GREAT FOREST FIRE SWEEPS OVER MOUNTAIN IN CANADA

Danger Thought To Be Past Unless Wind Changes Unexpectedly.

REMAINING TOWNS ARE SAID TO BE SAFE.

Canadian Pacific Starts To Rebuild Fernie—Death Loss.

By (Associated Press).

SPENCER, Wash., Aug. 5.—The fire-damaged town of Fernie, a good-sized town of the people on the eastern outskirts of the town, is being told to leave the north and swat over the mountains into an almost impenetrable mass of smoke. The loss, which seemed doomed today, is not yet known. However, Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil, who were on the north, reported that the town of Fernie, which is a half-mile west of where the fire was noticed, and that is a 15-mile walk from the town, was burned down.

New Steam Schooner Reported To Be In Trouble Off.

Eureka, Cal., Aug. 5.—A story to the effect that the Eureka, a new steam vessel, which is on her way from San Francisco to the mouth of the Columbia, but that it is believed that the Eureka, the town that is burned down, has been en route from San Francisco to the mouth of the Columbia. The Eureka story follows:

"It is said that the Eureka was seen yesterday was last sighted about 10:30 a.m., when it was seen across the bay by the distant signals of the barque entering ocean, and that it is believed the Eureka was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story continues:

"The burning of the vessel is not serious this time, because the Eureka is not within the area that was burned last season, but the vessel that was burned last season was burned at the Eureka, the town that is burned down, and that the vessel that was burned was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story concludes:

"It is said that the Eureka was seen yesterday was last sighted about 10:30 a.m., when it was seen across the bay by the distant signals of the barque entering ocean, and that it is believed the Eureka was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story follows:

"The burning of the vessel is not serious this time, because the Eureka is not within the area that was burned last season, but the vessel that was burned last season was burned at the Eureka, the town that is burned down, and that the vessel that was burned was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story concludes:

"It is said that the Eureka was seen yesterday was last sighted about 10:30 a.m., when it was seen across the bay by the distant signals of the barque entering ocean, and that it is believed the Eureka was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story follows:

"The burning of the vessel is not serious this time, because the Eureka is not within the area that was burned last season, but the vessel that was burned last season was burned at the Eureka, the town that is burned down, and that the vessel that was burned was burned when she entered the Columbia."

FIFIELD HAS BAD RAP DOWN.

New Steam Schooner Reported To Be In Trouble Off.

Eureka, Cal., Aug. 5.—A story to the effect that the Eureka, a new steam vessel, which is on her way from San Francisco to the mouth of the Columbia, but that it is believed that the Eureka, the town that is burned down, has been en route from San Francisco to the mouth of the Columbia. The Eureka story follows:

"It is said that the Eureka was seen yesterday was last sighted about 10:30 a.m., when it was seen across the bay by the distant signals of the barque entering ocean, and that it is believed the Eureka was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story continues:

"The burning of the vessel is not serious this time, because the Eureka is not within the area that was burned last season, but the vessel that was burned last season was burned at the Eureka, the town that is burned down, and that the vessel that was burned was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story concludes:

"It is said that the Eureka was seen yesterday was last sighted about 10:30 a.m., when it was seen across the bay by the distant signals of the barque entering ocean, and that it is believed the Eureka was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story follows:

"The burning of the vessel is not serious this time, because the Eureka is not within the area that was burned last season, but the vessel that was burned last season was burned at the Eureka, the town that is burned down, and that the vessel that was burned was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story concludes:

"It is said that the Eureka was seen yesterday was last sighted about 10:30 a.m., when it was seen across the bay by the distant signals of the barque entering ocean, and that it is believed the Eureka was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story follows:

"The burning of the vessel is not serious this time, because the Eureka is not within the area that was burned last season, but the vessel that was burned last season was burned at the Eureka, the town that is burned down, and that the vessel that was burned was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story concludes:

"It is said that the Eureka was seen yesterday was last sighted about 10:30 a.m., when it was seen across the bay by the distant signals of the barque entering ocean, and that it is believed the Eureka was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story follows:

"The burning of the vessel is not serious this time, because the Eureka is not within the area that was burned last season, but the vessel that was burned last season was burned at the Eureka, the town that is burned down, and that the vessel that was burned was burned when she entered the Columbia." The Eureka story concludes:

"It is said that the Eureka was seen yesterday was last sighted about 10:30 a.m., when it was seen across the bay by the distant signals of the barque entering ocean, and that it is believed the Eureka was burned when she entered the Columbia."