

LARGE NUMBER ON EXCURSION

More Than 1,400 People Enjoy Modern Woodmen's Outing at Bandon.

Yesterday was a record-breaker so far as excursions in Coos county are concerned. While a great many of the excursions represented each of Coos Bay's numerous pleasure resorts, the excursion of the Modern Woodmen to Bandon-by-the-Sea was the most remarkable, it is said, in the history of the county. More than 1,400 persons took part, and the character of those who participated was so high that no disorder of even the magnitude of a ruffle occurred.

While a great number were from Myrtle Point, Bandon and Coquille, yet the surprise to those in charge of the arrangements at Coquille, was complete when the Marshfield train consisting of every available car which the local railroad company could command, all loaded to the coupling pins, arrived. Almost everybody had decided to have a picnic at Bandon and took advantage of the Modern Woodmen excursion to enjoy it.

Many had never been in Bandon before. The ride by boat, down the beautiful Coquille, whose rich valley teems with the evidences of prosperity, and blooms with promises of a great future, was regarded as delight, but the scenery at Bandon-by-the-Sea surpassed anything which the imagination can create. The grotesque cliffs which stand out of the tumult of waters and towering from sixty to 100 feet high, present a weird and almost mystical appearance, incline toward the land, and seem to be retreating after a battle with the conquering sea. The Seven Rocks fartherest from the shore, the rear guard, so to speak, sustain the brunt of the seas fury and its spray is thrown far above them descending like a mist. The altar of the cathedral where a giant monk kneels and while another giant monk seems to be slowly and mournfully approaching at a distance rouses the imagination. The tower rocks nearer shore resist the onslaught of the sea calmly enough, but brace themselves to receive the onslaught of waters and keep their faces landwards. This broken and wild shore is equal in grandeur and attractiveness to anything in the world, and the long line of coast which can be seen from the heights, pictures the beauty and power of the ocean, completely and sublimely.

The clam bake was greatly enjoyed. Rock oysters, one of the delicacies peculiar to the Pacific coast, were furnished by the painful and there was a plentiful supply of all the necessary accompaniments of a picnic lunch. Although surprised by the size of the crowd, the management was equal to the occasion and everybody was pleased. The day was ideal.

The train left here at 7 o'clock in the morning and returned about 10:45 o'clock in the evening. A large number missed the train in the morning.

SHOULD MEN CUSS AT HOME?

NEW JERSEY JUDGE SAYS IT IS ALL RIGHT AND NEW YORK WOMEN DIFFER IN THEIR VIEWS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—"It is better for a man to swear in his own home than anywhere else!" exclaimed Mrs. Belle de Rivera, president of the Equal Suffrage League, when she was asked whether she upheld the decision of Justice Bray, of Orange, N. J., that a man could cuss as much as he pleased in his own home.

"Although I detest swearing," she explained, "I'll have to admit that if a man's bound to swear he will, and no woman can prevent him. If he finds that oaths help to relieve his feelings he has a right to let them loose, I presume, provided he uses them impersonally, but if he applies them to any member of his family he should be punished."

"The magistrate in this case should have found out whether it was impersonal swearing or whether it was directed at some person. If it was the latter he erred in letting the man go free."

Favors Swearing Room.
Mrs. Borran Wells, the English suffragette, visiting here, takes a slightly less liberal view.

"A man may as well swear in his home if he feels there is no other way of relieving himself," she said, "but he must not be allowed the whole house. There should be one room where he can go and close the door whenever he feels a fit of temper coming on."

"Of course I object to what you Yankees call cussin'. It shows ill-breeding and a lack of control over oneself. But I greatly prefer a man who gets hot and lets out an oath or two to one who only sulks when he is provoked, and says, 'Yes, dearest,' as though he were the unhappiest individual on earth."

"If women who have swearing husbands would only take a day off and cuss, too, I think it would cure the men."
"The home is the last place where a man should be allowed to swear; the children are to be considered."
