STRUGGLE AND CONTEST.

Live is a contest. It means a struggle. It involves toil and hardship. Birth, the beginning of life, typifies our whole existence. We come forth in labor and pain, and our first utterance is a cry. Life indeed has many moments of pleasure and joy. It contains much of beauty and love. We have our moments when we can rest from our labors and inspire our souls for the work soon to be resumed.

But the characteristic mark of life is labor. The man who reasons upward instead of downward, knows that there must be a large and sufficient reason for this. He therefore rejoices in the work he is forced to do, in the contest he is obliged to make and even in the pain and trouble he is under the necessity of bearing. He believes that he is part of a divine plan for the upbuilding of character. He is sustained by the faith that he is being tested in the battle of life, trained, it may be, for something higher and better. Therefore he does not seek to escape the contest or the work. He may even glory in the thought that by some pain or trouble he is being fitted for a special responsibility, just as the martyr in the old days of persecution thanked God for the very flames that were burning his flesh.

We need in these days some of the courage and enthusiasm of the old martyrs, says the Wall Street Journal. Instead of that, too many of us are cultivating the lower materialistic conception of life, as being something we must get the most out of now, "because we will be a long time dead."

It would seem as if the chief thought of our age is how to make life easier, how to make work lighter, how to avoid poverty, how to get rich quick, how to obtain luxuries, how to escape responsibilities. Thus we are running after every agitator, every demagogue, who offers us some new scheme by which somebody may do for us what nature intended that we should do for ourselves, just as many are continually running after some dishonest promoter who offers a scheme for getting rich by some quicker way than by the slow and painful process of industry, self-denial and hard study of business conditions.

A low conception of life is responsible for a brutal individualism, an individualism that makes for crime at the bottom of society and for the indifference and selfishness of tyranny and greed at the top. It is responsible for an individualism that makes for excessive luxury on the one hand and an anarchical defiance and hatred of orderly society on the other.

It is also responsible for the bulk of the socialism of today, although there is much socialism that parades itself in the garments of Christian brotherhood. A materialistic theory of life naturally leads one to seek means of making this life easy and luxurious, regardless of the fact that this life, rightly regarded, is a training school, a West Point, where we are under strict discipline and hard practice. The prevailing thought of the time is not how to make this life produce the highest type of individual character, but how to make this life as comfortable as possible.

With the Toast and Tea

GOOD EVENING.

The men who do things, and not the men who merely talk about things, are those who bless the world. —Selected.

"Linespizzi."

Oh, gentle Hello Girl, and dear, What mean'st the answer that I hear In thy sweet accents, all too clear: "Linespizzi?"

With deep respect I summon thee, And say, "Wilt give me one 2-3?" And then it is thou answer'st me: "Linespizzi."

I wait a while, as e'en I must Then low I bow me in the dust, And seek thy favor. Vain is trust. "Linespizzi."

Anon I wait, as wait I may, While gray and cheerless grows the day; Still but one word I hear thee say: "Linespizzi."

It matters not how mad I get, How much I paw and fume and fret, Thou answer'st, answer'st, answer'st yet: "Linespizzi."

A gentle Hello Girl, and shy, Once tried to catch the Line on High, Saint Peter smiled, and made reply: "Linespizzi."

—Waterhouse's Paper. Cultivate bad habits and you'll reap miseries.

The hobby of some Coos Bay women is a hubby.

The flower of the family is never the blooming idiot.

The hard part about an easy job is the getting thereof.

It's easier to talk philosophy than it is to live up to it.

Many a man makes a fool of himself by acting smart.

Some Coos Bay people act as if they had a corner on goodness.

With words as with sunbeams—the more they are condensed the deeper they burn.

The coal bill in some Coos Bay homes should be light for the frequency of heated discussions make it warm for everyone.

The man who always has his own way without dispute must find life terribly monotonous. One of the joys of existence is overcoming opposition.

We have it from the Washington Star that the president is going to visit the land of the rhinoceros and the hippopotami. Also the elephant, tiger eye and the cannibal, to say nothing of the other deadly beasts and serpents of the jungleski.

Miss Howe—I suppose you visited all the points of interest while you were away.

Miss Wise—No; we were so busy addressing post cards to our friends that we hadn't time to do much sightseeing.

"Well, anyway, you must admit that merit will rise to the top," remarked Jake Goldie during the discussion.

"Don't let that swell your head," John Goss retorted, "for so does the scum," and he proceeded to push the ivory balls around the cushions at the Millicoma.

According to scientists the starfish has been known to deposit 30,000,000 eggs at a single laying and 20,000,000 are a common average. Now, if some enterprising Coos River rancher could only effect a cross between his hens and the starfish with eggs at 40 cents a dozen John D. Rockefeller would soon be a piker in the financial game.

A little girl was saying her prayers at bedtime one night. After repeating "Now I lay me down to sleep," and asking God to bless her father, mother, sisters, two brothers, her pony and kitty, she added: "O Lord, be awful careful of Yourself, because we have only You and the President to depend upon, and papa doesn't like the way he is acting."

NEWS OF ALLEGANY.

Events on North Coos River Told by Times' Correspondent.

ALLEGANY, Ore., Oct. 6.—Miss Rose Lillie, the Allegany school teacher, returned Saturday from attending the Doyle's funeral at Coquille, and a few days' visit in her new home at Bandon.

Mr. Lealander of Loon Lake, went to Marshfield last week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Grubb and Mr. and Mrs. A. Sawyer visited at The Gage ranch. Mrs. Gage accompanied them to visit her parents.

Rev. Porter of the Christian church of Marshfield, preached an able sermon at the Allegany school house Saturday evening. He will be in Allegany again October 17.

Mrs. Wilholt drove a small herd of hogs and a few cattle over the new road one day last week from Loon Lake. She has a ranch in the lake country and is doing well.

The county commissioners viewed the road over the Golden Falls and the bridge over Silver Creek, the new road is finished as far as Mr. Tyberg's house. Another small amount of money will complete the road to the Douglas county line.

MY TIME

Is so taken up with my furniture store that I have decided to dispose of my apartment house. This will appeal to anyone interested in flats as an investment for we are centrally located, have all the modern conveniences such as gas, electric light and steam heat. Apply
