HEN FIRSTS SNAKE AFTER HARD BATTLE

Peculiar Combat Between Chicken and Reptile Witnessed in Marshfield.

An odd conflict between a hen and a small garter or water snake was witnessed the day before yesterday near the Bodine home in West Marshfield by Mrs. Bodine and Mrs. Hazen. The hen, which is rather large attempted to swallow the snake tail foremost but twice the little reptile succeeded in getting away from her. On the third attempt, the snake was compelled to give up, having been almost pecked to death. The women were surprised at the hen's ability to swallow the reptile and also at a chicken giving battle to a snake. Few have ever witnessed such an occurrence.

To Continue Business.—It is announced that the business of the late August Helming will be continued under the same name. A. Helming & Co., Fred Helming, a brother, who has been in the same line of business at Portland and other Pacific coast cities will have charge.

Missionary Is Here.—The Rev. T. P. Howard of Portland, Sunday school missionary for the Southern Oregon Presbytery of the Presbyterian church is on Coos Bay to aid in the Sunday school extension work. He will speak at the Marshfield Presbyterian church tomorrow.

Horse Hurt in Runaway.—The young son of C. H. Walters, the drayman, had a narrow escape from severe injuries in a runaway yesterday afternoon. While driving down Broadway, a bolt slipped out loosening one side of the tongue. This frightened the horses and made it impossible for the lad to guide them. They turned off Broadway near the Merchant home and the rig striking a stump overturned, young Walters being under the box. The horses broke away but didn't run far as one of the animals had sustained an injury to its hip that caused it to fall. It is feared that the animal will have to be shot. Young Walters was practically uninjured.
