years, but they have not built a great city—that a great city and a great section could only be built by business men and busy men who make the most of the opportunities around them. He said that the double shift at the Smith mill meant that the owners are going to make all possible out of their property, as the operation of it the entire day will give them a greater profit than was derived from operating it only a portion of the day.

resources, etc. He said that his investigation of the country had taught him that the wonderful stories he had heard of Coos Bay had revealed but half the truth of the possibilities of this section. He said that the need of a railroad was great and that he was confident that the determination that the residents of this section are displaying will result in securing a railroad before long, even if they have to build it themselves. He said that C. J. Jones of Oklahoma had built a railroad in that state after the big systems had refused to do it, and that it had proved a good thing for the builders as well as for the communities which it tapped.

W. A. Reid of Alaska, paid tribute to the great improvements that have been made in Marshfield since his visit here eighteen months ago. He said that the coming of a railroad in the near future is certain. He commended the spirit of the citizens and said that such push and progressiveness is bound to bring the desired development soon.

Wireless Telegraphy.

Mr. Jessup of the United Wireless Telegraph Company, which is installing a station here, spoke briefly about it. He said that the station would be completed by next Tuesday and will probably be in operation next Wednesday. He said that for the present, the station will not be able to handle commercial business but later will. At present, the station will be devoted to shipping interests, it being planned to equip all vessels plying out of this port with wireless instruments. The station here in addition to working with the vessels equipped with wireless, will send and receive messages to and from Astoria, San Francisco and Eureka and other points.

BETTER CARE OF FRUIT PACK

TIMES READER OUTLINES VIEWS ON HANDLING FRUIT OUTPUT SO THAT IT WILL MAKE BETTER IMPRESSIONS ON BUYERS.

Editor Coos Bay Times: The box of Gravenstein apples which were presented to the Chamber of Commerce of this city by J. D. Benham of Fairview, proves conclusively that the very best apples can be raised in this county if the growers will use common sense and take pains with their orchards and in packing the fruit so that they will have a neat appearance when they reach market. More than half the value of a box of apples is the way it is packed and graded to one size, or nearly, because if the box is filled with every size and condition, no one would lose the time to pay it a second look, but if the apples are graded and clean they will appeal to a person. Every fruit grower in Coos county can raise and display just as fine apples as Mr. Benham if they will only take time in taking care of their orchards and see that all of the diseased trees are weeded out and that none but the best apples are sent to market, the fruit growers will be able to make more money from an acre of land than they are now doing. But it takes time and considerable hard work to get the orchards in the best of condition so that they will be able to produce the best of fruit and this is the reason why such a howl went up against having a fruit inspector, as a large number of the growers did not want to spend any time on their orchards.

These apples on exhibition also show what can be accomplished by having a thorough inspection of all the orchards, and as at present there is no fruit inspector for Coos county and if one is not appointed the orchards will soon be back in their old condition, though we have heard ranchers claim that there was no use to keep them in condition as they were not able to obtain a good price for them. Now, if they would spend some of their spare time and some of the grey matter which nature has given everyone, they would soon see that they would be able to get top prices for the fruit and not 50 and 75 cents as at present.

COOS COUNTY BOOSTER.

CULLINGS OF COQUILLE.

Events of Interest as Told by The Sentinel.
At the home of the bride's parents Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Smith, at Fish-trap, on Wednesday evening last,

Mr. Gustave Schroeder and Miss Susie Ada Smith, both of that vicinity, were joined in holy matrimony by Rev. W. B. Smith, father of the bride.

Near Johnson's mill, Oct. 30th, a daughter was born to L. A. Pingston and wife.

The mill in this city of the Coquille Mill and Mercantile Co. is being overhauled and gotten in readiness for continuous running. Of late months the mill has run only periodically, and it will be a source of satisfaction to know that its siren is to be heard every day shortly.
