Now everybody boosts the booster and booms the boom.
 Boost the booster!
 This town might take a hint from that one. We have our town boosters—every town has some. But sometimes they get discouraged because of opposition right here in our midst.
 Boost the booster!
 Quit the queering!
 Boom the boom!
 Then watch the old town perk up and plunge forward. You can see it move.
 When you boost the booster you boom the boom.

GOOD EVENING.

To be honest, to be kind; to earn a little and to spend less; to make upon the whole a family happier by his presence; to renounce where that shall be necessary, and not to be embittered; to keep a few friends but, these without capitulation; above all, on the same grim conditions, to keep friends with himself—here's a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

A Little Bit.

'Twas a little bit of trouble that set the world awry,
 A little bit of worry that served a frown to bring,
 A little bit of discord, a note too low or high,
 That made a fearful jumble of the song you tried to sing;
 But here's a thing that's worth your note and it is always true,
 As we jog on the rugged way,
 While rocks about us pile,
 There always is where'er we go,
 The same for me and you,
 A little bit of happiness that's worthy of a smile.
 —San Francisco Call.

Adam got the original rib roast when Eve scolded him.

Most people pay too much for the things they get for nothing.

Some Coos Bay people tell white lies to give a story another color.

"Experience," said the Philosopher of the Club, "is an art school in which men learn to draw salaries."

It is easier for some Coos Bay girls to believe a man when he tells her she is prettier than it is for him to tell it.

Helen was watching some flies on the window pane, when she called to her mother: "Mamma come and see if this is the bosom fly!"

"The bosom fly, child! What kind of a fly is that?"

"Oh, the one they sang about in church last Sunday—'Let me to thy bosom fly.'"

A little Coos Bay girl was very fond of pleasant days, and at the close of a heavy rainstorm petitioned in her prayer for fine weather; when, the next morning, the sun shone bright and clear she became jubilant and told her prayer to her grandmother, who said:

"Well, dear, why can't you pray tonight that it may be warmer tomorrow, so grandma's rheumatism will be better?"

"All right, I will," was the quick response; and that night, as she knelt, she made this request in her prayers: "Oh, God, please make it hot for grandma."

A day sacred to St. Valentine; the 14th of February. It was a very old notion alluded to by Shakespeare, that on this Day birds begin to mate. Hence, perhaps, arose the custom of sending love tokens at that time.
