With the Toast and Tea

GOOD EVENING. We are not made to fret and sigh. And when grief sleeps to wake it; Bright happiness is standing by— This life is what we make it. —Selected.

OTHERWISE ENGAGED. Let empires totter to their fall Or fall with horrid clatter, And my concern for that is small— To me it will not matter. Let freedom shriek, or moan, or yell, To her I would not rally. You see, the honest truth to tell, I'm taken up with Sally.

Let lightnings flash and thunders peal And cyclones swift, unsparring, Their death and desolation deal; It's little I am caring. Should fiery volcanoes spout Destruction through each valley, That I should notice, it I doubt, I'm taken up with Sally.

Let mighty armies battle wage— Whatever you might mention In great events and I'll engage That I'd not pay attention. All primrose paths I dally, And don't feel any interest In anything but Sally. —ANON. There is believed to be only one man named Cain in the state of Georgia, and he killed a man last week. Another case of "giving a dog a bad name?" In common with several million other folks we are wondering how soon Senator Tillman will attempt to use his pitchfork on President Taft.

A leading physician is advocating the killing of rats by feeding them on sponges, but a suggestion of that kind, we fear, will not have much weight. The extra session of congress will begin on March 15, thus giving that body an opportunity to show its regard for St. Patrick by adjourning over the 17th.

A Brooklyn Judge granted thirty-two divorces at one sitting last week. That ought to put him in good standing with Brooklynites yearning to be free. The St. Louis brewer whose wife has just been awarded a divorce and $8,000 a year alimony will now view the growth of the prohibition movement with greater alarm than ever.

"What are the names of that young couple next door?" We won't be able to find out for several weeks. They've just been married, and he calls her Birdie and she calls him Pettie.

From a juvenile court offender comes an explanation of how one may be on earth who has not been born that differs from Topsy's— "Please, sir, I wasn't born. I've got a stepmother."

The laws now forbid the shipment of whisky into dry states as varnish, and another step forward will be taken when they forbid the shipment of diluted varnish into any state as whisky.

Texas now has a law forbidding the use of the telephone for the transmission of profanity. Undoubtedly that will result in fewer reports from "central" to the effect that the "line's busy."

After an unsuccessful search for work a New York man returned home and found that the stork had left three babies at his house. In case of trouble, as with nearly everything else, "them as has git."

In a recent lecture the head of the government weather bureau asserted that a great variety of atmospheric changes in this country is invigorating and accounts for the backbone of the American people. Now will you kvetchergrowln?

The Servant—You got cheated when you bought that chiny vase, mum.

The Mistress—How cheated? The Servant—Why, it's weak. It busted all to smash the first time I dropped it.

An amateur dramatic company in Dallas has produced a farce called "My Mother-in-Law." It is doubtful, though, if the performance succeeded in convincing the men in the audience that a mother-in-law can safely be treated as a joke.

Now that Kansas legislators have banished liquor from the state entirely, there appears to remain to the bibulously inclined Kansan only the privilege of following automobiles and inhaling gasoline fumes till he has acquired that blissful feeling he is accustomed to.

According to the Newark Star, a New York parson has been praying that "the Lord would change the fashion in women's hats." The preacher's intentions were doubtless good, but the average married man would be better pleased if the fashion wouldn't be changed so often.

The Oregon Magazine Hit of 1909

Beginning in the January issue of HUMAN LIFE, the Magazine About People, and running through the twelve months of 1909 will be published a story of his boyhood by Homer Davenport, cartoonist, traveler, humorist, lecturer and man of many stories. The scene of Mr. Davenport's boyhood and young manhood is laid in Oregon and covers many of the people that are well known there today.

Mr. Davenport, for pure and native humor, is the superior of any we have ever met since the days of Artemus Ward. Those who follow Mr. Davenport through this year's issues of HUMAN LIFE will remember 1909 as the year of laughs.

Mr. Davenport's articles will be illustrated by himself, and the pictures he has drawn, representative of his many delightful—that is, delightful to read about—adventures, will constitute not the least part of the fun.

If you want to read this story from the beginning, if you want to see Mr. Davenport's pictures of himself from early boyhood to manhood, his father, his family, and all of his Oregon friends, as only Mr. Davenport can draw them, be sure your name is entered as a subscriber to HUMAN LIFE—the best magazine, for the money, ever published.

Mr. Davenport starts his story at a very early age when his father tells him that they are to move from their farm in Salem, Oregon, to Silverton, Oregon. This is a burg of some three hundred people. Mr. Davenport, in his story, states that he feels that the city is calling them and that his opportunities for studying art in the Latin Quarter of Silverton will be exceptionally good.

The story will carry Mr. Davenport up to his San Francisco days, when he made his first big hit as a cartoonist.

Jap Libby, Engineer, who did the work of four engines and crews.

"Portland had tired me out and the kind bartender of the St. Charles Hotel let me sleep on the billiard table, for which I was later discharged from the Good Templar's Lodge in Silverton"

Silverton Trombone Band. "We always played as we drove out of town and with much effort the driver held the team"

Al Coolidge and Jake McClaine, prominent bankers and business men of Silverton in Davenport's younger days

Send us your subscription to HUMAN LIFE. We can start you with the January 1909 issue, this is the number in which Mr. Davenport's story commences, and we would call your attention to our wonderful offer at the bottom of this advertisement.

HUMAN LIFE is absolutely original. There is no other magazine dealing with people exclusively. It is filled from cover to cover with stories and pictures of people and will keep the entire family posted as to the actions and doings of all the prominent people of the entire world.

It has the greatest writer in this country of vigorous, virile, pungent, forceful, piquant English, as its editor-in-chief, Alfred Henry Lewis, the caustic contributor to the Saturday Evening Post, Cosmopolitan, Success and many other representative periodicals; the author of "The President," "The Boss," "Wolfville," "Andrew Jackson," and other books of story and adventure, every one scintillating with strenuous life. Mr. Lewis's fingers are upon the public pulse; he knows what the public wants, and he gives them running-ever measure. HUMAN LIFE is up-to-date in its fresh, original matter from the best authors and the best artists, and filled to overflowing with human interest.

You will find the great and the almost great, the famous and sometimes infamous, described in HUMAN LIFE, with a knowledge of their little humanities that is engrossing.

Every man and woman in Oregon should read HUMAN LIFE, the Magazine About People, during 1909—do not fail to read the following most liberal subscription offer and act at once. This offer is not good after May 1st, 1909.

Among the well known writers of the day who contribute to HUMAN LIFE are Charles Edward Russell, Vance Thompson, Upton Sinclair, David Graham Phillips, Elbert Hubbard, Brand Whitlock, David Belasco, Clara Morris, Ada Patterson, Laura Jean Libby, Nanon Tobey and many others.

HUMAN LIFE is unique in that its principal aim is to tell truthful, fascinating, live, up-to-date human tales about real human people—rich people—poor people—good people—bad people—people who have accomplished things—people who are trying to accomplish things—people you want to know about—people that everybody wants to know about.

HUMAN LIFE gives you that intimate knowledge of what such people have done—are doing—what they say—how and where they live and lots of first-hand information that you cannot find elsewhere.

HUMAN LIFE is a great big magazine, printed on fine paper with colored covers and well illustrated, a magazine well worth $1.00 a year and we can strongly recommend HUMAN LIFE to our readers.

The COOS BAY TIMES will give a year's subscription to Human Life and a year subscription to the The Times for $5.35. This subscription price to be strictly in advance.
