ESSENTIALS OF A HOME.

What are the three essentials of a home?

There are many essentials, but if you were shut up to just three things what would you select?

A woman's club of Chicago debated that question for half a day and reached no conclusion.

One woman held that the three essentials are a good temper, a good mother and the wife in charge of the finances, which raised the Scriptural question as to who is the head of the house. The majority appeared to think that Paul's idea of the husband's supremacy is out of date.

Another of the women held that the essentials are "a good mother, a good cook and a trained nurse." This left the man entirely out of the question. Either he was not regarded as absolutely essential or he was taken for granted. And it was suggested that a woman might be a good mother, cook and nurse and at the same time a very poor wife.

One woman timidly hinted at a good husband as one essential, but not much attention was paid to her contribution.

Late in the afternoon a minister happened in. He was asked his opinion. He replied, "A man, a woman and a cook stove."

Whereat the women applauded the rather cute solution and ended the debate.

Evidently it did not occur to them that a man, a woman and a cook stove might be the essentials of a home, but that they might also be the essentials of a dive.

One of the Chicago newspapers took up the discussion and asked for contributions. Many answers were given, and the one that was finally adopted as the best was this: "A man, a woman and a baby."

But this answer is open to the objection mentioned to the reply of the minister.

It seems to us the solution is simple, and it is strange so many people should have missed it. Narrowed down to the absolute factors, the three essentials of a home are:

A husband, a wife and I LOVE. Is it not so?

IS THIS MAN MAD?

When a contrite gentleman from Chicago, a few days ago, plodded a sensational career through a crowd on Broadway in New York City, bestowing five and ten dollar bills upon grateful members of the concourse, he was quickly arrested by an alert policeman, who assumed him to be a dangerous lunatic. Tried for insanity by a handful of alienists, he was speedily convicted, it being held that any man who passed out monetary gratuities in that fashion was a mental delinquent and a prize find for the Matteawan authorities.

We do not know whether the man revealed the motives for his strange actions. He may have been drunk. Perhaps he made the money in some wicked transaction in Chicago, and his conscience was hurting him. Again, he might be overburdened with money, and was merely ridding himself of the surplus. He may simply have had a longing for sordid cash. Or it may be true that he really was crazy. The police and the insanity experts seem to have reached the latter conclusion without investigating the others, and therefore, he must be counted a maniac until he can advance some logical explanation for his conduct. Men in this century to not give away money without reason.

For it is important that every one should have money—all the money he can get. Without money one cannot buy himself fancy waistcoats, or fashionable shoes that pinch the feet, or dinners that induce gout and dyspepsia, or strong liquors that make the head ache and numb the faculties, or tickets to insipid musical comedies. One cannot even be divorced from his wife without money, or rear a family in enervating luxury, or ruin the business of one's friend, or corrupt legislatures or foreclose mortgages, or do anything, in fact, except live a simple, unostentatious life and work, even, for that privilege. Is it a wonder that New York officialdom doubts the sanity of a man who holds in contempt the most important thing there is?

Yet at this moment the disquieting thought comes that perhaps the Chicago man is the only rational person in the country; that only the fact of his being in the minority prevents his adjudging the rest of humanity insane, and incarcerating it, forthwith.

THE GOLDEN RULE CANDIDATE.

The American people know Mr. Taft, and it is vain, therefore, for Bryan or any one else to seek to misrepresent the attitude of the Republican candidate for president toward labor. Mr. Taft's position toward labor is one of sympathy and impartiality. He would give the worker every right to which he is entitled and protect him in his rights. He would sustain the rights of labor with all the authority at his command and would not be warped by influence or prejudice into an interpretation of law or exercise of power that would do injustice to labor. Under Taft as president neither tyranny nor anarchy would be allowed to defy the laws of the United States.

It is this prevalent confidence in the absolute justice and impartiality, combined with broad, human sympathy in the character of Mr. Taft, that gives him his great and growing hold on the electorate. The average American wants what is right—no more and no less—and he likes to see right doing on the part of those in power leniency with sympathy for human weakness and misfortune. That is Taft, and that is why, from Maine to Texas, there is a supreme faith among voters of all political creeds and classes that they will have a fair deal, a neighborly deal, a Golden Rule deal, with Taft in the White House.

Will President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor solicit wage earners' contributions to Bryan's treasurer, Haskell, who describes trade unionism as "contemptible fanaticism?"

What a present this time would be if the Bryan political theories of the past had been put into practice!

The prosperous farmers of this country must be sadly puzzled as to what Bryan is talking about when he says they have been "neglected."

Peace, order, prosperity and continued independence—these are worthy ambitions that Republican policy in the United States holds out to the sister republics of the continent.

PLAN TO SING WITH EYES.

Optical Music to Become Cure For Use of Spectacles Says Leader.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—With the Rev. Mrs. Foote Marsh for leader, the New Thought church, the cardinal doctrine of which is that any one may become anything he wishes, was permanently established in Brooklyn. The first meeting was held in Mrs. Marsh's apartment, 14 South Elliott place, and announcement was made that Aurora Grata cathedral, where Mrs. May Pepper formerly held services, had been rented for the winter, says the Herald.

Voiceless singing is to be one of the features of the New Thought services, Mrs. Marsh explained last night. Believers in New Thought are to be taught how to sing with their eyes, and by so doing their eyes will be made perfect and there will no longer be need for spectacles in Brooklyn.

Songs will be illustrated with stereopticon views and the faithful will be told to sit in silence and read the verses to the accompaniment of music. But the singing must all be done with the eyes and soul. There is no need of making discordant noises in order to sing, Mrs. Marsh believes.

"Singing through the eyes will be of infinite benefit," the leader of the New Thought said. "We do not use our eyes enough and that is the reason so many persons are compelled to wear glasses. When we do not use one of the senses it goes back to its original plane. When I went through the west last summer I took hundreds of pairs of glasses away from persons who were taught to see."

During her trip in the west, Mrs. Marsh was ordained in the Essene circle and is now an official representative of the New Thought, with full power to accomplish many things for those who believe in her doctrines. If she does not do good things, the preacher said, she will be dropped by the Essene circle.

WITH THE TOAST AND TEA

GOOD EVENING.

A little more patience, a little more charity for all, a little more devotion, a little more love, with less bowing down to the past and a silent ignoring of pretended authority, a brave looking forward to the future with more faith in our fellows, and the race will be ripe for a great burst of light and life. —Fra Elbertus.

The Land of Dreams.

Ah, give us back our dear, dead Land of Dreams! The fair, faint, misty hills—the tangled maze Of brake and thicket—down green woodland ways The hush of summer—and on amber streams, Bright leaves afloat, amid the foam that creams 'Round crannied boulders, where the shallows blaze Then life ran joyous through glad, golden days, And silver nights beneath the moon's pale beams.

Now all is lost. There glooms a dark morass, Where throbbed the thrush across the dappled lawn, Oh, never more shall fairy pageants pass, Nor dance of light-limbed satyr, nymph and faun, Adrift among the whispering meadow-grass, On wind-swept uplands, yearning toward the dawn. —Smart Set.

A good many Coos Bay men would fight for their fortunes sooner than for their reputations.

The two persons I most dread to meet are the woman with a past and the man with a future.

About this time paterfamilias gets stalled with questions from Young Hopeful on school subjects.

They say "money makes the mare go," but with feed at present prices I think the case is reversed.

I have known some boarders to get so far behind with their bills that they had to marry the landladies.

Considering how cheap parrots are these days, one wonders why certain domineering men ever got married.

It is a mistake to suppose that you can drown domestic sorrow in one drink. It takes three and a cigar.

The more we see of some Coos Bay men and women, the more we regret that "race suicide" is not compulsory.

In the matter of her looks the average Coos Bay woman will believe her gentleman friends before she will her mirror.

Harriman's Lame Back.

Note—Mr. E. H. Harriman has rheumatism of the muscles of the back.

Gez whiz! No wonder he has rheumatiz. By the jumping Jehoshaphat! Underneath a load like that Ed has been totting around for years Most men would be stretched out on their biers;

Nor corsets of steel Nor belts and braces Would be equal to putting them Back in their places.

But Ed, He just goes ahead, Limping a little, perhaps, some days, Picking around for easier ways, And when he sees A railroad or two and things like these

He gobbles them up and hikes along, Singing the same old harvest song, "I gather them in, I gather them in." Ed's back Always has room for another track, And a little thing like the rheumatiz Don't bother him much in getting his.

Doctors may plaster him, But doctors can't master him Till they can kill him, Oh, Ed is a wonder, And he'll not be pazziz Till his conscience is stricken With rheumatiz.

What? He hasn't got Anything like that? Scat!

out of a bottle; only the men take theirs internally.

A great many women find it easier to forgive a crime than a fault.

Lift up! Give a word of good cheer! Lend a hand and make the world better for your having had a place in it.

What has become of the old-fashioned family in which a visit from grandmother from a neighboring town always preceded the arrival of baby?

They were not the best of friends, but not yet avowed enemies. They exchanged calls out of curiosity and a feminine delight in making each other uncomfortable.

Hit or Miss. If either Billy is your friend, Oh, voters, for his sake, Since the campaign draws near its end, Do try to keep awake.

"How much," said Mrs. A. to Mrs. B., "are you paying your girl, if I may ask?"

"Well," rejoined Mrs. B. sweetly, "you see, she doesn't do the laundry, so I don't pay her as much as I would if she did." And the incident was closed.

Roosevelt on Taft.

I hope and believe that all far sighted citizens who wish to see this country prosperous in material things will support Mr. Taft, but above all I ask for support for him because he stands for the moral uplift of the nation, because his deeds have made good his words, and because the policies to which he is committed are of immeasurable consequence alike to the honor and interest of the whole American people.

BEQUEATHS $1 IN CHUNKS OF 25 CENTS

Portland Woman's Will Slights "Individual Who Married Me." CHICAGO, Oct. 16. — To "the individual" who married her, Mrs. Catherine E. Heckler, of Portland, Ore., bequeathed $1—and not in one lump, either. Clerks in the Probate Court, where the will was filed today, expressed the opinion that the testatrix had been disappointed in Andrew. Her attorney is bequeathed a cut-glass water bottle and Mrs. Isabelle Vance a friend, is given the remainder of the estate. In part, the testament reads: "I give and bequeath unto Andrew Heckler, the individual who married me in 1905, in San Diego, Cal., and who got from me thousands of dollars, and when he could get no more, deserted me; and whose name I legally must bear, the sum of $1, to be paid in monthly installments of 25 cents each."
