GOOD EVENING.

THE ALL ENCIRCLING BEAUTY.

OVER our manhood bend the skies;
Against our fallen and traitor lives
The great winds utter prophecies;
With our faint hearts the mountain strives;
Its arms outstretched, the druid wood
Waits with its benedicite,
And to our age's drowsy blood
Still shouts the inspiring sea.
—James Russell Lowell.

OLD FAVORITES.

MY MARYLAND.

THE despot's heel is on thy shore
Maryland!
His torch is at thy temple door,
Maryland!
Avenge the patriotic gore
That flecked the streets of Baltimore
And be the battle queen of yore,
Maryland, my Maryland!

Hark to an exiled son's appeal,
Maryland!
My mother state, to thee I kneel,
Maryland!
For life and death, for woe and weal,
Thy peerless chivalry reveal,
And gird thy beauteous limbs with steel,
Maryland, my Maryland!

Thou wilt not cower in the dust,
Maryland!
Thy beaming sword shall never rust,
Maryland!
Remember Carroll's sacred trust,
Remember Howard's warlike thrust,
And all thy slumberers with the just,
Maryland, my Maryland!

Come, 'tis the red dawn of the day,
Maryland!
Come with thy panoplied array,
Maryland!
With Ringgold's spirit for the fray,
With Watson's blood at Monterey,
With fearless Lowe and dashing May,
Maryland, my Maryland!

Dear mother, burst the tyrant's chain,
Maryland!
Virginia should not call in vain,
Maryland!
She meets her sisters on the plain—
"Sic semper!" 'tis the proud refrain
That baffles minions back amain,
Maryland!
Arise in majesty again,
Maryland, my Maryland!

Come, for thy shield is bright and strong,
Maryland!
Come, for thy dalliance does thee wrong,
Maryland!
Come to thine own heroic throng,
Stalking with liberty along,
And chant thy dauntless slogan song,
Maryland, my Maryland!

I see the blush upon thy cheek,
Maryland!
For thou wast ever bravely meek,
Maryland!
But lo, there surges forth a shriek,
From hill to hill, from creek to creek,
Potomac calls to Chesapeake,
Maryland, my Maryland!

Thou wilt not yield the Vandal toll,
Maryland!
Thou wilt not crook to his control,
Maryland!
Better the fire upon thee roll,
Better the shot, the blade, the bowl,
Than crucifixion of the soul,
Maryland, my Maryland!

I hear the distant thunder hum,
Maryland!
The Old Line's bugle, fife and drum,
Maryland!
She is not dead nor deaf nor dumb;
Huzza! She spurns the northern scum—
She breathes! She burns! She'll come!
She'll come!
Maryland, my Maryland!
—James Ryder Randall.

HEARD AT THE MILLICOMA.

The trouble is when you make a fool of yourself you have to levy on your friends when you are forced to make up the price you have to pay for it.

Faithful is the touch of a friend as long as the response is satisfactory.

The lies that are told about you are not so very harmful unless they are true.

The only way to avoid having to take things as they come is to carefully see that they are satisfactorily prearranged.

Starch in your backbone is all right as long as you keep out of a thunder shower.

The reason why the consciences of some people do not trouble them is because they have none.

The ill nature of a person is simply unbearable when it comes in direct contact with your own.

It is well known that a rich father-in-law is much more easily offended than a poor one.

A bone of contention is very likely to get the members of the family in the soup.

The fool loves a cheerful flatterer.

There isn't so much credit in overcoming temptation that doesn't tempt.

He is a wise man who praises his friends and lets their enemies shy the bricks at them.

A WIDOW'S SEVENTY SUITORS.

Mrs. Mollie Brown of Brooklyn, a pretty young widow, captured a burglar on the last day of April. Her portrait was published and her exploit described in the newspapers of May 1, and the next few days brought her seventy letters from masculine admirers, some promptly proposing marriage, others more delicately requesting the privilege of beginning a correspondence. Among the seventy are men whose letters bespeak intelligence and standing in their communities.

How idle was the elder Weller's caution: "Samivel, beware of vidders!" How wrong is the old notion that men prefer the timid, shrinking woman who shrieks at a mouse, faints at a word and dissolves in tears at every opportunity to the strong and courageous of their sex! —New York World.

Two of a Kind.

"So you are a literary gent," said the rural inquisitor to the casual visitor.

"That is what they call me."

"Yes, I heard them call you that, and I wondered what it meant. What do you have to do to be a literary gent?"

"I contribute to the magazines."

"Glad to meet you. I contribute some to the local paper myself."

"Is that so? What is the nature of your contributions?"

"Oh, different things. Last year I contributed a load of pumpkins."

Way He Knew.

"Heigho! It will soon be dog days!"

"That's a poor guess. Dog days do not come until fall."

"That's where you show you are not posted on the statutes. Dog days begin in May, when you have to pay your dog license."

Always Breaking Them In.

"King Edward never wears a pair of shoes more than one time."

"Is that right?"

"So I hear."

"He must be so grouchy that the queen can hardly live with him."

Willing to Divide.

"Let me sell you a 'History of the Thirty Years' War.'"

"What's the price?"

"Sixteen dollars."

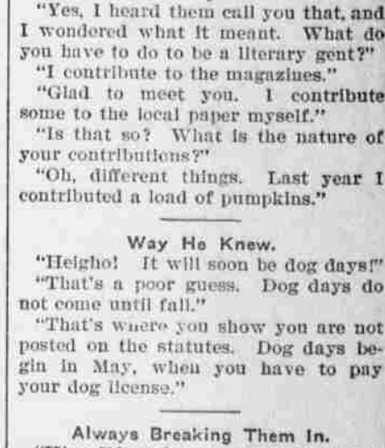
"Can't afford it. I will give you $8 for fifteen of them."

Some Different.

"Did fortune smile on you?"

"No. So far it has had the laugh on me."

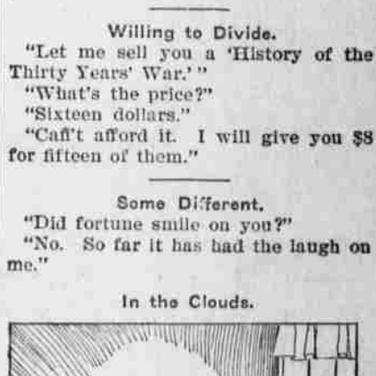
In the Clouds.



The Butler—We've got a burglar in the kitchen, sir.

The Professor (absently)—Ask him to come again. I'm busy just now.

He Meant Well.



Harold—Will you take my seat, lady?
—Ally Sloper.
