CHICKEN HEARTED MEN.

Every One of Group Dreaded to Hear of Some Injury.

"I could hear the bone in his wrist snap," said a man who was describing an accident to a group of men. "Oh, cut it out, for heaven's sake!" called out one of the group. He was a big fellow, but he was as white as a sheet.

The speaker laughed jeeringly. "I didn't know you were so chicken hearted," he said.

The big man began to explain. "I'm not what you would call a timid sort of person, but the mention of any injury to the wrist always turns me faint. I can stand seeing blood flow or hear thrilling tales of broken limbs and smashed heads, but I can't stand any wrist stories. I don't know the reason. It seems to be merely a matter of temperament."

A quiet little man came to the rescue. "I know just what you mean," he said. "You're not the only one who has a peculiar aversion to a certain sort of injury. Now, my particular aversion is on account of trouble with the eyes. Immediately I begin to blink and wink and my eyes smart until I can't stand it. I'd rather hear an account of a brutal murder than any description of an eye disease."

The man who had jeered at the big man had been thinking. "I have one of those aversions, too, now I come to think of it," he said. "It is accounts of paralytic shocks, to which I particularly object. I feel myself growing numb all over when I hear such tales, and I always make an excuse to get away as soon as possible."

His remark was a signal for a universal confession. One acknowledged that the sight of blood gave him a sensation of extreme nausea; another said that reading or hearing of a fracture of the skull gave him "a gone feeling at his stomach," and another said he shivered so his teeth chattered every time he heard an account of an operation for appendicitis.

The big man was triumphant. "Well, I'm not such a big baby after all," he said.—New York Tribune.

FEAR IN BATTLE.

Frederick the Great Ran Away, and Grant Was Afraid.

Some of the greatest soldiers whose names adorn history's pages entered their first battles with a feeling of fear in their hearts.

Frederick the Great simply lost his head at the battle of Mollwitz. Had he not been a king it is safe to say that he would have been shot at the next sunrise. In the heat of the carnage he got an idea that the army under his command was being overwhelmed, so he put the spurs to his horse and dashed headlong among his soldiers. He rode many miles before he stopped in his wild flight. Late at night he was discovered hiding in an old mill, awaiting, as he thought, capture by the enemy. Then he discovered that the army he deserted had won the battle.

As Frederick was a prince, everybody tried to forget the incident just as quickly as possible. And after that when the king went to war he was just as brave as any other soldier.

General Grant in his memoirs tells us that, despite the fact that he was not new to the ways of war, he had a strange fear in his heart when as commander of the Union forces he found himself on the eve of his first battle of the civil war. He adds, however, that he came to find that "the other fellow" had a similar feeling.

In American history there is no more reckless warrior than the dashing Light Horse Harry Lee. It seems strange, therefore, to find that at the outset of the Continental struggle Washington had to reprove him for his "prudence" in battle. Lee, though, up and told Washington that he was just as brave as the general in chief, and he made good his word.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

All's Fair in War.

"A tenderfoot once visited Tin Can," said a westerner, "and watched with interest the poker play. From saloon to saloon he passed. Everything was wide open and very gay and lively.

"But as he looked on at a poker game that had no limit the tenderfoot suddenly frowned. He had seen the dealer slip himself four aces from the bottom of the pack.

"Gracious powers," whispered the tenderfoot, excitedly clutching the sleeve of the man next him, "did you notice that?"

"Notice what?" said the other.

"Why, that scoundrel in the red shirt just dealt himself four aces."

"The other looked at the tenderfoot calmly.

"Well, wasn't it his deal?" he said.

The Sundowner.

A "swagman" or "swaggie"—so called from the "swag" or personal luggage wrapped up in a blanket strapped to his back—is a genuine Australian traveler in search of work, but a "sundowner" is the antipodean professional tramp. The sundowner strolls from one squatter's station to another, always taking care to arrive at sunset, for it is the traditional practice of Australian squatters to give food and shelter to all comers for the night.—Kansas City Independent.

Respecting Her Oath.

"Judge, will you do me a great favor?" asked the lady who was about to be put upon the stand as a witness. "Certainly, miss. What is it?"

"Will you please ask me my age before I take the oath?"—Youkers Statesman.

Yes, money talks; but its favorite remark is goodbye.—Indianapolis Star.

MRS. J. FREELAND AND DAUGHTERS are visiting relatives in North Bend for a few days this week.

CHARLES CAVANAUGH, of Porter mill was attending to business in Marshfield Friday.

MR. AND MRS. WM. PIPER, of North Coos River, were visiting with friends on Saturday at North Bend.

Long Towing Trip.—Captain McGee, of the tug Columbia, went to get fuel at Beaver Hill previous to starting on the trip of towing the Plant to San Francisco.

IRA B. RIDDLE, of Roseburg, who succeeded Mrs. Frances McCleod, of this city, as court stenographer, is here on his first official visit to Marshfield. He began this afternoon taking testimony in the land equity case of Howard vs. Wheeler.

GEORGE LOGGIE, of Bellingham Bay, Washington, who had his automobile shipped to California and spent the winter there with his family, is now visiting relatives on the bay. He was manager of the Empire mill for several years. As his large mill at Bellingham is not running he is taking a vacation.

Has Appendicitis.—Joe Vey was operated upon at the hospital Saturday for appendicitis. He is reported to be recovering rapidly, the operation being very successful.

Making Improvements.—W. Ross and sons, of Pleasant Point were taking lumber from North Bend on Saturday to be used on their farm on Isthmus Inlet.

Infant Dies.—The two weeks old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holm, of North Bend, died in Marshfield, Saturday from inflammation of the bowels. Friends of the bereaved young couple extend their sympathy.

Improving Store.—Magnes & Mattson have a force of workmen busy making some alterations that will add much to the artistic appearance of their store. The display windows are to be remodelled with the panel and beam ceiling effect which will give another touch of metropolitanism to Front street.

Good Snipe Hunting.—The season for ducks closed with January, at a time too, when shooting of water fowl in this locality is at its very best, and long before the birds begin to mate. The season is open for snipe, however, and a number of good bags are being made by the hunters.—Myrtle Point Enterprise.

Good Crowd at Rink.—A capacity crowd enjoyed the pleasures of roller skating Saturday night when Manager Avery threw open the doors for the first time since the extensive repairs have been in progress. Those in attendance say the floor is equal to any they have ever skated on. The rink will now be open every afternoon and evening.

Homer on Plant's Run.—The steamer Homer is due to leave San Francisco today for Coos Bay. This boat will take the run of the steamer Plant while the latter is in for repairs at San Francisco for the loss of the propeller and wheel which she sustained on her last trip up from the city. The Homer is not new to this port, having been on a regular run some years ago. She has also been here at intervals since then.

Impressed With Bay.—Mr. Steelhammer, of Salem, is on Coos Bay looking the situation over with a view to opening up a clothing store. He is much impressed with the water transportation here and the lumber possibilities. After a visit to the C. A. Smith mill he declared that it

COQUILLE CULLINGS.

Week's News as Gleaned From the Columns of Its Newspapers.

(From the Sentinel.)

Edwin Ellingsen has contracts to build several launches the coming summer.

H. G. Stratton was in Marshfield Monday on business and to meet Mrs. Stratton who was on her return from a visit to Portland.

W. P. Whittington of the South fork section bought the Harvey Tyrrell place on the south side of the river this week through the agency of Wm. Oddy.

C. A. Smith and A. H. Powers of Marshfield, were in Coquille Monday on business.

The new orchestra which Clyde Gage has organized is composed of the following musicians: Mrs. D. W. Bourne, pianist; Jas. Whetstone, violin; A. C. VanWalters, cello, and Geo. Lench, cornetist. Their music is spoken of very highly.

Johnson's mill started up Monday morning with a full crew of men. They have a large contract from San Francisco for white cedar and also a large number of local orders.

Registrations of voters are coming in slow at the clerk's office from the different precincts in the county, but it is expected that the number will increase considerably before March 1. Up to Monday of this week 206 had been sent in.

The sheriff's office is one of the busiest places in town at present, as they are preparing for the collection of taxes. The following clerks are employed at present: Deputy Sheriff Gage, J. S. Lawrence, C. A. Johnson, Raymond Bates and Miss Reta Johnson.

John Yoakam, who has been the manager of camp No. 1 for the Smith-Powers Logging Co. the past two years, has resigned his position and has been succeeded by John Bester, who has been hooktender at the camp for some time. Mr. Yoakam has left on a business trip to Curry county.

(From the Herald.)

Walter Sinclair, the attorney, went to Marshfield to business Saturday and returned Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stauff, of Marshfield, were passengers on Friday's train to Myrtle Point.

Mrs. T. A. Walker, of this city returned Saturday after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. H. J. Rich of Marshfield.

Judge John F. Hall came over from Marshfield Monday morning and spent the rest of the day and Tuesday forenoon in his office.

J. W. Bell has gone to the bay to meet his sister, Miss Maggie Bell, of Portland, who is coming to make him a visit.

Surveyor Cathcart and Geo. Griffin went to Bandon Friday and were joined on the way by W. M. Kay. They go down to do some road viewing and surveying near Bandon.

Fred Von Pegerth has his new gasoline boat ready to go onto the upper river run. This is a fine little craft and will no doubt make good time.

We made a mistake in our last issue when we gave Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith, of Bandon, credit for a baby girl. They plead not guilty. The little arrival was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Smith, of that place.

F. T. Crewe, having sold out his cigar factory in Curry county, has purchased a considerable quantity of property in Myrtle Point to which place the family moved Monday for residence, and where Mr. Crewe will again engage in the manufacture of cigars.

Dave Morgan, of Empire, went to Arago to see his aunt, Mrs. Ellen Peterson, and sons, last week.

eclipsed anything he had ever seen. "I thought we had a large mill near Salem," said Mr. Steelhammer, "but I've changed my mind since my visit to the Smith industry."

"Daddy" Leaves Bay.—J. E. Mann, better known to the travelling public as "Daddy" and who has been clerk at the Blanco hotel for over a year and a half departed this morning by way of the Drain stage for McMinnville, Oregon. Mr. Mann goes back to the hostelry in that city with which he was connected before taking service with the Blanco. The vast number of friends he has in this city and among the drummers will regret exceedingly his departure.

New School for Eastside.—There is a force of men at work finishing the upper part of the school house on the Eastside and school will open with two teachers as soon as it is ready. They are greatly in need of a new building as the present one is entirely too small and may build this year if they can only agree on the location. They considered that the school building was large enough for several years to come while last year it was too small and now there are three times too many children for the present quarters.
