

URGES COOS COUNTY UNITY

Booster Deplores Tendency of Some Papers to Create Sectional Strife.

To the Editor of The Times:
In reading the different weekly papers, which are published in this county we notice that there is a tendency on the part of a number to belittle Coos Bay and its resources as well as some of the papers of the Bay to belittle the balance of the county, though we have not noticed the latter lately. It is a bad practice as we all know that a house divided against itself shall fall and also that in "unity there is strength," and without these the county will always be fighting among themselves and not accomplish anything in the way of pushing the county ahead, as a fight among the different sections is bad for the county as a whole. All sections of Coos county are grand places and have their different advantages bestowed upon them by nature.

The fault lies with some of its county papers, which seem to have a spite against other sections, and they have not fulfilled to their duty either by endeavoring to knit together in closer unity a better feeling among the citizens of Coos county. They are to blame and as long as they keep up the assinine or jealous warfare, just so long there will be slurs thrown at the different sections. If the people would become better acquainted outside of their own towns they will feel that what helps their neighbors help them.

There should be a closer feeling as at the coming session of congress an appropriation will be asked for to improve the harbors of the county, and if a delegation is sent from Coos Bay and from the Coquille Valley to Washington and there happens to be any feeling among the members of either delegation to work against the objects of the other delegation, congress is liable to table any appropriation for Coos county, but if each delegation goes east with the determination of helping the whole county they will be more liable to land what they go after and not have to come home empty-handed or with a small appropriation, which they will do if their feelings or what might be called sectional feelings run away with common sense.

The people of Coos county have been at loggerheads for a long term of years and some of them think that their location is best and the rest of the county is a barren wilderness. We will not say that all believe this, but by reading some of the papers of the county a stranger is liable to reach this conclusion. Now is the time for the different towns to get together and form closer friendships, and work for the entire county and not only their own locality. If the papers of the county were fighting just as hard for the county as they are for their own towns we would have no trouble in going to Washington and asking for a large appropriation for the two harbors of Coos county, but with one delegation claiming that their harbor was the only one entitled to anything but that the other harbor was no good will work a detriment to the whole county.
