

RESULTS IN COOS COUNTY

number of ballots, it is a long, tedious job.

Few Challenges Made.

Few voters were challenged in Marshfield yesterday. Only two were made in the South Marshfield precinct, one by the wet watchers and the other by the dry watchers. The wet watchers made their protest stick while the other protest did not.

In the south precinct, everything passed off very smoothly. The dry watchers and wet watchers worked together and when dry and wet votes had to be sworn in, the wet watchers worked together and when dry and wet votes had to be sworn in, the wet watchers and dry watchers would accept identification from each other. Dr. J. T. McCormac would take Clay Moore's word that a probable wet voter was all right and Clay Moore would likewise go with Dr. McCormac on probably dry voters.

Trouble in North Precinct.
There were several clashes in the North Marshfield precinct during the day owing to S. R. Beloit, a deputy sheriff for the precinct, taking on himself some of the duty of the clerks or judges of election. He refused to allow voters to use sample ballots that they had marked before entering the booth to mark their white ballots from. The voters claim that this in violation of the law and there has been talk of prosecuting Beloit.

Thirty Days Leeway.
The Oregon law provides that when wet precincts vote dry at the local option election, the liquor dealers shall close their places on or before thirty days from the election. Thus if Coos county went dry yesterday, the saloons would have to quit business July 1.

PETITION FOR LARGE SYSTEM

South Marshfield Property Owners Want Entire Section in One District.

Petitions are being circulated in South Marshfield today asking that all of that section of the city, south of Mills slough, be made one sewer district and sewer at once, the sewer emptying into the bay direct. The petitions request that in order to accomplish this, the work on the systems proposed for part of South Marshfield and Baines streets at present be stopped and also that the city engineer in preparing plans and specifications for the larger system consult with a committee of property owners.

This plan of effecting the change from the city council's scheme for a sewage system in South Marshfield was devised at a meeting of the property owners of that section at the city hall last evening. Everyone present was unanimous in favor of securing a sewage system that will cover all of South Marshfield between Mills slough and the city limits. In order to get the matter properly before the city council tonight, it was decided to circulate the petitions today and secure as many signers as possible.

It was stated last evening that under no circumstances would be property owners permit the emptying of sewage systems into Mills slough and also that they would continue to oppose the installation of a small system that would only cover part of that section.

The property owners are also anxious to have large main pipes put in to make certain that the system will be adequate for the ensuing fifteen or twenty years.

Late this afternoon, it was stated by the parties circulating the petitions for the new sewer district that everyone they were able to find were signing it. All of the large property owners in the proposed district with the exception of the Southern Pacific have signed the petition and as there is no one here with authority to represent the Southern Pacific and there may be some delay in getting their consent. Owing to many of the smaller property owners being at work today where they could not be reached, it was stated late this afternoon that the petition might be held over a few days to give them an opportunity to sign it. This would necessitate a deviation from the original plan to present the petition tonight.

PRIZE ESSAY CONTEST ENDS

H. Gale First, Edna Wieder Second and Alice McCormac Third.

H. Gale of North Bend, first prize. Miss Edna Wieder, second prize. Miss Alice McCormac, third prize. Such is the result of the prize awards in the contest for the first, second and third prizes for the best essay on "Coos Bay as a summer resort." The judges were L. H. McCarthy and H. R. Saltmarsh. So close was the contest that it was with difficulty that the judges could pass on four others which were each voted worthy of honorable mention. The awards were made by numbers, the judges not knowing the authors of the productions they were judging. Neither the judges nor the parties who offered the prizes know the winner from North Bend.

H. Gale is Mrs. Helen Gale, the wife of Dr. Gale of North Bend. She was very much surprised when notified today that she had won first honors in the contest, in fact surprised to learn that she had won any prize at all. She said that on the evening she noticed the announcement of the contest in The Times, that she decided to enter the contest but soon after she started to write something she was interrupted, leaving her only about ten minutes to hurriedly dash off the ideas she had.

The first prize of $10 was offered by Seymour H. Bell, the second prize of $5 by Secretary Walter Lyons, and the third prize a hat by George Goodrum. The awards of the first prizes will be all right but Mr. Goodrum will have to call on his millinery friends in order to convert a stiff hat or a "Silk tile" into a Merry Widow or something similar as the young lady who secured his prize has no need of masculine headgear.

It is proposed to now offer a prize for "One Hundred Facts About Coos Bay." Nobody will be barred from this contest, and the award will be based on the most telling facts, properly arranged and presented.

The gasoline schooner Enterprise came down from Coos Bay Thursday and landed a lot of freight for Port Orford, and left next morning for Rogue river. She will then go to San Francisco to be thoroughly overhauled and completed according to Mr. Hume's plans.

Last Friday there drifted into Port Orford the strangest visitation from the sea that ever puzzled the oldest inhabitant. Robert Forty discovered it floating in the bay and went out to it in a boat and secured the wonder. It was a fine new Revenue flag 2 1/2 by 4 feet, fastened to the top of a short round staff, which was stuffed in a casting with a hole in the center and the casting was securely fastened on three four-foot planks, which made a base not easily capsized and buoyant enough to float the upper stories. The flag is of fine make and uninjured; but the question is who set it afloat? Where and why?

ACT PLEASES COL. ROESSLER

Government Engineer Expresses Hopes For Work on Coos Bay.

Colonel S. W. Roessler, the engineer in charge of the government river and harbor improvement work in the Northwest, is highly gratified over the acceptance of his plans for the improvement of the Coos Bay bar and harbor by the board of engineers at Washington. While Colonel Roessler will shortly be transferred from this territory, he will go with a firm belief in the future of Coos Bay and with a determination to help it whenever he can. This is the tenor of a letter which Secretary Walter Lyon of the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce has received. The letter is self explanatory and is as follows:

"I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 23d instant, and copy of communication from the Chief of Engineers acknowledging receipt of your resolutions relative to my being ordered out of this district. Since the receipt of this letter, the orders have been issued to take effect soon after the first of July.

"Thru you I wish to express my appreciation of the support that I have uniformly received from the Marshfield Chamber of Commerce in the matter of developing plans for the future improvement of Coos Bay and Coos Bay entrance. If the dispatches from Washington are correct, it would seem that the Advisory Board of Engineers at Washington and the Chief of Engineers have all concurred in my recommendation for the construction of a dredge to be used in deepening the bar, and for the work of improving the interior harbor as far up as Marshfield. The news was very gratifying to me, and I am sure it must have been to the people of Coos Bay."

Dr. M. O. Stemmler expects to leave soon for New York city where he will take a post graduate course at the original post graduate medical school, perfecting himself still further in the medical profession. Mrs. Stemmler and the children will accompany him as far as Iowa where they will visit relatives and friends until his return. They expect to be absent several months. Dr. Stemmler's practice will be left in the hands of Drs. Leep and Johnson.

N. O. Dodge had an experience in the train wreck on the Southern Pacific near Pinole, California, that he does not care to have repeated. He was on his way home from San Francisco when the accident occurred. Three men were killed outright, one died the following day, and three were injured. The coach Mr. Dodge was in slid off its trucks and his first thought was that they were going thru a bridge, but the coach stopped abruptly and gave them a severe shaking up. The engineer, fireman, a tramp and J. M. Cummings, an express guard, were killed. The latter is supposed to be the gentleman who visited Myrtle Point some weeks ago on a secret mission. His home was at Portland.

John C. Carl and John Myers of Norway got after a flock of 16 or 17 white pelicans that settled down in that vicinity last week and killed seven of the big birds. One specimen they brought to town measured eight feet from tip to tip of the wings. The pelican is rather rare in this section, and these are

John Folk, aged 62, a former resident of this vicinity and well favorably known to many people of Myrtle Point, was killed in a runaway accident at Oak Creek, 11 miles east of Roseburg. He found the other horse at the Folk home and two miles further down the road the lifeless form of the unfortunate German was found lying in the road.
