He stated that it was 42 years since he first viewed the magnificent waters of Coos Bay and its wonderful resources, including the prolific valleys of Coos River, the Coquille and other sections of this region of natural wealth. Since then, he has always had a fervent desire to see that both harbors should be improved so that commerce could reach a high standard with the markets so easily reached, provided the two harbors

LUX FIGHTS FOR FREEDOM

Alleged Crazy Man Who Passed Through Coos Bay In Court In Portland.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 23.—Petition for a writ of habeas corpus for Lou A. Lux to prevent him from being taken back to the insane asylum at Napa, Cal., is being heard by Presiding Judge Gantenbein in the circuit court. The application for the writ was filed by Lux's attorneys, John F. Logan and John H. Stevenson.

Lux was supposed to have committed suicide, a body found on Portland Heights some time ago having been identified as his. Later a telegram was received from Napa giving Lux's address and requesting that he be arrested. Lux had been at the Napa insane asylum for three years and escaped last July. The petition for habeas corpus alleges that he is not now insane, and that there is no warrant for holding him in custody.

Lux is said to be the victim occasionally of religious hallucinations, imagining himself to be a Messiah. John McLaughlin, a supervisor from the Napa asylum, is in Portland and would have taken Lux back to Napa had not the writ of habeas corpus been asked for. It is alleged that there is no charge against Lux on which a requisition can be based.

could be improved. Mr. Dodge stated that he felt that it was one of the happiest moments of his life when the steamer Plant came up the bay, and passed along near the dredge Oregon and saw that great machine engaged in removing the shoals in Coos Bay. As he can claim that he aided by Hon. Binger Herman, Peter Logie and other men of national influence are entitled to credit to some degree at least for the construction of that much needed dredger. Mr. Dodge also stated that he hoped to be able to see in the near future, after a reasonable amount of work had been done on the channel of the Bay, the shoals in the Coquille river removed by this great machine, for the dredge was promised here first for the Coquille and Coos Bay.
