PORTLAND MAN PLEASSED WITH COOS BAY COUNTRY

Prominent Business Man Grows Enthusiastic Over Country's Prospects, Climate and Scenery.

C. A. WARREN, general manager of The Warren Publicity Company, one of the leading advertising agencies of Portland, concluded a few days visit on Coos Bay this morning and left on a brief business trip to the Coquille Valley towns. Mr. Warren expressed himself as greatly surprised at the extent of the varied resources of Coos Bay.

"I had heard considerable of Coos Bay before coming here," Mr. Warren remarked to a Times' reporter, "but somehow the idea prevails in Portland that the place is being over-boomed. I was agreeably surprised to find just the opposite is true. Why, if some of the inland towns had one quarter your advantages they would be making the country ring with their praises. It is such a beauty spot, too. I was quite unprepared for such splendid scenery and the climate is quite ideal so different from the hot, sweltering weather that I left behind in Portland. I made a trip up South Coos River yesterday in a launch with Mr. and Mrs. Stutsman and Mr. A. H. Powers and nowhere on the coast is there anything that equals it. When you get a railroad, Coos Bay will become one of the most popular summer resorts on the Pacific coast. You may say for me that when I return to Portland I will be a genuine Coos Bay booster."
