The Coos Bay Times represents a consolidation of the Daily Coast Mail and The Coos Bay Advertiser. The Coast Mail was the first daily established on Coos Bay and The Coos Bay Times is its immediate successor.

Official Paper of Coos County.

A BONUS TO SUCCESS.

WE RESPECTFULLY suggest consideration of the plan of furnishing forth an annual bonus, say of $5,000, as Coos Bay's bid for progress, and contribution to her own upbuilding, in the best way that shall present itself, year by year.

Such a sum held out each year as the regular sign and signal for new business, new men, and new blood in the community, will be worth 1,000 per cent to us in a few years. Make the sum of our bonus to stand for at least 10 per cent of the investment we invite, and then go for everything in the manufacturing line that can be brought, and wrought, here.

The whole matter could be negotiated through our own banks, one after the other, under the direction of the Chamber of Commerce; and the first success would ensure the others. If we could not get anything in, we could send something out, a lumber laden ship, or a boat load of dairy-products, or some other strong advertising medium of the county and section; anything to compel recognition of Coos Bay as one of the ports and depots of the Pacific world and the Coquille Valley as rich in resources of many kinds.

COOS BAY'S FUTURE.

The enterprising citizens of Coos Bay do not propose to lose any of the advantage already gained in the way of harbor improvement, and the Port Commission at Marshfield has guaranteed $50,000 for the maintenance of the government dredge Oregon, which is now at work in the harbor. There has been a marked improvement in the channel over Coos Bay bar since work was begun, and the results achieved have been of a nature that fully warrants continuation of the efforts of the people.

LET THE PEOPLE KNOW what you want through the medium of THE TIMES WANT AD, and you will obtain what you desire in a very short space of time.

With the Toast and Tea

GOOD EVENING.

Why not rejoice more? Count up your golden mercies; count up your opportunities to do good; count up your "exceeding great and precious promises."

The Cause of the Straggler.

When I've enough to eat and wear Why should I strive for more? I bid you note my neighbor there Just passing by my door.

Today I own a motor car;

What further do I need? My neighbor passed me but this morn In one of greater speed.

My car is now as fast as his,

But I'm not satisfied; His fortune's triple, so they say, While mine's not multiplied, I'll treble mine before I quit.

And thus the source of discontent,

The thought that makes us sore; We can't enjoy the things we have If neighbors but have more.

A Coos Bay man is so contrary

That cheese physics him. It is a sign of old age when the pleasantest thing about a picnic is a rain to prevent it.

There are too many Coos Bay people who look upon their friends solely as a soft place to land. Harriman can now see the mistake he made in devoting all his time to getting rich instead of fat.

If everybody is now satisfied

That bee stings will cure rheumatism, the doctors might try the same remedy for hives. If grandchildren annoy a grandmother, she is careful not to let any one know it. A grandfather isn't so particular.

The Deseret News, which says,

"college bred is half a loaf" should in common fairness admit that not all loafers are college bred. A publisher announces that "The Danger Mark" is to appear in the fall. After that, he hopes, the dollar mark will be more in evidence.

A writer on etiquette enters objection to the use of the word "Hello" at the telephone. Perhaps "Ah, there" would suit him better. That Chicago man who recently ate a Panama hat wasn't economizing very much, when you remember the cost of genuine Panama hats.

A Kansas man stopped in the road to pick up a horse shoe and was run over by an automobile. Now he probably has one pet superstition less. The Wrights are having almost as much trouble with their flying machine as some Coos Bay men have with their motor boats and automobiles.

"Elijah" Sanford insists that the end of the world will come on the morning of September 15. Now, if we can only put off our creditors till the 16th! A Kansas man shot at his wife because "she had too much religion," but he will find the law paying just as little attention to that excuse as to the one that he had too much ammunition.

A Mount Carmel, Ill., woman

begon life as a Bird, and in her teens she married a Martin. After his death she became a Crow, and after his demise she chose a Robin. Robbed of her mate once more, she selected a Buzzard. The end is not yet, but she can no longer be regarded as a chicken.

The manufacturer of beauty lotions naturally regards every woman's face as part of his fortune.

From the way the housefly buzzes around, it has not yet taken that declaration of war very seriously.

A New Orleans man killed a bill collector the other day, and now he will have a lawyer or two running up another big bill for him.

The Nevada man who cut his throat because he was getting too fat probably never thought of cutting out a few meals daily.

This denaturing process appears to be reaching the limit. Now some one in Kentucky claims to have found a kickless mule.

"If the baby is cross, play the piano," says the editor of a mothers' journal. But—but—perhaps the neighbors would prefer to hear the baby.

The marriage of Mr. Gunn and Miss Hunt in Washington the other day was not exactly one of those quiet affairs we occasionally read about.

By the time the doctors get through with him, Mr. Harriman may be rid of that pain in his back, but he will feel an occasional twinge in his leg.

We fear the New Yorker who fell in a dead faint when informed that he was the father of triplets is in the habit of taking his little troubles too seriously.

The Washington man who has succeeded in producing a crowless rooster deserves honorary membership in the society for the suppression of useless noises.

An eastern editor writes at some length to prove that there is danger in fiction. To discover that there is also danger in truth, it is only necessary to call some man a liar.

"Perhaps I shall raise onions and potatoes on my Virginia farm," says Mrs. Howard Gould. Go to it, Katherine! That would be an immense improvement over what you have been raising in New York.

"Don't be afraid of death," says the Lincoln Journal. "It is really the best friend we have on earth." Yes, but what good on earth can that friend do us after we are under it?

During a convulsion a patient in a New York hospital coughed up a gold cuff button and a watch chain. But he will have to cough up more than that before the doctors are through with him.

An exchange comments on the fact that twice as many men as women die suddenly. Nothing surprising about that, for the only thing a normal woman will ever do suddenly is to change her mind.

Senator Tillman says he trembles for the future of the nation. Brace up, senator! It is not always easy to explain that shaky look to suspicious persons who have experienced the morning after feeling.

An eastern exchange brings the news that the authoress of a book entitled, "There is No Death," has married a prominent undertaker. Now there will have to be an occasional death if her husband is to make a living.

A Northern Colorado paper contained the following ad one day last week: "Wanted—A young man to take care of a pair of mules of a Christian disposition." Where in the world did that man get those mules?

A man in Chicago has been heavily fined for taking another man's umbrella. The much-talked-of millennium may not be so far off after all. "The perils of ice water," says a New York physician, "are greater than the perils of alcohol." Now if the perils of buttermilk are greater than the perils of ice water we can see our finish.

FINANCIAL

A DOLLAR SAVED IS A DOLLAR MADE The habit of saving, formed early in life, is the foundation of many a fortune. Thrifty people patronize the savings bank and prosper. Deposits in savings banks have proven more safe and profitable than any other class of investment for people who must build up a fortune from daily savings.
