A HOUSE OF GOVERNORS.

Since the gathering of governors in Washington a pamphlet written a few years ago by W. G. Gordon, formerly editor of the Saturday Evening Post advocating the House of Governors has again been brought to light and discussion. We quote from the pamphlet:

"It is proposed that the Governors of the forty-five (now forty-six) States meet annually for a session of two to three weeks to discuss, consult, and confer on vital questions affecting the welfare of the States, the unifying of State laws, and the closer unity of the States a nation. The House of Governors would have no lawmaking power, nor should it ever aspire to such power. Its force would be in inspiration, in influence. The Governors would seek to unite on a general basis of action on great questions to be submitted to the legislatures of the respective States in the Governor's messages. It would seem that an august, dignified body of forty-five Governors, representing their states, with the law-making power of forty-five legislatures behind them, should in time become an inherent part in the American idea of self-government and a powerful factor for good in the nation.

"In the congress of the United States the senators, chosen as they are by the State legislatures, nominally represent their states, but not the people of their states, for the latter have no direct voice in their selection. The members of the House of Representatives do not represent their states, but simply districts of their states. With ties to their constituents and with duties and obligations to them, they may in theory have the interest of the entire state as a matter of paramount importance in their hearts, but in fact they never lose sight of the finality of value in the Congressional district. The governor of the state, however, is elected by the people, is directly responsible to the people and is in constant touch with the people keeping his fingers close-pressed on the pulse of their needs and problems. The voice of the governors, therefore, in the proposed new house means a new, direct, vital representation of the people in the affairs of the state and in the harmony of the states making up the nation, such as the people have never yet had in the life of the Republic."

MAIL ORDER HOUSES

WHAT THEY DON'T DO Does Mr. Mail Order ever offer to buy your butter, eggs, potatoes, or other products, and give you a cent or two more than the market affords? No. All he asks for is your cash; nothing else. Now be honest yourself, buy at home; help support your own town. Make your own home more valuable. Put dollars in your purse. Let Mr. Humbug sell in his own town. Instead of him fooling you, you fool him by trading at home.

The mail order business is the quack doctor of commerce. It promises much and guarantees nothing. Like patent medicine, the directions are always on the inside, and you have to buy a nonreturnable package before you find out what is on the inside.

No mail order house helped to build a little school house in your district; or helped make the good roads past your door. No mail order house ever sold you a vehicle and when you were in distress, and told you to let that little account go until after harvest, or until you were better able to pay it. No mail order house ever sold you a vehicle and spent every cent of its profit in your own community where you and your neighbors could get it back again. No mail order house ever shined its patent leather shoes under your table and rejoiced with you when you

WITH THE TOAST AND TEA

GOOD EVENING. High art consists neither in altering nor improving nature; but in seeking thruout nature for "whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are pure!" RUSKIN.

WHAT'S HE WORTH. "He's got a million dollars," They tell me. He has not—The million bones the fellow owns Are what his father got.

"His father made the million," Nope—not by any chance That bunch of stuff came from the bluff That's known as High Finance.

"Oh, well—he's worth a million," Who is—that fuzzy lamb? Not so, my friend—it's his to spend, But he's not worth a damn!

Dr. Housewath has pinked his first deer. The story reached the city yesterday and was soon current among his many friends. The Doctor was one of a party of hunters who left the city last week for some sport in the vicinity of the Gould ranch above Alegany. The first day out he was riding in advance of the party his eagle eye penetrating the forests depths in search of game with the unerring accuracy of a Sherlock Holmes. Soon, he descried by the side of the bridge path he was following and just a little in advance, the head of a magnificent buck. He was off his horse quicker than Dorsey Kreitzer could figure the interest on one dollar; one year at one per cent. The sharp crack of his trusty rifle rang out on the morning air and he called to Col. Grimes and John Coke who were following to hurry forward to see the way an expert could do the trick of getting a deer. The echo of the shot died away in the neighboring hills but the deer continued gazing out over the scene without so much as the flutter of an eyelid. The Doctor murmured something that Colonel Grimes said sounded like, "Oh! Fudge! I missed him." Then he threw the rifle to his shoulder and blazed away again. Once more the echo reverberated thru the surrounding trees, but the deer continued staring out over the valley with no more interest in the fusillade of shots than E. H. Harriman has in the Drain railway. This time the Doctor was more emphatic in his remarks. John Coke says it sounded like "Mary had a little lamb," but Colonel Grimes says lamb was not the word, but that it rhymes with lamb. The Colonel also intimated that the Doctor had contracted the disease known as "buck fever."

The medical man paid no heed to his friends but continued to pour shot in the direction of the deer as rapidly as a Gatling gun. Finally, the deer swayed a little and toppled over. "Stuffed, by gum," the doctor exclaimed. Then it developed that the deer was one that had been killed by Tom Bennett and James Polhemus and knowing that Dr. Housewath would pass that way they had propped the deer up in the brush and he remained there until the doctor had poured so much lead into him that he toppled over from the weight of the bullets. But he got his deer all right.

"I see the restaurants are doing considerable advertising these days," remarked Jake Goldie, "but they are not as enterprising as a friend of mine in Los Angeles who opened an eating place there and hung out a sign which read: Pies like mother used to make, 5c. Pies like mother used to try to make, 10c. Hix—I always have Dr. Emdee. When my mother-in-law was at death's door he pulled her through. Dix—Which way did he pull her?"

A Coy Young Thing. The following advertisement recently appeared: "Being aware that it is indelicate to advertise for a husband, I refrain from so doing; but if any gentleman should be inclined to advertise for a wife, I will answer were glad, nor spoke encouraging words in affliction, or stood with uncovered head beside the grave when your children died. No, the mail order house is after money. Every dollar it can get its hands on will be jerked out of your neighborhood forever. The mail order house may bear upon its face the semblance of friendship but no human heart beats under its cloak of hypocrisy. Sentiment to it is unknown. The whole institution is as cold and bloodless as a corpse.

the advertisement without delay. I am young, am domesticated, and considered ladylike. Apply," etc.—Philippines Gossip.

Ten Telephone Commandments.

- 1. Thou shalt call by number only. 2. Thou shalt always answer thy telephone at the first sound of the bell. 3. Thou shalt not use the telephone when the lightning cracks in the sky, for verily I say thou endangerest thyself and will not be answered. 4. When the operator says, "Shake up your transmitter," thou shalt shake, even if it givest thee paralysis. 5. Thou shalt not call again directly after ringing off, else the operator deem it a ring-off and not answer. 6. Thou shalt not expect to get a party in another town directly after calling, for the line may be busy or the party not to be found. 7. Always shalt thou ring off when through speaking, for it will save confusion all around. 8. Thou shalt not rave and cuss at the operator if she does not answer on the dot, for she is busy and will attend to thy wants as soon as possible. 9. Never shalt thou flirt with the operator nor force her to converse with thee for it doth impair the service. 10. Above all never shalt thou get huffy and lose thy temper, but be thou courteous and pleasant voiced, and remember especially that thine is not the only wire in the cable.—Telephony.

COQUILLE CULLINGS.

Items of Interest From Coos County Seat as Told by The Herald.

MARRIED—At Drain, July 4, 1908, John W. Krewson and Sadie Stephens, Rev. A. J. Starmer, officiating.

D. L. Anderson is in Coos from the Soldiers Home at Roseburg on his annual visit with his daughters, Mrs. Jeff Wilson, of this city, and Mrs. Jas. Stinson, of near Johnson's mill.

H. L. Gill of Woodburn, Oregon, and publisher at the Independent, published in that place is here visiting his brother-in-law, J. S. Barton of this city. Mr. Gill is accompanied by his daughter, Miss Virginia.

Prof. and Mrs. McKnight, late of Salt Lake, Utah, who have been in this city several weeks, started down the coast Thursday and will visit Port Orford and other points during the summer for the professor's health.

The Cody camp at Lampa has been shut down for a short time while some of their roads are being extended and machinery moved. A large boiler was taken through by Monday's train for the city of Myrtle Point, which will be used to furnish the power for the new pumping plant to be installed to enlarge the town's supply of water.

At the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. W. H. Hammack, near Johnson's mill, on Sunday, July 12, 1908, at 11 a. m., Mr. Thomas Franklin Moore and Miss Nettie Stone were joined in holy wedlock. Rev. Thos. Barklow of Myrtle Point, officiating. The groom, who is a prosperous stock raiser of southern Curry county, was accompanied by his brother, Walter Moore, and a cousin, Walton Miller. There were a number of relatives and friends of the bride present. The bride is a daughter of the late David Stone and has lived in Coos county since childhood, having lived on Fishtap, Bandon and Myrtle Point, where she has a host of friends.

Mrs. Harry Hemsley who came up from Samoa, California, lately started for Salem accompanied by her grandmother, Mrs. Gilman. Mrs. Hemsley informs us that her husband started last week for Cardovia, Alaska, where he has employment on the Copper River railroad.

Arthur McDuffee who has been in Washington for some time arrived at his old home the last of the week and will take part with our fans in contending for the championship of Coos county.

Mrs. Horace Curren arrived from Portland Friday and will remain for the present with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wilson. Mr. Curren's health is very much broken, and he will travel about for a while.

RHEUMATISM.

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. In fully nine cases out of ten the attack is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. STRENGTH

In a bank lies, first, in the ability and experience of its officers. "The men behind the gun;" second, its board of directors who advise with and direct the officers; and third, the Capital. LIBERALITY—In a bank is its willingness to furnish funds to depositors to assist them in carrying on their legitimate business. Our motto is: "STRONG AND LIBERAL"—Look us up and if you find us deserving, give us your business.
