WANT POWERS AND HENNESSEY

Business Men Urge Them to Remain On City Council—City Caucus Soon.

With the city caucus less than a week away, considerable discussion has arisen in the past twenty-four hours as to possible candidates for mayor and councilmen in Marshfield. A number of business men are insisting that A. H. Powers and Pat Hennessey stand for reelection or rather that one of them be a candidate for mayor and the other for councilman.

A number of business men are understood to have approached them within the last forty-eight hours, and it is possible that they may allow their names to be used.

A. J. Savage has informed parties who have been to see him that he is willing to allow his name to be used if Powers and Hennessey will stand for re-election.

Aside from these, there has been nothing definitely done. The Citizens' League will take the matter up at its regular meeting next Friday night, and may bring some new candidates out. Some of the leading members are understood to be favorable to Messrs. Powers and Hennessey at least.

Three councilmen are to be elected in December.

So far as it is now known, City Recorder Butler will probably not have any opposition for reelection.

THREE BURIED THIS AFTERNOON

Victims of Saturday Night's Tragedy Laid to Rest—Carlson Found.

The body of Otto Carlson, the third victim of Saturday night's tragedy, was found about 5:15 yesterday afternoon by A. M. Peters and Asa Carey who had been among the most persistent of the searchers. Mr. Peters was also one of the party who found the bodies of Axelsson and Bloom, the same boat locating all three bodies which were found within 200 feet of each other. Carlson's body had washed farther up the bay than his companions, being found near the Esther Buhne and beyond the hole into which the bodies of Bloom and Axelsson had washed. Coroner Golden decided that it was not necessary to hold the regular inquest over Carlson owing to the finding of the coroner's jury in the case of Axelsson and Bloom, they having held it accidental drowning. He had a number identify the body as that of Carlson. The funerals of the three was held from the Swedish Lutheran church at 2 o'clock this afternoon, the Rev. J. Richard Olson officiating. They were largely attended.
