THREE DEATHS IN MARSHFIELD

Mrs. Hazen, Mrs. Williams and Philip Lee Succumb Here.

Mrs. Robert Hazen died at her home in West Marshfield Saturday afternoon after a lingering illness from tubercular troubles. For some time previous to her death, hope for her recovery had been abandoned. The funeral was held this afternoon from the Marshfield Methodist Episcopal church, the Rev. H. I. Rutledge officiating.

Maude Esther Brown-Hazen was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Brown of West Marshfield and was born in Minnesota almost twenty-nine years ago. She came to Coos Bay with her parents a number of years ago and graduated from the Marshfield high school in the class of 1900. Besides her husband and mother and father, Mrs. Hazen is survived by three sisters, Dora Brown, Mrs. Howard Savage, Mrs. J. M. Hutchens and a brother, J. Lee Brown of the Brown Drug Company.

Her death will be greatly mourned by the many friends which her kindness and sympathy won for her.

PIONEER WOMAN DEAD.

Mrs. Elizabeth Williams Succumbs at General Hospital.

Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, a pioneer resident of Marshfield, died late Saturday at the Marshfield General hospital where she was receiving treatment for a fractured hip, sustained in a fall at the McKeown home the other day. Death was due to old age and a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Williams has been a resident of Coos Bay since the early sixties. For years, her husband, John Williams, was watchman at the old mill. A number of years ago, he was accidentally poisoned. A brother of Mrs. Williams, George Foulkes, mysteriously disappeared from Empire about twenty years ago and no trace of him was ever found. These worried Mrs. Williams greatly and cast a gloom over her latter years.

Mrs. Williams left considerable property. She has no surviving children and it will go to sisters and brothers and nephews and nieces. Among the surviving relatives are John M. Foulkes, Mrs. Carl McCullough, Annie Foulkes, Robert Foulkes, David Foulkes, Robert Foulkes, Mrs. Mary Ott, Mrs. Annie Wilkinson, Mrs. Jane Marette, Elizabeth Hamlet, Susan Mercer and Annie Lindsay, a number of whom are in England.

PHILIP LEE DIES.

Boy Succumbs to Injuries Sustained in Bicycle Accident.

Philip Lee, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lee, who was injured in the bicycle collision in West Marshfield a few weeks ago, died Saturday night as a result of his injuries. In the collision, the boy sustained a fractured skull. For a time, it was hoped that he would recover without the critical trephining operation being resorted to. However, traces of meningitis developed the latter part of last week and the operation was the last resort but it was futile.

Carl Lattin, the boy who collided with young Lee, has fully recovered from his injuries.

GOVERNMENT WINS GREAT RATE CASE IN THE SUPREME COURT

LAND FRAUD MEN SENTENCED

Hendricks and Zachary Imprisoned While Steiwer Gets Off With Fine.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 3.—Motion for a new trial in the case of John H. Hall, ex-United States District Attorney, convicted of conspiracy, was heard by United States Judge Hunt in the Federal Court, and was taken under advisement.

Three of the convicted land fraud defendants who either had been convicted or had pleaded guilty to indictments returned under Heney were sentenced by Judge Hunt. They were: W. W. Steiwer, ex-State Senator and president of the Butte Creek Land, Livestock & Lumber Company; H. H. Hendricks, ex-United States Commissioner, and secretary of the Butte Creek Company; and Clarence B. Zachary, manager of the same company.

On a perjury charge, Hendricks received a sentence of 13 months' imprisonment at McNeill's Island and was fined $500. In the conspiracy case, a fine of $100 was imposed. Hendricks furnished a bond for his appearance on the order of the court, pending the time that he can consult with his counsel, Judge A. S. Bennett, of The Dalles, and perfect plans for an appeal of his case.

Zachary Pays His Fines.
Under an indictment returned on April 8, 1905, Zachary had been convicted August 1, 1906, on a charge of perjury. He pleaded guilty, with Hendricks and Steiwer, to a subsequent indictment, in which he was charged, jointly with Hall, et al., with conspiracy. On the perjury charge, Zachary was sentenced to serve 90 days in the Multnomah county jail and to pay a fine of $100. On the conspiracy charge he received a fine of $50. During the afternoon he paid into the United States court the aggregate of the two fines, $150, and began serving his sentence.

Ex-Senator Steiwer escaped with a fine of $2,500 for the alleged conspiracy with which he was associated with Hall and to which he pleaded guilty and became a witness for the government. He paid the amount of his fine to Circuit Clerk Marsh during the afternoon.

Announcing that he had conferred with Heney, Mr. Becker moved a postponement in pronouncing sentences against George Sorenson, who was convicted with F. P. Mays and Willard N. Jones, on an indictment charging conspiracy, and against D. W. Tarpley, who was convicted with S. A. D. Pater et al., in the celebrated "11-7" case. It is presumed that Sorenson and Tarpley will be used as witnesses for the government in the trial of Binger Hermann, which is scheduled to be taken up next fall.

Mays Indictment Dismissed.
A formal motion also was entered dismissing the conspiracy indictment as to F. P. Mays, who had been indicted together with Hall, Steiwer, et al., on the conspiracy charge. At the trial of the Hall case, Heney promised to have this indictment dismissed as to Mays, in order that the latter might testify for the government in the trial of Hall. However, the indictment was not dismissed as to Mays, and order, on motion of Becker, was made to clear the records and in fulfillment of Heney's agreement with Mays.

At the request of Mr. Becker, the conspiracy indictment, in what is known as the "Wisconsin case," was dismissed as to Herman W. Stone, a resident of Minnesota and one of the defendants.

Hepburn Act Held Constitutional By the United States Supreme Court.

DETAILED DECISION WAS NOT GIVEN OUT

Railroads, Particularly Coal Carrying Lines, Fought the Measure.

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 3.—The United States Supreme Court today reversed and remanded the decision of the United States Circuit Court in the commodities clause cases, but it did not give directions as to the character of decrees which shall be entered. The only directions were to enforce and apply the statute as it is now constructed.

The commodities clause of Hepburn railroad rate law was held by Supreme Court today to be a regulation of commerce which Congress has the right to enact.

Briefly summarized the decision of the Supreme Court holds the law constitutional, but it does not concede the contentions of the government as to its scope. An especial exception was to the ownership of stock in a different corporation which it was held did not constitute such ownership as would prohibit transportation under the terms of the law. It was also held that ownership of the commodity applied only to the time of transportation under the terms of the law. It was also held ownership of the commodity applied only to the time of transportation and if before transporting it, the railroad company has in good faith parted with a commodity, it may carry it. The principal point in the decision was in relation to the railroads holding stock of subordinate companies and to that important point the finding was favorable to the roads. Justice Harlan dissented as to the stock feature but otherwise the decision was unanimous.

COAL ROADS FOUGHT IT.

Rate Case Was Appealed From Philadelphia.

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, May 3.—The decision on the commodities clause of the rate bill which was reversed by the United States Supreme Court, was rendered by the United States Circuit court at Philadelphia on September 19 and at the time upheld the contention of the coal roads. The circuit court decided the clause unconstitutional.
