FINDS AFFINITY AT POOR FARM
 In 25 Minutes Marries Man—Woman Owns Ranch.
 AURORA, Mo., March 6.—Perhaps the most unique leap year marriage recorded is that of Miss Johanna Thieme of Howell county, who found her affinity at the poor farm near West Plains, and 25 minutes after she met him they were man and wife.
 Young William Mitchell, temporarily embarrassed financially, had sought the refuge of the county charity institution. Miss Thieme visited the farm and at 6:45 met him. At 6:53 she proposed to him. At 7:10 the Rev. D. L. Sottlemeyer performed the ceremony.
 Mrs. Mitchell is the owner of a fine farm.

given; and further ordering that Monday, the 6th day of April, 1908, at the court house in Coquille City, Coos County, Oregon, be, and the same was, by the order of said court, appointed as the time and place for the hearing of objections to said final account and the settlement thereof.

Dated this 2d day of March, 1908.
GEORGE W. BEALE,
 Administrator of the Estate of Marinus Geluk, Deceased.

PAY NOW AND HERE.

If you'll have flowers to spread upon my brow
 When I lie stark and over me you bow,
 Spread them now.

If "sometime you'll reward my deeds of right,—
 "Sometime" make my future glad and bright,
 Begin tonight.

For "Sometime" may be farther off than death—
 I'd rather see your deeds than hear your breath;
 Make DO your shibboleth.

If when you die I am to have your dough,
 Remaining a Job's turkey till you go—
 If this be so,

Why not begin to sort of die today?
 (Tho' I'll be sad when you have passed away)
 It has to come, and after I'll be glad
 For all you've had.

Ingenious Cypher.

The following was written by Professor Whewell at the request of a young lady:

U 0 a 0, but I 0 U,
 O 0 no 0, but O 0 me;
 O let not my 0 a 0 go,
 But give 0 0 I 0 U so.

Thus deciphered:
 (You sigh for a cypher, but I sigh for you,
 O, sigh for no cypher, but O sigh for me:
 O let not my sigh for a cypher go,
 But give sigh for sigh, for I sigh for you so.)

The Results.

Upon the yellowed fly-leaf of an old Bible found in the corner stone of an old mission recently torn down the following lines appear in a small, quaint handwriting:
 King David and King Solomon
 Led merry, merry lives,
 With many, many lady friends
 And many, many wives.
 When old age crept over them,
 With many, many qualms,
 King Solomon wrote the Proverbs
 And King David wrote the Psalms.

The Pessimist.

Nothing to do but work;
 Nothing to eat but food;
 Nothing to wear but clothes,
 To keep one from going nude.

Nothing to breathe but air;
 Quick as a flash 'tis gone.
 Nowhere to fall but off;
 Nowhere to stand but on.

Nothing to comb but hair;
 Nowhere to sleep but bed;
 Nothing to weep but tears;
 Nothing to bury but dead.

Nothing to sing but songs;
 Ah, well, Alas, Alack!
 Nowhere to go but out;
 Nowhere to come but back.

TAKES BATH IN CHAMPAGNE

Henry G. Moore, Millionaire,
 Forgets How He Invests
 His Money.

PAYS $6 EACH FOR CIGARS

Rides in Cab if Crosses Street—Says He Can Not Afford Alimony for his Wife.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Henry G. Moore, millionaire by inheritance and "spendthrift" by reputation, who is being sued for alimony and divorce, does not know how he spends his money.

Attorney Abraham Snyderer said last night that Mr. Moore really couldn't remember over night where he spent his income of $2000 a month. But he gets rid of it all and can not take care of a wife besides, the attorney declares.

"Why, Mr. Moore recently received $150,000 in accumulated interest on his fortune," said Mr. Snyderer. "In two months he spent it all, without opening a bank account, and he does not know where it went."

"One night Moore bought $50,000 worth of jewelry and gave it all away, and he can't remember to whom he gave it."

Moore has played checkers with his wife through three states. It is admitted that she got judgment against him in Philadelphia where they were married, and that he moved to New Jersey so she could collect. When she got judgment for accumulated alimony in New Jersey he crossed to New York. The alimony claim, at the rate of 325 a month, now calls for more than $19,000.

Says He Is Bankrupt.

Mr. Moore had himself declared a bankrupt, because he couldn't keep track of his liabilities and because he was "broke," though getting from $1600 to $2500 a month.

This remarkable man, who is living secluded in a big New York apartment house, the exact whereabouts of which his attorney will not reveal, has a housekeeper named Mrs. Anna Belmont. She is named by Mrs. Moore in her divorce suit.

Some of His Characteristics.

According to Attorney Snyderer his client:
 Never worked in his life.
 Never kept a bank account.
 Spends more than $25,000 every year and can not tell where or how he spends it.
 Spends $100 a night for wine.
 Never drinks any intoxicant; but wine, although his father headed a big whiskey firm.

Never walks in the city, but uses a cab if he but crosses the street.
 Pays $6000 a year for a New York apartment.
 Pays $600 a hundred for cigars "made to order".

Denies he can spare alimony to his wife, because his cab, theatre and flower bills take all of his available cash.
 Always wears a boutonier, for which his florist has grown a special flower.

Can't remember when he was married or when his wife sued him for divorce or of any alimony decrees being issued against him.

Don't Remember Marriage.

The attorney said that he asked his client about the marriage which resulted in the separation and that Moore told him this story:
 "Well, sir, I don't remember getting married. But one morning I found a young lady in my home. I was surprised, sir, and said so. 'Why, dear, don't you know that we were married last night?' said she. 'Well, if that is what you say I guess we were, but I don't remember anything about it,' I told her, and since then she has claimed me as her husband."

Last night Attorney George S. Graham, for Mrs. Moore, declared that settlement of the suit for alimony had been reached and that it would be presented in court as soon as it could be reduced to writing.

In August, 1903, James L. Deegan, a truck driver, broke into apartments occupied by Moore at 209 West Ninety-seventh street, and attacked the millionaire because he thought the latter had lured Mrs. Deegan from home. In December of that year Mrs. Moore had a jury drawn to examine her husband for his sanity, alleging that he withheld the necessities of life from her and her daughter and lavished "not only money, but costly clothes, diamonds, carriages and horses upon Mrs. Deegan." Moore won the decision in the insanity proceedings.

In a suit brought by his valet it was charged that the servant, a negro gave Moore champagne baths twice each day.
