NORTH BEND HIGH SCHOOL WINS FIRST GRAND PRIZE

Eastern Star Wins Second Prize, Lillian McCann Third and Genevieve Tellefson Fourth in Times Gift Contest.

MARSHFIELD, Nov. 2, 1908.

We, the judges award prizes in the Coos Bay Times Grand Gift Contest, as follows:

First Grand Prize—North Bend High School.

Second Grand Prize—Doric Chapter No. 53, Eastern Star.

First choice—Lillian McCann, second district.

Second choice—Genevieve Tellefson, first district.

Third choice—Grace Yoakam, fifth district.

Fourth choice—Mildred Morse, third district.

Fifth choice—Eva A. Laird, fourth district.

The district prizes are awarded according to highest number of total votes cast, the highest number being entitled to first choice, next highest second choice, etc.

We find the contest was conducted fairly, according to the rules and regulations which provided that votes be based on subscriptions and coupons cut from The Times, there being nothing stipulated as to size of coupons, which might be for one or more votes.

The above statement of the judges tells the story of the result in The Times Grand Prize Contest. The large number of votes cast on the last day, nearly 100,000, gives evidence of the intense interest in the outcome. The Times office was a busy place Saturday evening taking care of the many subscriptions that were turned in by the various contestants. Some of the voters were a trifle late and subscriptions did not arrive in time to count, but were not of such number as to affect the result. One of the surprises was the splendid spurt made on the last day by Miss Genevieve Tellefson of Eastside, who by making the phenomenal run of 17,742 votes beat Eric Bolt for first place in the First district.

The ballots box was closed and sealed promptly at 9 o'clock Saturday evening by the judges who took it in charge and it was open at 9 o'clock this morning in Judge Sehlbrede's office, and the votes counted.

The following is the final count as officially certified to by the judges:

FORTIFY COOS BAY

for a fort and batteries could be installed there to excellent advantage.

"A minimum of 58 men is required for organization of coast artillery as a branch of the National Guard service found that such a force could be readily mustered at Marshfield, Ore., if necessary, one platoon might be organized and stationed at North Bend, a short distance from Marshfield and on the bay. There does not seem to be any building at either of these points suitable for an armory at this time, but assurance was given that an armory would be built by local money, if necessary, and rented to the state at a small cost. Inasmuch as the government supplies in the neighborhood of $6000 worth of stores and equipment to each company, it is necessary that a substantial building be provided for the care of this property.

"The one objection that Coos Bay is a considerable distance from actual fortifications at this time does not seem to be an important one. Cost of transportation to the Columbia River forts is comparatively small. For the time being, or until such time as Coos Bay becomes equipped with batteries, the field of service for a Coos Bay artillery company would necessarily be at the mouth of the Columbia. The men would be taken there each summer for practical instruction. For the proper training of the company at its home station there would be no difficulty in having non-commissioned officers assigned from Fort Stevens or Fort Columbia. All in all, the proposition of organizing on Coos Bay looks most favorable and I shall so report."

General Finzer spent about ten days in the Coos Bay district, during which time he visited the entrance to the harbor and looked over the artillery work.

ALLIANCE WILL SAIL FROM COOS BAY FOR PORTLAND AT 4 P. M., TUESDAY.
