THE FACULTY FOR DAMNING.

Of all the businesses that have to do with the public, the newspaper is the one that is most sharply in line for the praise and censure of the masses it represents, or tries to represent. At all events and times it is the open target for criticism, be it praising, or damning, or "damning with faint praise;" it never escapes comment, and it offers 365 fronts of offense or endorsement, in the year.

The man behind the newspaper is perennially grinning or growling as the tide of expression varies day by day, but that is nothing to the public he serves. His mistakes are not like other men's, easily and completely negated or hidden or palliated; when he blunders, it is plain black and white and with such publicity that it is accentuated and beyond all palliation; if he tells the truth about people or circumstances or events there is always that contingent to whom the truth is a terror, a menace of dread, and he hears from them quickly and growlingly; if he deals in color, ambiguity, pretense, sophistry; if he smothers and hides and shields and distorts, no matter on what ground of social, political, commercial or moral expediency, no matter what the merit of the end he serves by so doing, there is the other contingent that demands the facts about other people than themselves, and he is made to feel their displeasure and lack of countenance.

The faculty for damning seems to be cultivated a bit more than the kinder disposition to endorse and justify him in his big task of giving, and commenting upon, the current things of interest which he offers as news. This is unfortunate, too, because the reporter and the editor, generally speaking, are cheerfully disposed and honestly inspired and would rather give a pleasant account of their communities and people than to disparage them. The public should take insight into these conditions once in a while, if only to ascertain how often, and how unjustly, it censures its local press. It is well to understand the sheer difficulty of always telling the truth openly.

WALLA WALLA AFTER FAKE ADVERTISING. The Retail Grocers' and General Merchants' Protective Association of Walla Walla has inaugurated a campaign against fake and scheme advertising, says the Walla Walla Bulletin, that is intended to and will save the business men a vast amount of money that is yearly taken out of the city by these methods and without giving the merchant any value whatever. There is scarcely a day but some scheme is worked in this city.

A similar movement has been started in a number of cities throughout the state, and the professional advertising grafter will find himself up against a pretty stiff game as soon as the various merchants' associations get into active running order. In the future all scheme advertising solicitors will be referred to the association's headquarters, 215 Ransom building, and their projects will be acted on by a committee of three. If this committee decides not to give its approval the members of the association will be barred from patronizing the scheme.

DEBS COMES WEST.

(By Associated Press.) CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 31.—The "Red Special" carrying Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist candidate for the presidency, James H. Brower, candidate for governor of Illinois, and other prominent men of that political party, left here today on an "Educational campaign" trip to the Pacific coast. Stops will be made at the important cities and towns intervening.

With the Toast and Tea

GOOD EVENING. It does not matter how many, but how good books you have. It is much better to trust yourself to a few good authors than to wander thru several.

How Did You Die? Did you tackle that trouble that came your way With a resolute heart and cheerful?

Or hide your face from the light of day With a craven soul and fearful? Oh, a trouble's a ton, or a trouble's an ounce,

Or a trouble is what you make it. And it isn't the fact that you're hurt that counts,

But only how did you take it? You are beaten to earth? Well, well, what's that?

Come up with a smiling face! It's nothing against you to fall down flat,

But to lie there—that's disgrace. The harder you're thrown, why the higher you bounce,

Be proud of your blackened eye. It isn't the fact that you're licked that counts;

It's how did you fight—and why? And though you be done to the death, what then?

If you played your part in the world of men, Why, the critic will call it good! Death comes with a crawl, or comes with a pounce,

And whether he's slow or spry, It isn't the fact that you're dead that counts,

But only, how did you die? ANON. Woman has the courage of her defects; seldom of her defects.

The hair was given to woman long, to give her an occupation.

The great advantage to man in marriage is that it protects him from his pleasures.

There is never much kicking about the rules of the game by those who happen to win.

It is the age of the topsy-turvy—all our young women are old now, all our old women young!

A young person's kind of wit is usually the kind that gives an old person nervous prostration.

The rigid concealment of her imperfections is woman's first law; man has more the courage of his defects.

The petticoat in need is a petticoat indeed; however masculine a woman is, she reverts to the woman when necessary.

There is no education to equal that of love; it puts us in sympathy with nature, and human nature with all that is good or beautiful.

Contentment. There is little joy in climbing where we need not dread a fall; The one prize we covet vainly is the dearest of them all;

Man forbidden to, has ever longed to, since the world began, And, contrarily, he never cares to when he knows he can.

The first words of a bride when driving from the church were: "I am so glad we are married; I was getting so tired of pretending to be in love with you!"

If a man tells a lie, which is predominant—his remorse at having told it or his pride in having told one that passed for the truth?

SOUND UMPQUA BAR. U. S. Engineer Reports 17 Feet of Water There.

A gentleman informed the Sentinel that while he was at Gardiner, a member of the United States corps of Engineers had been at work surveying and sounding the mouth of the Umpqua and the inside harbor. Our informant learned that the engineer would make a favorable report and the soundings on the bar showed 17 feet of water with a white sandy bottom.—Coquille Sentinel.

LAUNCH HUME BOAT. New Craft For Rogue River Salmon King Nears Completion.

The Coquille Sentinel says: "The launching of R. D. Hume's new boat took place last Friday evening at the Roy place. The new boat is 61 feet long and 45 feet beam and is registered to carry 45 tons. She is equipped with a 75-horsepower Fairbanks-Morse gasoline engine. It is expected that she will be ready to go into commission in about three weeks. Mr. Ellingson, the builder expects to start the second schooner for Mr. Hume in a few weeks. This will give him three gasoline schooners to ply between Wedderburn and different coast points. With the building of his cold storage at Port Orford it will not be necessary for his boats to make long trips as he intends to ship his product from the latter place after being brought from his cannery and cold storage at Wedderburn."

CLEAR COOS LAND. Smith-Powers Company Removes Much Timber.

The Coquille Sentinel says: "The Smith-Powers Logging Co., who are operating near this city, are making preparations to move their two camps further in the timber. Camp 1 moves to Section 20 and Camp 2 moves to Section 32. Mr. Powers informed the Sentinel that the company intended to reforest most of their logged off lands and the bench lands would be cleared, seeded and used for grazing lands. This is in line with all of the large timber companies of the present day which are commencing to look forward to the future when timber will not be as plentiful as it is today and they realize that reforestation is necessary for the future generations. In removing the timber it will clear up thousands of acres of land which will make ideal fruit lands and which will bring thousands of dollars to the county."

All former patients and others desirous of meeting the doctor are requested to call at those hours for consultation.
