AT THE THEATRE.
Those who went to the Masonic Opera House last night expecting to have a good laugh were not disappointed. "Oh, What A Night" was the play and everybody laughed as much as possible. The plot of the comedy is a good one and somewhat new. Miss Harper appeared to good advantage, and Mr. Detrick did well with his part. Tonight "In the Shadow of the Cross," one of the strongest plays in the repertoire, will be presented. In the character of Coralle in this play, Miss Harper has won much fame. It gives her every opportunity to display her talents as an emotional actress and to display some of her beautiful gowns. The story of the play is very interesting and holds the audience in close attention until the final fall of the curtain. It is one of those rarely good plays and will be given with the best skill of this talented star and her excellent company.
