

PORT ORFORD REEF LIGHT

Rough Weather Prevented Government Men From Investigating It Closely.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 8. — The Telegram says: "Until he makes his report to Washington officials, Captain Pond will not disclose the conclusion he has reached concerning the establishment of a lighthouse at Orford Reef. In company with Major McIndoe, the lighthouse inspector has returned from a trip down the coast. On account of the rough weather, a landing could not be effected at Orford Reef and as close an inspection of the proposed location as desired could not be made. The cruise was made on the tender Heather.

"But we completed as close an inspection as possible," said Captain Pond. "The Cape Blanco light station was also inspected, as well as those at Cape Arago and Tillamook Rock. Supplies were delivered and the regular routine work in that part of the district was looked after."

Navigation interests, particularly those operating coasters, are deeply concerned about the probability of the establishment of an additional lighthouse in the vicinity of Cape Blanco. During a big part of every year the fog is so thick as to obscure the light at Blanco, and it has long been thought that much better results could be secured with a station in commission at Orford Reef. It is farther seaward and is not wrapped in fog so often as the stretch of land forming the main coast line.

"Captain Pond will leave for Astoria for the purpose of superintending the establishment of range lights on Sand Island. A contract for their being put in place has been let by the government, but the inspector wants to make certain that the task is properly performed. The beacons are designated as the front and rear lights. The former will be 25 feet high and the latter 45 feet, and they will be 1000 feet apart. They are being established for the purpose of affording a range to the pilots who are bringing vessels from the outside into the river. The ship channel is lined with buoys, but it is often difficult to see these during thick weather. The pilots requested the placing of range lights on Sand Island some months ago."

WANTS HENEY BACK.

Puter In Washington to Urge Land Fraud Prosecution.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—S. A. D. Puter, the land-fraud artist, is in Washington to induce the administration to employ Francis J. Heney as special prosecutor in certain Linn and Lane County timber land cases. Puter fears the government may fall in its efforts to cancel patents to $1,500,000 worth of timber now claimed by C. A. Smith, of Minneapolis, unless Heney is given charge of the cases in court. He says that District Attorney McCourt has so many other matters on hand that he cannot give this case proper attention. Puter called to see Secretary Garfield in Heney's behalf, but failed to obtain an audience. He will return later.

Mr. Puter said: "Smith, who is worth about $18,000,000, is resisting suits filed a short time ago and has employed some of the ablest attorneys on the coast. Unless John McCourt, United States Attorney, gets some assistance from the government, I am afraid there is serious danger of Smith's successfully resisting the cases, especially since Mr. McCourt, who was only recently appointed, has a vast amount of other work on hand."

AN INFORMAL RECEPTION.

Saturday evening, October 10, from 8 to 11 o'clock, the Coos Bay Academy of Music will hold their first monthly informal reception at the home of the school, New O'Connell building. Vocal and instrumental selections by members of the faculty will be interpreted through the evening.

A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of the school and all lovers of music. No tickets or printed invitations will be issued for these informal "At Homes," which will be given regularly the second Saturday of each month.

farther west of Roseburg than the last one. There is absolutely no clue to the thief.

Sheriff Fenton, to whom the lone bandit sent his regards, was at the stage within a short time after the holdup and a number of posses searched the surrounding country. Mr. Fenton prior to his election as sheriff owned and operated the stage line, but sold it sometime ago. Evidently the robber was not aware of the sale of the stage line when he sent his regards to the sheriff.

While the stage robber did not touch the mail, it is likely that the government men will be placed on the case.

Owing to the dense timber in this section, it is difficult to track any criminals. An effort was made today to secure blood hounds to place on the trail.

MANY AT RECEPTION.

Heartily Welcome Extended New M. E. Pastor Last Evening.

About two hundred participated in the reception tendered the Rev. H. I. Rutledge, the new pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, and his wife, at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage last evening. I. S. Kaufman delivered the address of welcome and the Rev. Mr. Rutledge responded. Music was furnished by the choir. Refreshments were served and the evening made a very enjoyable one. The details of the reception will be given in the social department Saturday.

DEER HIDES GO TO WASTE

Over 1,000 Stored in Cabin On Curry County Claim By Various Hunters.

WEDDERBURN, Or., Oct. 8.—The Radium says: "Charles S. Masters, Robert Forty and Mr. Hughes returned Monday from a hunting trip into the country southeast of Wedderburn. They went to the neighborhood where Col. Muncy's mines are located and lodged in the house belonging to Mr. Muncy. They arrived Friday afternoon and spent Saturday and Sunday in the surrounding country. On Saturday morning they killed three deer, each of the party securing one. Afterwards they saw but two more, and did not get either. They dried most of the meat, but brought some back, part of which Mr. Masters forwarded to his wife at Coos Bay. A portion was served Monday evening at the Bay View hotel. An interesting thing was reported by Mr. Masters. The territory they visited is considered good hunting grounds, and the house they occupied is crammed with deer hides, estimated by Mr. Masters at considerably over a thousand. These, it is believed, represent an accumulation of years, it being the custom of hunters to dress their meat on the ground, and rather than throw the hides away, store them in the house that they might be of use to somebody. In this manner of thinking out economy, the various hunters have from year to year accumulated a stock of hides which would incite the suspicions of a game warden should he accidentally stumble on the hoard. Whether the hides have any value is questionable, since they are mostly moth eaten, and whether they could be handled and marketed without entangling the man who attempted it in the meshes of the law, is likewise doubtful."

A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

Each recurring attack of rheumatism makes the disease harder to control, but the fact that it is not in itself dangerous causes people to neglect it, awaiting a change or a settled condition of the weather for relief. It is often only after the disease has become so serious as to interfere with business that the sufferer will seek more than temporary relief. Chamberlain's Liniment is a remedy for rheumatism which any one can apply. It not only gives prompt relief from pain, but in a large majority of cases it brings about permanent results. The first application will surprise and delight you as immediate relief is almost sure to follow. For sale by JOHN PREUSS.
