Daniel Boon, or Pioneer Days in America

Presents with startling realism the dangers and trials which our forefathers encountered in the then so-called Western wilderness of Kentucky. The Indians attack the settlers log cabin and burn it to the ground killing some and carrying others away captive. Daniel Boone finds the burned cabin in the woods and rushes to the rescue of his friends. After pitched battles and hand-to-hand encounters with the Indians he rescues his friends from being burned at the stake. This is a colored film a thousand feet in length and its subject is one that will interest every true American.

ARRIVAL OF THE NANN SMITH

It was a great day for C. A. Smith and a great day also for Coos Bay.
The Life Saving Crew proved their usefulness and efficiency most thoroughly.
Mayor Straw has Governor Chamberlain beaten when it comes to declaring holidays.
Geo. Goodrum is said to be engaged in writing a poem entitled "A Lunch on a Launch."
Archie Whisnant is preparing a brochure on gasoline launches that will be well worth reading.
them all the freedom of the city and the keys to its gates.
Mr. Smith reports the voyage from San Francisco rather rough as the vessel being without cargo was light and the storm that prevailed buffeted the ship considerably.
Coos Bay manifested that its public spirit is the kind that wears well. The suspense of three days waiting and continued holidays did not dampen the enthusiasm.
Mrs. Jas. Bennett presented Miss Nann Smith with a souvenir of the new Smith mill in the form of a silk covered pin cushion made from sawdust of the first log sawed in the mill.
The vessel will be loaded immediately and started on her first voyage with a cargo of two million feet of lumber for San Pedro, California. Mr. Smith will accompany her on this trip. It will require about a week to take on the cargo.
Among the boats that went out to greet the new vessel was the launch Mabel H., the C. A. Smith boat which carried General Manager J. E. Oren and family, General Superintendent Meehan, Mrs. A. H. Powers and family, A. E. Gagnon and wife, J. E. Stack, B. B. Ogilvie, W. J. Conrad and others of the office force. This launch was given the place of honor and saluted the big vessel as she came up from the bar and the officials were the first to greet C. A. Smith when the Nann Smith docked at Empire and they came down the bay in the new vessel.
There were no accidents to mar the pleasure of the day altho two launches went on the sands at Charleston Bay and had to be taken off by the life saving crew. One of these was a small gasoline boat occupied by A. Whisnant, editor of the Coos Bay Harbor of North Bend. While out toward the bar his engine refused to work and but for the fact that the tide was coming in it might have resulted seriously as it was the boat drifted back on the beach where the occupants were rescued and the boat was being battered to pieces when taken off by the life saving crew. The other large launch ran into shallow water on the sand spit and had to wait for the rising tide and the life crew to be floated off but the incident only added zest to the days enjoyment of the members of the party.
Eastside Provided The Fire Works.
A huge bonfire was set off on Eastside opposite C. A. Smith & Co., mill last evening in honor of the arrival of the splendid Steamer "Nann Smith" in the company's slip which lit up the entire neighborhood until early this morning.

Officers and Crew.
The following is a list of the officers and crew of the Nann Smith:
H. C. Nelson, master.
Wm. Ebert, first officer.
L. Larson, second officer.
M. Hakla, third officer,
and a crew of twelve sailors.
John J. Simpson, chief engineer.
E. A. Morris, first assistant engineer.
J. L. Lupton, second assistant engineer.
John Monson, third assistant engineer, with three oilers and three firemen.
John Pennington, steward, and five men as assistants.

The "Welcome Fleet."
"The Flyer" of North Bend, and "The Alert" of Empire, headed the welcome fleet, the Alert being profusely decorated and carrying the Marshfield Band. The three days postponement and uncertainty of arrival kept many launches away but there were sufficient to make a splendid showing. The most notable in decorative appearance being
The Eagle,
The Express,
The Dixie,
The Dispatch,
The Queen,
The Merrimac,
The Blanco,
The Mabel H.

There were in addition a large number of small private launches.
The Prize Winners.
The judges on prizes offered by the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce for the best decorated boats announced the following awards:

This boat was handsomely decorated with the Marshfield colors, old gold and black, American flags and a line of pennants each containing a single letter spelling "Welcome Nann Smith," while on each side was a large banner inscribed "A Forty Feet Bar" and "A Harbor a Mile and a Half Wide." This launch carried one of the largest private parties in the parade, as the guests of Mrs. Dr. J. T. McCormac.

BEER PROMOTES Temperance
Recognized as a Food Product, and so dealt with by the Government

It is being recognized the world over that the drinking of beer promotes temperance and sobriety to a far greater extent than all the prohibition laws on the statute books.
All enlightened European nations are encouraging the manufacture and consumption of light beers containing about three and one-half per cent alcohol, and the result has been most gratifying to all sincere lovers of temperance.
The United States government has taken a positive stand in this direction, the war department holding that the re-establishing of the army canteen for the sale of beer being an absolute necessity in the interest of temperance and sobriety.
Beer is today recognized as a "Food Product," and is so dealt with by the government.

All the great insurance companies have contradicted the lies that have been given currency through prohibition sources that the drinking of beer was a bar to securing insurance, and have lately published to the world at large the statement that those drinking beer moderately (not more than two quarts during twenty-four hours) were the very best of risks. The latest British life insurance reports show that the ratio of death rate among abstainers is thirty per cent greater than among moderate drinkers.
Beer is pure and wholesome, and the day is not far distant when it will be as much a part of the daily subsistence of every family as are milk, bread and other food necessities.

WEINHARD'S BOTTLED BEER
Is the perfection of brewing. It is in every sense the very best that modern enterprise can produce. It makes the finest table beer. It speaks for itself and is its own best advertisement.
