The policy of the Coos Bay Times will be Republican in politics, with the independence of which President Roosevelt is the leading exponent.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM H. TAFT.

The selection of William H. Taft to be the standard bearer of the Republican party in the approaching presidential contest, again signalizes the high calling to which that party is directed. If great intellect, great executive and judicial ability, training, experience, education and uncorrupted and incorruptible statesmanship and character will satisfy the American majority, the nominee of the party will be the next president. The most popular man in the Republic today is Theodore Roosevelt. His popularity rests upon the disinterested and forceful manner in which he has inaugurated certain policies which were not only timely, but so much needed that without them Republican government was likely to become a farce and a by-word among the nations. With a sincerity which marks his fame as far from transitory, he has insisted on sacrificing his personal preference to what he believes to be the nation's good by repeating Washington's example of declining a third term for the presidential office. Washington's example of more than a century has been revived by the most popular president since Washington's time. William H. Taft, part and parcel of Roosevelt policies, great leader and adviser, yet independent and strong as Cromwell himself, is not only the logical successor of the great President, but has elements of strength which no president has united in his own person since the days of John Quincy Adams at least.

If the Republican party is sincere in its professions of fealty to Roosevelt's standards, William H. Taft will be supported without diminution by Republican states, and if the American people are sincere in their desire to keep overgrown trusts and swollen fortunes within limits the same majorities which have approved Roosevelt's policies will be pronounced in favor of Taft. Taft will carry, not merely the standard of Roosevelt, but the standard of free America and honest methods to victory. The American people know this and knowing it they can not afford to change from the known to the unknown.

Particularly is this true on the Pacific coast. Here the people realize that no man knows their needs and is more interested in their advancement than William H. Taft. He knows the Pacific as no other Caucasian statesman of Europe or America knows it. He knows the Orient as no other American statesman knows it. He knows the Panama canal better than any other politician in the world. He knows more about the political economies of South American republics and the economic and political needs of the Central American and insular parts of America than any man living. This is an equipment which no president—not even Roosevelt, ever possessed in the same degree. The next four years are fraught with unmeasured and immeasurable importance to the Pacific coast. Its commercial development, the improvement of its waterways, the reclamation of its desert areas, the fostering of its trade with the new and awakening Asiatic nations, demand the election of Taft. No other man will do.

Hello neighbor. You must not miss it! What? The "High Jinks" of Coos Bay Camp No. 196 W. O. W., Saturday evening, June 20, 1908. It'll be a hummer, sure. If you are not there by 8:30, our patrol-wagon may be put in commission and we have specials sworn in to assist Neighbors Gage, Carter and Condon. A hint to the wise—get wise.

WHAT THEY SAY

GOOD EVENING.

Let us have faith that right makes might, and in this faith, let us, to the end, dare to do our duty, as we understand it. —Abraham Lincoln.

It was a pleasant day in June, And great was the convention— The sun was riding high at noon, And the land was all attention. "Alabama!" called the clerk. And the convention went daft When a delegate showed his head Out in the seething mass and said, "Count 22 for Taft!"

The Cannon men turn pale as ghosts, And the Hughes men gasped for breath— The men for Fairbanks hung to posts As colorless as death. "Arkansas!" the clerk exclaimed. And the hall shook fore and aft When a spy teller, white of hair, Hopped to the main deck of his chair. And cried, "Eighteen for Taft!"

The Fairbanks men exuded groans, And the Cannon men shed tears— And the Hughes men uttered none but moans. That once had uttered cheers, "California!" boomed the clerk, And the whole convention laughed When the Golden State man arose And shrilly shouted at the foes "Count 20 more for Taft!"

The Hughes men looked at the Cannon men, And the Fairbanks men, from prayers And grieving, joined the others when They pulled their Teddy Bears, And they all rushed up on the platform high, As men who had gone daft— And when the din and the tumult died, And the dust had settled some inside, The candidate was Taft.

Adapted.

It is difficult to philosophize with a case of dyspepsia.

In talking, as in shooting, one should aim at a mark.

It is surprising what a pretty girl can do with a dimple in her cheek!

You can trust a woman to fill out her clothes in the funniest places.

It is all right to do a driving business, but don't be a human hammer.

Some Coos Bay men cannot be even a carbon copy of a successful man.

"A close relative, says a Coos Bay young man, 'is one from whom you cannot borrow money.'"

Some Coos Bay people care more about the pudding than the truth and they prefer to chew the rag instead of chewing the string.

Some Coos Bay men will lose $1 worth of time standing around a cigar counter waiting for a friend to come along and buy them a five-cent cigar.

"Hard drinking has lost his money and his reputation as well." "Not altogether."

"No?" "No, he still has his reputation for hard drinking."

Jay Tower is said to be engaged on a new song that will undoubtedly be one of the most popular successes of the year. It is in the nature of a pathetic ballad entitled "He Married Himself to a Marcel Wave, and Now He's All at Sea."

A woman went into Norton & Hansen's yesterday and said to Warner Ogren, "Let me have a copy of Antony and Cleopatra."

"Yes, ma'am," Warner replied, "one dollar, please." "Dear me," she answered, "I've only got fifty cents. Just give me Antony."

A pale, wan woman on her death-bed said in a weak voice to her husband: "Henry, if I die, promise me one thing."

"Gladly, my poor darling. What is it I am to promise?" "Promise me that you will marry Mary Simpson."

The man started. "But," he said, "I thought you hated her."

"I do, Henry," the dying woman whispered. "I want to get even with her."

NOTICE.

All property owners or tenants who have not had their stove-pipes and chimneys cleaned are urged to have them cleaned at once as the "Chimney Sweep" will leave the Bay before long and the opportunity will be gone. Some people cleaned their stove-pipes and let their chimneys go. The chimney should be cleaned as well as the stove-pipes as they are just as dangerous. The "Chimney Sweep" will climb on top of your houses and see if the flue is in good shape or needs cleaning. He does his work satisfactorily and his charges are reasonable.

J. W. CARTER, City Marshal and Fire Warden.
