REAL ESTATE'S NEW EL DORADO

world of pluck and energy to say nothing of a big load of money to make a city there. With the harbor out of mind, one might wonder at even a lunatic stopping on that island for a day, but there is the secret. They have a magnificent harbor. Right off the wharf, which does not extend more than seventy or eighty feet from shore, the water is fifty-five feet deep and a great portion of the harbor will measure more than one hundred feet in depth. It is from one to two miles wide and several miles long and completely landlocked. In the four weeks I was there I did not see its waters rough enough to make it unsafe for the frailest rowboat.

The Grand Trunk people claim they will have their road completed in 1911, but others say it will not be done before 1913. The understanding now is that Prince Rupert lots will be ready for sale May 1, 1909. The only chance I see to make a little money is to be on the ground at the opening, select something good and make a quick turn in the boom that is very apt to follow for a short time. Then there will be a long dull spell until the road is completed and then another boom. The values must naturally be only speculative until the city is built and there will be no use for a city until the road is finished. The eyes of speculators the world over are on Prince Rupert and I would not be surprised to hear of some wild doings next spring. They tell me that for wild booms the crazy "canucks" have got us beat a mile. It is generally believed that the property will be disposed of by auction and if it is sold that way, I will not be surprised to see some very fancy prices paid. This belief is based upon the statements of some people as to what they thought certain property was worth. If such people back their judgment with money at the opening there will be little chance for an advance in property values for several years following the first sale.

"Be upon the ground and select your property personally and do not buy from any company or agent. Of course, this advice applies in most cases, but it is particularly applicable to Prince Rupert. There will be soon lots there which will not be worth ten dollars in ten thousand years.

"My opinion as to the first boom at the opening, the slump and depression to follow and then the revival at the completion of the railroad is concurred in by nearly all persons who expressed themselves freely to me.

"As for me, I am just a little afraid to tackle the proposition on the first boom. If I did not get out quickly I would have to carry my load four or five years and I would rather have the other "sucker" do that. One would play a safer game by waiting and buying six months before the road is completed.

"While in the north, I stood one day on a bridge over a creek of clear water and watched a run of salmon. I never saw anything like it. There were thousands of them, all of one size, or nearly so, and weighing about twenty pounds each. They filled the stream and were so crowded that they had not sufficient room for free action. I could have taken a pitch fork and loaded a wagon in a few minutes.

COQUILLE CULLINGS

Coos County Seat's Events As Told By The Sentinel.

Ed Hunter was painfully but not seriously pinched by logs at Bester's camp last Friday. He was brought to the hotel in this place.

There are always pathetic matters that are called into court, and the term just passed was not lacking in that line. One of Coos County's most respected citizens was dragged into court for the first time in his life by his grandson. We learn however that the young man got worsted to the tune of $200 costs, which may be a valuable lesson to him.

Fred Johnson and Glenn Barker killed a brace of bruins on the latter's place near Fairview this week. One was slain Tuesday evening, and it was a monster specimen of the black bear family who had all but killed a sheep a short time before.

Orvil Dodge, the delegate selected by the council and mayor of this city to attend the Trans-Mississippi Congress which convenes at San Francisco next Tuesday, expects to leave therefor either today or tomorrow, via Roseburg.

Captain Ott Willard of the speedy Wolverine, moved his family back from Bandon Tuesday, and they are again quartered on the place just south of Coquille.

Vernon Davenport, formerly of this valley, a son of J. A. Davenport and wife, is now clerking in a store at Sisson, California. He left this section early last spring.

Allen Collier and Jas. Thompson are planning to leave for Douglas county Sunday morning in quest of China pheasants and other game. They may be gone three weeks.

Pioneer Walter Drane came in from his mining claim on Bolivar Mountain Saturday evening, traveling on three legs. The old gentleman was so unfortunate as to sprain his ankle, and had to give up development work and come home.

Mike Summerlin was down from the ranch on the North Fork early in the week, and reports that he is still waging war on the many panthers, wildcats and other varmints of his section of the country.

Zenia C. Strang has added to his place on the North Fork by buying a piece of land off the well known Woods ranch adjoining. Zeina's place up there is leased to his brother-in-law, Robert Wagner.

John Galardi surrendered his lease to the T. P. Hanley place, six miles down the river, on Sept. 15, selling his portion of the stock to Mr. Hanley who is again in charge. John is undecided what he will engage in next, but will continue to live on the dairy until spring.

An old-time Coquillian in the person of Ward Felter arrived in town from Portland last Monday, and took the boat the same afternoon for Bandon to visit his brother, John T. Felter. Eighteen years have passed since the gentleman last saw Coquille, and of course he sees many changes. He now lives in Portland and is engaged in the mining business.

time in immediately investigating the nature of the malady. Follow strictly your physician's instructions, if there is any one to blame let him shoulder the responsibility.

With good hygienic surroundings and thorough isolation of diphtheria patients, and proper fumigation after the disease is over there should be no fear of its spreading.

that united in holy wedlock our young friend, Everett R. Hatcher and Miss Henrietta M. Nelson, the ceremony taking place quietly at the M. E. South parsonage on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. The bride is a popular young lady from Norway, and to the happy couple, who will probably reside in this city, we extend best wishes for future happiness.
