He started again today for a further investigation. He says he finds that the farmers and other property owners are very much in favor of an electric road. He also says that he finds that it is feasible and that an electric line will assist materially in developing the country. He is now organizing a survey party to get to work on the location at the main line.

Fruit Men Meet.—At a meeting of the Coos Bay Fruit Growers Association here, Mr. Harmon of Myrtle Point, representing the Coquille Valley Association, urged the local organization to stand with that one in securing better prices and raising the standard of the fruit. Dr. E. Mingus of Marshfield, made an excellent talk on the value of the weather service to fruit men and how the growers might further avail themselves of its benefits. It was expected that a buyer representing an eastern commission firm would be here to contract this year's crop but he was delayed and will not reach here for a few days yet.
