

SURPRISE FOR LOCAL PASTOR

Lutherans Present Rev. J. Richard Olson and Wife—Young People's Society.

The young people and other members of the congregation of the Marshfield Lutheran church last evening treated the pastor, Rev. J. Richard Olson, and his wife to a decided surprise in the parlors of the church. A meeting had been called to organize a young people's society and following it, the pastor and his wife were invited to the parlors to join the others in refreshments. When they reached there, they were almost dumbfounded to find a large gathering but O. D. Anderson, who had been selected as spokesman for the assembly, quickly set their minds at rest by announcing that they had determined to show their appreciation of the worthy couple's work by a little testimonial—a well filled purse. Rev. Olson responded, thanking them for the unexpected testimonial and assuring them that the work with such helpers as he had found here was a great pleasure.

Refreshments were then served and later a musical program with both vocal and instrumental numbers was rendered.

Form Society.

The organization of the Lutheran Young People's Society was effected by electing the following officers: President—Rev. J. Richard Olson. Vice-president—Miss Rose Myren. Secretary—Miss Hannah Larson. Treasurer—Miss Inez Johnson. Program committee—B. B. Ostlund, Miss Clara Myren and Miss Edna Larson.

The society starts with a charter membership of thirty-five and regular meetings will be held the first Friday evening of each month.

BUSY AT BANDON.

Many Improvements Started in City-By-the-Sea.

BANDON, Ore., Oct. 20.—Building improvements in Bandon are moving more rapidly than has been the case for two or three years. Besides a number of substantial residences, business houses and mills are under construction. Among these are a large business block for the Oddfellows, the lower story of which will be used as store buildings, while the upper floor will be used for lodge purposes. The Bank of Bandon is advertising for bids for the construction of a two-story concrete building, the first floor to be used as a banking house, while the upper story will be made into office rooms. The Acme Planing Mill Company, with Fred Mehl as manager, is building a new planing mill and the Cody Lumber Company is fast reconstructing its big mill which burned in August and expects to have it in operation inside of six months. A number of other buildings of minor importance are also going up, and adding to these the new Timmons building and the new El Dorado building, which have recently been completed, Bandon presents the appearance of a fast growing little city.

Steps are being taken toward the establishment of a Port Commission, which has so long been talked of, and it is probable that the question will be put to a vote of the people in the near future. The Bandon-Port Orford Railroad Company is also becoming active in its work of getting ready to construct its line of road from here down to Port Orford.

LITTLE TALKS ABOUT TOWN

A GRIST OF COOS BAY GOS-SIP GATHERED HERE AND THERE ABOUT THINGS OF PASSING INTEREST.

"The picture postcard habit is entirely too slow for a portion of the American people," remarked a traveling man at The Chandler today, "and from now on the long-suffering will have surcease from the bombardment of impressionist pictures made by a threshing machine, and will no longer be compelled to figure out who has offended by a critical examination of the handwriting in which they are addressed. The talking postcards is on its way from France and will be placed in every city and village in the country. The person wishing to send a talking postal card to a friend enters the booth and talks into a machine that records the words on a specially prepared postcard. When the recipient receives the card 100 or 1,000 miles away, he, or perhaps she, takes the card to the nearest booth and inserts it in a machine which talks the message it contains. The record on the postcard is indestructible, and the exact voice of the sender is heard."

SARCO UNIQUE PAVING.

Kankakee City Council Experiments With Inexpensive Material. Various cities may be interested in the investigation of the Kankakee, Ill., city council, which has been studying the value of "sarco" as street paving.

Sarco is a rubbery substance that is handled like tar. It comes in tin cans about the size of a barrel. There is practically no waste. The stuff is simply cut out of the cans, thrown into kettles and boiled down as is tar.

One consideration that makes sarco preferable to asphalt in a small city is the fact that it is not necessary to erect a special plant. All that is required is a few iron kettles and buckets, the substance being carried in buckets and distributed over the surface of the road.

The system of construction in sarco paving is to build the road up to grade with clean rock and then surface it for a depth of two inches with the sarco mixed with gravel roofing. It is elastic, dustless and noiseless.

It is said that where a whole road is built up, including the cost of the macadam body, the cost is between 60 and 70 cents a square yard. Before the adoption of sarco paving in Chicago a committee was sent all the way to Europe to investigate similar paving on the continent which is evidence that it will stand the wear or it would not be used on Chicago's streets, where the traffic is considerably greater than in a smaller city. Michigan avenue from Twelfth street down town, is not asphalt paved, as is generally supposed, but made of the sarco paving. There it is given the hardest kind of an automobile test, a matter which has to be considered in the construction of streets nowadays. That the paving has stood up under the test is evident to all who have watched it.

Sarco is being used by the city of Chicago in repairing its asphalt paving. On Jackson boulevard asphalt that was constructed 12 years ago is being repaired with the sarco. It is declared that sarco paving will last for 20 years.

GIRL WEARS MALE ATTIRE

Marqueraded As a Man For Years, Working As Teamster.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 21.—After masquerading as a boy for three years, playing boys' games, working in a local livery stable, driving a grocer's team and hustling heavy boxes and express packages, heavy enough for a strong young man, Harry Roberts has confessed to the police "he" is a girl, and that "his" name is Lillian Hoffman, stepdaughter of Gottlieb Meiers, 2644 East Seventy-third street.

Three years ago the girl, then only 17, tired of her home. She ran away, donned boys' clothing and went out into the world to work as a man. She secured work. In the time that has elapsed, the girl has worked in a livery stable cleaning horses, driving grocer's carts, and even toiled as a helper to a carpenter, and delivered ice.

Her identity became known a short time ago when she was arrested while in the employ of D. Martin, a grocer, 8507 Detroit avenue, on a small charge. Sentence was suspended, but the police looked further into Roberts' career. They found no serious acts other than the one, but they discovered that the boy, who up to a few days ago was back working in a livery stable, was a girl. The young woman made a confession, and today her stepfather brought her some clothing—girls' clothes. The parents ascribe the child's strange bent as being due to a love for horses. The girl says she has always wanted to be a boy.

SUNDAY CLOSING RULING.

Judge Hamilton Rules Against Portland Decision. PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 20.—In the circuit court, Judge J. W. Hamilton overruled the demurrer filed by Attorney Dexter Rice in behalf of A. F. Herrington, proprietor of a local resort, charging him with keeping his place of business open on Sunday, contrary to the Sunday closing law. With a decision of the circuit court of Multnomah county to support his contention, Attorney Rice argued that the Sunday closing statute was unconstitutional. Judge Hamilton considered the question properly one for the supreme court to decide. He admitted that there was some doubt in his own mind on the question and stated that in view of this doubt it was the duty of the court to stand by the statute, which was enacted by a legislature as far back as 1854. As the case now stands it will have to go to trial in the local court unless the defendant enters a plea of guilty.
