MARSHFIELD MAN IS HEAD OF ASSOCIATION

Dr. Thomas J. Fox Takes Important Part in Columbia University Alumni Association Meeting.

Dr. Thomas J. Fox, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fox of Marshfield, is to preside at an important meeting of the alumni of Columbia University at Portland this week. The many friends of Mr. Fox on Coos Bay will be interested in the following article which the Portland Oregonian printed with a half-tone of Mr. Fox:

"The Columbia University Alumni Association will meet Thursday evening, October 8, at 8 o'clock, in the hall of the Knights of Columbus, for the annual election of officers. The object of this association is to preserve a record of its members, to create and preserve comradeship among them, and to enable them to keep in touch with their alma mater and to advance her interests.

"Dr. Thomas J. Fox is the present head of the organization; and through his efforts and the united action of the other officers and members a large and flourishing body has been built up. Working hand in hand with the faculty and students of Columbia, the alumni are ever ready to encourage them in their work—both in the class-room and on the athletic field.

"A $5,000 scholarship has been promised by the Alumni Association, the full amount of which has been practically subscribed. Archbishop Christie giving $500 as a foundation upon which to work.

"Members are expected from almost every city in the Pacific Northwest. Receptions and various other forms of entertainment have been planned and an elaborate banquet is to be given at the university.

"The association has engaged office quarters in the Oregon Hotel building, and the furnishings will be ordered for these rooms upon the decision of the committee in charge.

"The Alumni feel that their work is being felt and appreciated, and the old spirit which made them successful upon the athletic field will carry them on to success in their present undertaking."

WOULD CUT PROFIT.

Portland Paper Says Coos Bay Road Would Hurt Harriman.

The Portland Journal says: "If Coos Bay is to have a railroad connecting that district with the Willamette valley, it will have to be built by local capital or at least by some one other than Edward H. Harriman. It may be taken for granted that the railroad king will not build into that country. He cannot afford to.

"This does not mean that a road from Drain or some other valley point to Coos Bay would not be profitable to any one else. In fact, there is every reason to believe that such an enterprise would be a money-maker from the start. But not for Harriman. Should he construct a line into that section, he would merely be cutting in two the profits he now makes on the freight and pas-

A. N. W. CLUB WILL PUT IN ORNAMENTAL FOUNTAIN

City Council Grants Permission to Organization to Install It On 'C' Street.

The city council last evening granted permission to the A. N. W. club to put in an ornamental fountain on 'C' street, in front of Staffords providing that the city shall not be liable for its maintenance. The proposed fountain will be a handsome one and will furnish water for horses and other animals as well as people. It will be put in on the curb line and an electric globe will light it at night.

The A. N. W. Club will order the fountain at once and will undoubtedly receive the gratitude of all who will use the fountain in the future.

"A railroad from Coos Bay to Drain or any other point in the Willamette Valley would mean an annual loss to the Southern Pacific system of about $1,000,000 under present conditions, with a probable increase to double that amount within a comparatively short time as the country grows and the volume of traffic increases. This estimate is made on the freight traffic alone and does not take into consideration the constantly growing passenger travel. And each added ton of freight, each additional passenger, carried by any road that might be built by Harriman to connect Coos Bay with the valley, would mean so much less hard cash flowing into the coffers of the Southern Pacific compared with what might trickle that way without the road being built.

"These statements are not mere guess-work. They may be verified by figures. At present the freight rates from San Francisco to Roseburg, a distance of 574 miles, scale from $1.17 per hundred pounds down to 40c, according to the kind of freight. If the projected line from Coos Bay to Roseburg, a distance of 75 miles, were completed, the rates that would be charged over that line for corresponding classes of freight, estimated from the distance tariffs now enforced on the Harriman lines in Oregon, would range from 44 cents down to 10 cents. The rate by water from San Francisco to Coos Bay for all kinds of freight is 15c per hundred, which added to the estimated rate from Coos Bay to Roseburg per the projected line would make the total rate from San Francisco to Roseburg via Coos Bay range from 59 cents down to 25 cents.

"This would be just about half the present tariffs. In other words, the Harriman system would lose from 58 cents out of the $1.17 now charged for the highest class of freight, down to 15 cents out of that charged for the lowest class.

"Edward H. Harriman has never posed as a philanthropist. He wants the almighty dollar and as many of them as he can get, and if the building of a line from the Willamette Valley to Coos Bay is at all liable to endanger any of his revenues, Mr. Harriman will build no line."

Malthoid Roofing

Mr. H. B. Eakins, of the Commercial Warehouse Co., Los Angeles, Cal., U. S. A., writes: "Now that we have had two good rains to test our Malthoid roof, we have desire to express our satisfaction in the knowledge that we have a covering over our head that does not leak. We write you regarding our pleasure in this matter from the fact that we had fully expected more or less trouble, as we did not believe it possible that so large a roof surface could be covered with any material and stand the test of a first rain, but there was not a leak due to defective roofing."
