The house of Donald Charleston was also broken into and ransacked, recently, while the family were away.

A FORTUNE IN A FRUIT FARM

Washington Man Values Fifty Acres of Orchard At $250,000.

The holiday issue of the Pacific Homestead contains an extended account of the great National Apple show recently held in Spokane from which the following extracts are taken. It will be noted that Mr. Horan who had the prize-winning car load of apples has an orchard of only 50 acres which he set out in 1900, and he has refused an offer of $100,000 and says he values it at $250,000. There is a valuable suggestion in this for Coos county fruit growers.

The show was one of surprises and charm. It was more than an entertainment; it was more than education; it was inspirational. As an observant visitor remarked, "It comes with clearness and force to the mind that apple growing is a delightful and profitable industry, capable of manifold and speedy development. Here is the product from orchards already in bearing, but young orchards many times larger than the bearing orchards are now in the soil and under cultivation. We know that the product will be greater next year than this year, and greater every year thereafter for the next decade, even though not another apple tree should be planted. But more of them will be planted every year, and the expectations held out in their addresses by the speakers at the opening exercises of a coming product that will exceed in value the present returns from wheat growing, mining and lumbering are not fanciful or improbable."

There was keen rivalry in the carload competition. The entries were: M. Horan, Wenatchee, Wash.; H. M. Gilbert, North Yakima, Wash.; Kress & Carey, Hamilton, Mont.; C. C. Georgeson, Prosser, Wash.; Tannatt, Farmington, Wash. The latter had three carloads.

Mr. Horan's exhibit was a mixed car of 630 boxes or 50,000 apples, with which he scored 96 1/4 out of a possible 100 points. H. M. Gilbert of North Yakima, Wash., formerly president of the Washington Horticultural Association, was second with a car of 70,560 Winesap apples, scoring 93 3/4 points and winning $500, and Messrs. Kress & Carey of Hamilton, Mont., were third with a car of McIntosh Reds, scoring 85 points and winning $200 and 1000 standard apple trees. In addition to the foregoing the judges distributed premiums amounting to $33,300 in other competitions, representing practically every apple belt in the country.

Mr. Horan's fruit will net him approximately $7000, as in addition to the chief award he received prizes of $200 offered by W. T. Clark, president of the Wenatchee Canal Company, and soil his fruit for $10 a box. James J. Hill, chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern Railway Company, and his son, Louis W. Hill, president of the system and head of National Apple Show, paid $1,500 for 150 boxes, which will be sent to England after being exhibited in New York, Boston and eastern points. The Hills will present some of the fruit to the royal family and other friends in England.

Mr. Horan is a native of Stockbridge, Mass., where he left in 1876 to engage in breaking horses in California. He came to Washington in 1888, where he grazed cattle on the present site of Wenatchee and the valley, buying thousands of acres of land at 50 cents an acre. He set out an orchard of fifty acres in 1900. It contains 7000 pear trees. His crop in 1908 amounted to 8000 boxes of apples, 7000 boxes of peaches and 7000 boxes of pears. The apples were picked by George Drinkwater and packed by George Crinkshank, to whom Mr. Horan gives all the credit, adding: "This is the first time I ever exhibited fruit. The apples were picked by one man and were packed by another. Our average was ten boxes a day, requiring two months to prepare the exhibit. Every care was taken to pack without blemish, bruise or scratch. Before the award was made I would not have taken $5 a box for the apples. My orchard should yield 14,000 boxes of pears, 14,000 boxes of peaches and 16,000 boxes of apples in 1909. I had no practical knowledge of scientific fruit growing until a few years ago. At that time the land was worth $100 an acre. That was in 1900, when the first trees were set out. I have refused an offer of $2000 an acre or $100,000 for the tract. I would not take $250,000 for the orchard today."

MILL STARTS AGAIN.

Myrtle Point Plant Resumes Operations.

The Myrtle Point Enterprise says: "The Myrtle Point mill started up Monday morning and it is now hoped to have it in constant operation. The advancing price of lumber has made it possible for most of the mills in the county to resume operations, and the increasing demand for lumber products at the advancing prices gives promise of prosperity to the mill men and the mill towns. During the time the Myrtle Point mill has been closed down a number of important improvements have been made and the business of getting out rough and dressed lumber is more convenient than ever before. The mill company now has a good supply of logs on hand and a full force is employed at the mill."
