HARD CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK

Heavy Artillery of Democrats and Republicans Battle For the Empire State Which Is Regarded As Vitally Important.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The mid-week of the last week of this remarkable presidential campaign witnesses the political battle at height and the "heavy" artillery of the two leading parties is at work chiefly in New York City and state. That New York is regarded by both as of vital importance is evidenced by the presence of both presidential candidates in or near this city.

John W. Kern, the Democratic candidate for vice-president, continues his tour of Indiana.

Hisgen, the candidate of the Independence party, is in Connecticut. Chaffin and Watkins are scheduled to speak in Atlantic City and Baltimore.

Debs is preaching the Socialistic cause in Illinois. Of the members of President Roosevelt's cabinet, Secretary Root will speak in Cincinnati tonight and Secretary Wright at Richmond, Va., Secretary Strauss will speak in this city tonight.

This is Taft's big day in Greater New York, as Monday was Bryan's. Taft will make a number of addresses and tonight will address a monster mass meeting at Madison Square Garden. Bryan is swinging up the state, visiting a half-dozen towns before stopping at Troy where he will deliver an address to a mass meeting tonight.

It was found that he had a fractured skull and other injuries.

Murphy discovered the invader and quietly aroused several neighbors.

The marauder was ordered to hold up his hands and come out. He refused and blocked the door which was broken down with an axe. Benson was dragged out after a desperate fight. He was beaten and bound hand and foot with ropes. When the police arrived, preparations were being made to hang him to a tree. Chicken thieves have been active in the neighborhood for the past month and all had vowed vengeance.

Douglas counties should give that syndicate of gentlemen who have practical experience in the line of electric railroads and who have had a prominent part in the building of electric railroads in the Middle West, every reasonable encouragement toward forwarding this enterprise.

Hoping that the Oregon and Idaho Development Congress will have a rousing session and boost for an electric road from Roseburg to Coos Bay.

Respectfully,
(Signed) H. C. DIERS.

CLARKE TALKS OF RAILROAD

Marshfield Man Gives Interview in Portland Explaining the Situation.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 28.—The Oregonian says: Francis H. Clarke of Marshfield, who delivered an address before the Oregon-Idaho Development Congress, Friday, treating of the harbor and railroad situation at Coos Bay, called at The Oregonian office to say that he had been misquoted in the report as to what he said on that occasion.

"I did not say," said Mr. Clarke, "that Coos Bay people had given up hope of getting Mr. Harriman to build the Drain-Coos Bay railroad. I do not know what they hope, but the country is so attractive as a railroad proposition that their greatest hopes would not be unreasonable. I believe Mr. Harriman will build a line into Coos Bay and expect he will announce the beginning of work in the spring.

"My reason for this is that I have received information that railroad construction will be commenced at Coos Bay within a year by another company than the Southern Pacific, and, if nothing happens, like a financial disturbance or a natural disaster, I believe the Southern Pacific will find it convenient to protect its interests on the bay by building its proposed line. I did point out to the people at Roseburg the fact that 140,000 people living in the six counties of Lane, Douglas, Coos, Curry, Josephine and Jackson were entitled to a short road to the sea instead of being compelled to carry the burden of high freight and passenger rates several hundred miles and called their attention to the statement made by one of the Portland papers that Mr. Harriman would never build the Drain road because his system would lose $1,000,000 a year by diverting traffic from the long haul to Portland or San Francisco to the short haul to the deep sea and cheap water transportation.

"The news story from Roseburg left me in the attitude of approving the theory involved in that article. I simply quoted it and showed how, superficially, it might be true, and then undertook to show, and think I did, that the demands of 140,000 people and the tonnage available in coal, lumber and produce between Coos Bay and the interior, would make a short road from Roseburg to Coos Bay profitable and how the opening of Southern Oregon to the sea would be the commencement of an era of real progress and vast development, such as nothing else would."

Declares That Atlantic Fleet's Visit Was Successful.

(By Associated Press.)

ANACONDA, Mont., Oct. 28.—A Kalspell, Mont., dispatch to The Standard says "that the Atlantic fleet was sent to Japan at the request of the Emperor to overawe Mikado's subjects was the statement made by United States Senator Joseph M. Dixon in an address at Kalspell last night, it being the Emperor's idea to quell the sentiment for war among his people, a sentiment in which the Emperor and his Counselors did not participate. The object lesson, said the senator, was successful even before the fleet reached the shores of Japan."
