ANNUAL OUTPUT OF EDUCATION

IN THIS AGE OF education every youngster has to take a dose of it, large or small, according to his own or his parents' ambition. The wide extent of the educational change which has come over the civilized world during the last thirty years is only dimly appreciated by the average reader, and he has little conception of the numerical strength of the annual army of college graduates.

Table with 2 columns: Country, No. of Students in Higher Educational Institutions. Includes United States (210,334), Germany (61,267), France (39,000,000), England (25,000), Switzerland (6,500), Italy (24,000), Sweden (5,000), Belgium (5,000), Rumania (5,000), Austria-Hun (30,000), Holland (4,000), Spain (12,000), Russia (23,000).

In 1870 in Germany there was one student for every 2,000 of the population, and this proportion had been roughly maintained for some years. Between 1870 and 1907, however, the university students increased so rapidly that by the latter year their proportion to the general population was doubled, there being one of them to every 1,000 people in the country.

It at any time the weather makes you peevish, kill a few flies, thus relieving your feelings and doing some good in this world.

Elbert Hubbard has written an article on "The Love That Lasts." Wonder how often he thought of his first marriage while writing it.

WITH THE TOAST AND TEA

GOOD EVENING.

He who sins, sins against himself. He who is unjust wrongs himself by making himself evil.

"Mary Had a Little Lamb." "Mary had a little lamb!" The poet read the verse, And then he made a few remarks, and each remark was terse.

"Yes, Mary had a little lamb, She also had some chowdered clam, Likewise mock turtle consommé And caviar from Russia way; And then some roe and then some had I'm living now on bread and jam Since Mary had that little lamb." —Selected.

THE DAY'S BEST STORY.

An Arkansas farmer stated to a neighbor that he had a cow that he would like to turn into his pasture for about two weeks, adding that he would pay whatever he thought it would be worth.

At the end of two weeks the farmer went over to get his cow. He asked his neighbor what he thought it was worth. He replied that he thought it ought to be worth the cow.

"No, sir, I won't stand that, but I'll tell you what I will do. If you will keep the cow two weeks longer, you may have her." —Exchange.

Great Britain and Germany ought to settle their differences amicably. Arbitration is better than a war and much less expensive than a lawsuit.

James J. Hill's suggestion that Congress shall take a four year's rest may be good, but like a great many other good things in these days, it is unconstitutional.

With the completion of the tariff bill in sight, and its provisions clearly satisfactory to the business and working interests of the country, the industrial pulse of the whole nation is beating faster every day.

Statistics for the years 1903 to 1907 inclusive show that in those five years more than twenty thousand persons were injured and twelve hundred killed in the United States as the result of Fourth of July celebrations.

"We must take our eggs on trust," says a Chicago editor. There are a good many Coos Bay people who would be glad to get all their groceries the same way.

"What is the most popular invention in the world?" asks a magazine writer. Well that story about sitting up with a sick friend has had a mighty long run and is still in use.

Omaha has a "marrying preacher" who claims a record of 1,800 couples. And yet he goes right on preaching about "peace on earth."

OREGON COAL PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON June 19. — The total production of coal in Oregon in 1908, as shown by statistics collected by E. W. Parker of the United States Geological Survey, was 85,259 short tons, having a spot value of $236,021.

Oregon, like California, is one of the few states in which the coal production in 1908 showed an increase over that of the preceding year, which was 70,981 short tons, the 1908 output being therefore a gain of 15,278 short tons, or 21.52 per cent; the value increased from $166,304 to $236,021, a gain of $69,717 or 41.92 per cent.

Transportation is confined exclusively to Coos Bay and the Pacific Ocean, and the city of San Francisco is the principal market. The large amount of construction work involved in the rebuilding of San Francisco is the principal cause for the increased production of Oregon lignite.

According to the estimates prepared by M. R. Campbell, of the Geological Survey, the coal-bearing formations of Oregon are limited to an area of 230 square miles, the original contents of which are placed by Mr. Campbell at 1,000,000,000 short tons.

Coal was first noted in the Coos Bay region about 50 years ago, Professor J. S. Newberry having reported in 1855 that the coal deposits of Coos Bay had begun to attract attention.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

This is great growing weather; everything is growing, including public sentiment in favor of a greater Coos Bay.
