J. PIERPONT MORGAN FOR PRESIDENT.

Is it not remarkable that the American people have so utterly failed heretofore in a clear perception of their opportunities and an understanding of their best interests as not to recognize that J. Pierpont Morgan is and long has been the most logical, capable and brilliant candidate for the high office of President of "these United States? Yet all the bright years of the past have swept by and not until this year of Grace 1908 have the peculiar qualifications of that very famous and able man been considered. We are indebted to financial interests in New York City which are jubilant and confident over the splendid suggestion that instead of putting such sentimental nonentities as Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln and Roosevelt in the White House, great and successful business men, like Mr. Morgan, be put at the nation's head. Now that the suggestion has been made it occurs to us that all the monied interests in America, not to say the Rothschild family of Europe, would approve it, and any views to the contrary are rank populism and anarchy. What a splendid ticket it would be, Morgan of New York for president and Rockefeller of Ohio for vice president.

The advantages which would accrue to our government with Mr. Morgan at its head should be patent if not patented. Electing him could not fail to inspire confidence in European financial circles so that our securities would sell at a premium, and the commissions which the president's partners could collect would increase the splendid fortune which he now possesses. It would cause trust stocks to boom, and water, which has thus far been a drug on the market, so to speak, would be more completely commercialized and offered to the public at bed rock prices. With Mr. Morgan as president, watered stock would become substantial. And by electing him the nation would render it unnecessary for the president of the United States to go to Wall street for the purpose of consulting him on bond issues. It is recalled that Mr. Cleveland and several other presidents have made frequent pilgrimages to Mr. Morgan's Wall street shrine when the nation was in straits. More than this. When the country was in distress, who but Mr. Morgan relieved it? Did he not recently work day and night to restore confidence which some of his Wall street friends had lost? Did he not present a splendid spectacle—struggling to prevent the withdrawal of funds from the banks and protecting those banks by taking their funds from the back door and returning them to the bank vaults through the front door?

Moreover, while the talkers have been talking finance, has not Mr. Morgan been giving the country object lessons. Labor, half starved and poorly clad, feels an object lesson and realizes that better results and more food and clothing would come to them if Mr. Morgan were made president. The widows and orphans know that if Mr. Morgan were president they would not be disturbed in the enjoyment of their mite. The business men understand that Mr. Morgan's financial policy would not be uncertain, as is that of the politicians. On the contrary, they could positively depend on it, that they could retire from business in a short time, and Mr. Morgan would manage it for them without any salary and simply depending on the chance of absorbing the profits. Yes! Yes! Let J. P. Morgan be president, and drop Taft and Bryan and Teddy. Wouldn't it be fine? The people would vote for him in droves, no doubt.
