

MANY ENJOY SUNDAY TRIPS

Large Number of Launch Parties On the Bay and Inlets Yesterday.

Nearly every launch and pleasure boat on the Bay was in service yesterday and between the excursion to Coquille and the outing parties, the town was almost deserted.

The Alert took a large number down to the lighthouse and the beach. The weather is said to have been at best there, only a light wind blowing and the surf being warm enough for bathing.

The Bonita took a fair crowd up to Enegren's grove on South Coos River where a picnic was enjoyed. The Bonita's engine caused some delay for the party but they had an enjoyable trip, nevertheless.

The Traveller took a large number of excursionists up the river and met with a mishap coming back so that she had to be towed in the last mile or so.

Capt. Tom Hall and Engineer Jim Rolanson ran the Liberty up South Coos River yesterday and showed the navigators and skippers on that stream that although they had not been on a boat together for eighteen years they still knew the game. The occasion was the chartering of the big boat for a Sunday excursion party and as Tom Hall is one of the few men on the Bay holding papers for so large a boat, he was pressed into service and proved his ability. Some doubters said Tom could not turn the craft around in the upper river but he ran her up to the Maze, opposite which a stream flows into the Coos and running the nose of the Liberty in there he circled around as easily as an ashp.

A large picnic party went up and enjoyed the day. The trip was made without mishap except that in avoiding a rock shoal in the upper river at low tide he had to run so close to the wooded bank that the brush broke a few windows but that was all.

The Rita also took a crowd of excursionists down to Charleston Bay

GEESE DROWN A SQUIRREL RAIDER

Clever Denizen of Bronx Park Zoo Sacrifices Life for Love of Rich Diet.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Jack, a big gray squirrel, who, with his mate, Jill, inhabited the island in the duck enclosure in the Bronx Park, sacrificed his life to his love of high living. It was this way:

Jack and Jill long ago discovered that by crossing over the ten foot wide stream of water which separates the island from the mainland, they could reach a trough filled with corn, which was replenished daily for the ducks and geese that inhabit the pond and the island. A wire fence dividing the enclosure used by the mallard ducks from that enjoyed by the Canada geese offered a means of communication between the island and the corn trough, and Jack and Jill long ago became expert in running along the top of this ticklish pathway.

Daily the two squirrels have made pilgrimages to the corn trough, eaten to repletion and then returned to the island. The ducks and geese always swam close to the fence, flapping their wings and uttering hoarse cries of rage, but were never able to catch the nimble squirrels. Little by little, however, Jack lost his native agility as he partook of more and more of the rich food, and finally when he started back from a particularly heavy feast he waddled slowly along the top of the fence instead of hopping nimbly along, as has been his wont.

One of the mallards saw him and realized that he was too heavy and too well fed to move hurriedly. The duck sounded a cry which brought all of its mates, and they attacked Jack vociferously. The squirrel tried to hurry, but at last was pushed off the fence and fell into the pond.

In an instant he was surrounded by big Canada geese. Persons on shore saw him fight desperately for life, but finally he was forced under water. The geese churned the pond into a foam and when they swam majestically away there was nothing to be seen of Jack.

Jill, who ran back and forth on the shore of the island while Jack was fighting for life, retired to a tree after the tragedy and has not been seen since.

A hard blow at politeness on street cars in Massachusetts was struck by the Supreme Court of that state. In a damage suit the court held that if a passenger on a crowded street car gets off momentarily to permit other passengers to alight, and in getting on again is injured by the sudden starting of the car, he can not recover from the street railway company where there is a rule under which passengers ride on the platform at their own risk.

Fishes, especially the larger species, live a very long time. According to Bason, eels live fifty years. Carp have been known to exist at least 150 years, while dolphins, sturgeons and sharks live more than a century and attain huge size. A pike caught at Kaiserslautern, Germany, in 1497, was nineteen feet long and weighed 350 pounds. It bore in its gills a copper ring with an inscription stating that it had been put in the pond of Lauter by order of the Emperor Frederick II—that is, 261 years before.

WHAT IS YOUR TOTEM? BUG, BIRD OR BEAST?

Society's Very Latest Fad Is Derived From Aboriginal Natives.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9.—"What is your totem?" is the latest question in vogue. If you can't answer off hand the inference is you have been dead to the world of fashion for at least two weeks. Nowadays, in lieu of the familiar monogram and the banal crest and the erstwhile much coveted coat of arms, society dames and damsels, taking the cue from the aboriginal natives of the country, go out to the fields and, selecting whatever bug or bird or beast that strikes their fancy, promptly pre-empt it as their totem. The pendulum has swung the other way, and society, with a big S, has elected to become American of the Americans. If, for instance, a butterfly is chosen as the totem, then merrily proceeds to have it embossed on her note paper and flutteringly embroidered on her dainty lace trimmed lingerie. Delicately cut out of silver, the emblem is affixed glitteringly to her handbag and to her card case, while a whirl of wings flashes across the glittering surface of her toilette silver.

Mrs. Perry Belmont's delicately perfumed notes from Paris are surmounted by a great big buzzing bee of gold, its quivering wings poised for flight. Miss Mathilde Townsend's totem looks like a giant mosquito. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh have for their totem a bird built on hieroglyphic lines. The bird, which looks much like a young robin with bill tightly closed and neck considerably longer than usual, perches on the Walsh note paper and also on the Walsh cards of invitation. Sometimes it is in dull blue, sometimes gray on gray paper, again it comes in glowing gold, and again in gleaming silver.

ADVERSE REPORT MADE.

Government Engineer Against Siuslaw Harbor.

The Eugene Register says: "Letters were received by Attorney L. E. Bean and S. B. Eakin from I. B. Cushman at Florence, stating that the government engineer who has been there for some time taking observations and making investigations as to the government work of improving the Siuslaw harbor, had sent in an unfavorable report on the same.

"Mr. Cushman states that he will endeavor to get the Eugene Commercial club to take action at once towards counteracting the effect of such report and wants the gentlemen named to assist in every way possible to get such action as will in a manner nullify the report with Congressman Hawley at once on the same line.

"Of course the engineer has not given out his reasons why he has made the adverse report, and this will not come out until it is sent to the department.

"It is a piece of news that will be received with anything but joy by the people of that section as well as the people of Eugene, but their efforts will not be lessened one whit to make the harbor a good one on that account."
