POLITICAL VAGARIES.

One of the sharpest, and most interesting features of politics in Marshfield, as well as every other place where they operate, are the vagaries, the re-adjustments, the strange alignments, that are noted, and compared, each recurring season. This is an exaggerated way of repeating the old adage: "Politics makes strange bed-fellows;" but we desire to emphasize the peculiarities incident to local campaigns, and make the wider statement for that reason.

The political enemies of last year are sworn friends this year, and the ties that bound men irrevocably in political action year before last are dissolved and forgotten and the newer bases prevail with the newer champions, this year. Every man who is wise to the infinite changes in men, measures and line-ups, smiles covertly at the remarkable adaptability of the leaders in this hodge-podge of incongruities and once-assumed impossibilities. The humor of it all saves it from being taken gravely or made much of; and the laugh that is given it makes it easier to assimilate.

We can see from our office window, day by day, the preliminaries for a lot of new local amalgamations that twelve months ago would have been simply impossible of conception and which would have raised bedlam had they been but suggested. Men are hand in hand today that were fist to fist a few months ago; and the good-humored pursuit of the motives that stand for the radical-shifting is about the simplest task we have. The real politician always stays in the back-ground and his purpose is hidden behind his own tongue; but the spontaneous feather-weight, the momentary champion of some momentary scheme, is abroad day and night, with his wit on his lip and his plan on his sleeve, his ends known of all men, and oftener than not, laughed at. It's a funny thing, this municipal politics!

ADVERTISED GOODS

SELL THE BEST The manager of a great store says: "We have six different makes of one toilet article. In quality they are alike, so near alike that experts can not tell the difference. One is widely advertised in papers and magazines. We sell as much of that one brand as we do of all the others put together. And the others sell in proportion to the amount of advertising they get." That is simply another case. There are but few successes without a liberal use of printer's ink in daily papers.

GOOD EVENING.

I never wish to promise more than I have a moral certainty of performing.

GEO. WASHINGTON.

So many stars in the infinite space— So many worlds in the light of God's face.

So many storms ere the thunders shall cease— So many paths to the portals of Peace.

So many years, so many tears— Sighs and sorrows and pangs and prayers.

So many ships in the desolate night— So many harbors and only one Light.

So many creeds like the weeds in the sod—

So many temples and only one God. FRANK L. STANTON.

Light housekeeping means a heavy drain on domestic patience.

The Coos Bay man who has no small vices usually has one or two big ones.

When she begins to protest against your wasting money on her, young man, it is time for you to either declare yourself or back up.

Young mothers imagine that they understand how Columbus must have felt on discovering America when they find baby's first tooth.

Here of late when a visiting girl goes home, her hostess promptly accompanies her in order to get what is coming to her before her guest's memory gets cold.

It is said that women do not manage automobiles well, because they lack the power of concentration. Does an automobile require more of that than a husband?

There are ideals and ideals, but the feminine ideal man, while he may vary considerable as to stature and complexion, is always well developed as to the bank account.

In his early adolescence he is attracted by the gold-filled smile and the gurgle of admiration, but later in life it takes a sample of hand-made pie to bring him 'round.

Take a girl who has always lived at home, and helped with the work, and give her a boarding house, and a horse and a buggy and a husband, and she is perfectly happy.

In every town there is a good deal of quarreling. It is never very serious unless you encourage it, and it is always the same old quarrel. Don't take a little quarreling too seriously.

You can generally tell a man's business by what he rests his eyes upon. If he looks at your shoes, he is in the shoe business; if he gazes at your clothes, he has something to do with the clothing business; when he eyes your watch, he is a jeweler; and a hatter always glances at your title. The above is only true of men. When two women meet, they look each other all over.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

On and after November 1, 1908, we will be compelled to sell for cash only. Our experience has convinced us that we can give the public much better service and a higher grade of meats at 15 per cent. less and still continue to do business. As the farmers have compelled us to pay cash, we are going to ask our many customers to pay strictly cash. This will not discommode you in the least as Mr. Hall is on delivery and he can collect on all phone orders as they are delivered.

We extend to our customers a most cordial invitation to call at our shop and have our new cash proposition fully explained to you, and we feel confident that we can convince you that the cash system is the only system by which you can save money. And that it will enable us to give you a much better line of meats at a much smaller price.

SCHOOL NEWS OF TWO CITIES

MARSHFIELD SCHOOL NEWS

"When the Teacher Gets Cross."

When the teacher gets cross, and her brown eyes get black, And her pencil comes down on the desk with a whack,

We chilluns in class sets up straight in line As if we had rulers instead of a spine.

It's scary to cough and it's not safe to grin, When the teacher gets cross and the dimples goes in.

When the teacher gets cross the tables all mix, And the ones and the sevens begin playin' tricks;

The pluses and minuses is just little smears Where the cry-babies cry all their slates up with tears

The figures won't add and they act up like sin When the teacher gets cross and the dimples goes in.

When the teacher gets cross, the readers gets bad, The lines jungle round till the chilluns is sad,

And Billy boy puffs and gets red in the face As if he and the lesson were running a race,

Till she hollers out "Next," as sharp as a pin, When the teacher gets cross and the dimples goes in.

When the teacher gets good, her smiles is so bright, The tables gets straight and the readers gets right.

The pluses and minuses come trooping along And figgers add up and stop bein' wrong

And we chilluns would like (but we dassen't) to shout, When the teachers gets good and the dimples comes out.

NORTH BEND SCHOOL NEWS

School Days.

The Reader was up in the attic, The Speller was under the bed, The Grammar, with vagrance erratic, Had hid itself out to the shed;

The Rithmetic lay in the cellar, The Jography hid like a fool * * * Oh, we do enjoy to hunt things for that boy,

And get Johnny ready for school.

The lunch box, all covered with lichen, Was found in the orchard at last, The book strap was down in the kitchen—

A dozen times we had searched past. We dug out his shoes and new trousers,

We purchased his compass and rule * * * Oh, heaven forbid how we worked for that kid,

To get Johnny ready for school!

We found all his trappings so bonny, We stacked them in bundles around—

Yes—they were all there * * * all but Johnny—

And he was nowhere to be found. The school bell was tolling: "Come—children—"

"Where's Johnny?" we moaned. "Drag the pool!"

Oh, heavens, it's sad how we toiled for that lad, To get Johnny ready for school!"

The Athletic Association has been successful in obtaining the Simpson pavilion for the basketball practice and games.

Lucille Greenleaf was unanimously chosen to succeed Edith Raab as captain of the basket ball team for this season.

The High School were pleased to receive as one of their number this week Andrew Miller, a brother of Miss Clover Miller, the Eighth Grade teacher.

Friday afternoon Lucille Greenleaf and Edith Allger visited the Marshfield High School and arrangements were partially made for future basket ball games.

Edith Raab when she left school handed in her resignation as captain of the High School Basket Ball team. The team will feel the loss of her excellent guard work which she employed in the Bandon vs. North Bend game last year.

The Athletic Association feel that fortune has certainly favored them for Fred. Glazier has been secured to coach the Basket Ball Girls for this season. The girls began practicing in real earnest this week and expect to be in trim for a game very soon.

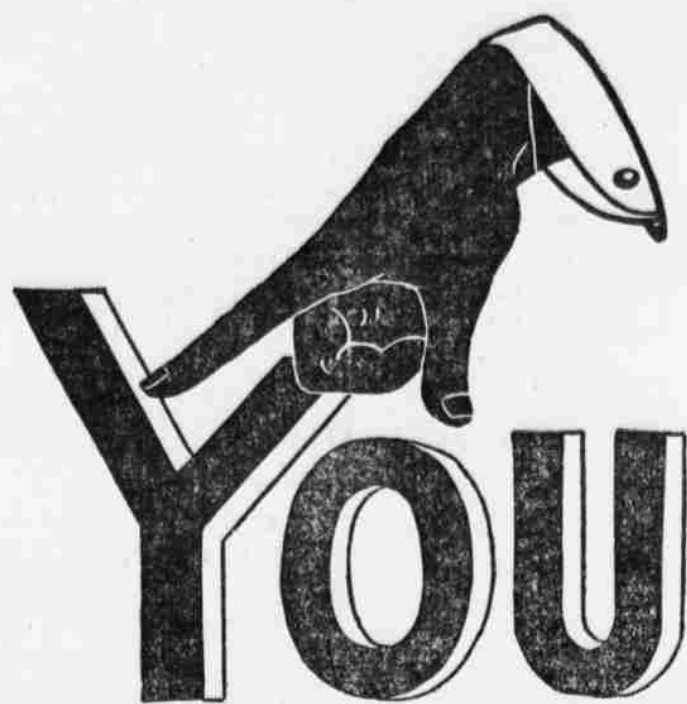

In the football game with the Marshfield High School boys, Saturday, the North Benders began the season by again accepting gracefully a defeat to the tune of 13 to 0. Our boys had not taken any recent lessons in swimming and diving, so of course had one great obstacle to overcome in the miniature sea on the Marshfield grounds. Again there were several new men in the line and they hardly guessed what they were going up against; but the enthusiasm of the rooters will never weaken, for it has been said that a poor beginning is followed by a good ending.

The Eighth Grade on Friday next. A special program with readings from Othello has been arranged. A contest will be held and the best five readers selected for parts. There will also be a charade and a dialogue. The best written work of the month will be displayed.
