Precipitationnone
Wind, Northwest; cloudy.

Plant Delayed.—The M. F. Plant had not crossed in at 3 o'clock this afternoon, probably being delayed by the stiff Northwest wind that has been against her

Was Promoted.—Miss Isis Marsh was one of the Eighth Grade pupils who received a promotion certificate. Through an error, her name was omitted from the list furnished The Times Saturday.

Sunday Party.—Misses Laura and Bertha Kruse, May and Kathleen Bennett, Mamie Mahoney, Genevieve Sengstacken and Jessie Chase spent Sunday at the Sigma Chi boat-house on Coos River.

Many Outing Parties.—Coos River, the beach and other picnicking grounds were pretty well crowded all day yesterday. Early in the morning there was an exodus from Marshfield and North Bend. A more delightful day would be hard to find.

Wed Saturday Night.—Andrew L. Lowland and Enga J. Stone were united in marriage in the presence of a number of friends and relatives at the Finnish hall Saturday evening by the Rev. B. F. Bengtson. Following the ceremonies, a banquet was served and dancing indulged in.

Council Tuesday.—The Marshfield city council will meet Tuesday night to take up general business. The J. M. Blake franchise application will probably not be taken up until Wednesday night. A number of street improvement matters and the new city charter will probably come up for discussion tomorrow night.

Saw Auto Races.—O. O. Lund returned today from Portland where he has been on business and taking in the Rose Carnival. Saturday afternoon, he saw the big auto races and saw the hundred-mile races in which there were ten entries, the winner making it in one hour.

Cardwell Coming.—Attorney W. W. Cardwell left for Corvallis, McMinnville, Independence and Marshfield, where he will attend the race meets scheduled at those places. He took "King Kohr" and Counselor, expecting to enter them in a number of the events—Roseburg Review.

Try Port Case.—The validity of the Coos Bay Port Commission law and organization is being tested before Judge Coke at Coquille today. Quarry and Hollister of North Bend, attacking it and Judge Peck defending it. President W. P. Evans and Secretary Henry Sengstacken of the Port Commission, are in attendance.

Nann Smith In.—The Nann Smith arrived in Sunday from Bay Point. Last week, she underwent a thorough overhauling in a dry dock at San Francisco. A H. Powers' new speed boat was brought up on her and will soon be running circles about the other launches on the Bay, having a speed of between twenty-six and thirty miles per hour.

Union Observes Holiday.—Today is a flag day but about the only observance if the event on Coos Bay was made evident when the longshoremen demanded pay and a half from the Alliance for unloading her today. Under their agreement, the longshoremen are to receive time and a half for overtime or holidays. Only one flag, that on the Coos building, was unfurled here today.

Valley Prosperous.—E. K. Jones has returned from a trip through the Willamette Valley, from Eugene to Ashland. He says that business is picking up there. All of the valley towns are making great strides in municipal improvements, especially street building. He says all of Roseburg's streets are torn up preliminary to putting in asphalt. Medford and Ashland and Eugene are making great strides. Grants Pass is a trifle quiet.

Enthusiastic Over Line.—Geo. N. Farrin has returned from a business trip to Roseburg. He says that the residents there are enthusiastic over the prospects for a line to Coos Bay. Tom Sheridan, well-known on Coos Bay, favors an electric line between Roseburg and Marshfield and he told Mr. Farrin that eastern capitalists had promised him they would finance such a project if he thought it was feasible.

Wedding Report Untrue.—E. H. Joehnk returned today from an extended trip through the mid-west. He was astounded by everyone he met offering congratulations and finally someone told him that friends here claimed to have received a telegram from him a short time ago announcing his marriage. Mr. Joehnk says that the telegram was a rank fake and he is out with blood in his eye looking for the man who started the report.

Had Narrow Escape.—Earl Savage and G. T. Coleman thought to try their hand out with the Wolcott automobile Saturday night. They took a little spin down the North Front street elevated roadway and everything went fine until they started to turn around. Earl got his foot on the wrong pedal and the machine started across the walk and the front wheels were dangling over the mud flat before she stopped. Coleman jumped out and Mr. Savage was only bruised a little by the rail. They got her back on and made the trip back, resolving that Earl Savage would have to take a few lessons from "Chet" Wolcott before he would be an expert chauffeur. The machine went through the ordeal with scarcely a scratch and D. O. is more enthusiastic than ever over the merits of his "Olds Mobile."
