NEWS OF COQUILLE.

Briefs of Interest Taken From The Sentinel.

J. McGee, wife and daughter were up from Riverton Monday. Mr. McGee is the lessee of the Rouse coal mine at Riverton. He has struck a good lead, and although the mine is flooded at the present time, it will not be long before he will have plenty of a good grade of coal on the market.

L. R. Woodward of Arago, left on the Breakwater for an extended trip through Southeastern Washington. Mr. Woodward has leased his 160-acre ranch near Arago for a period of ten years and will remove his family to Washington, provided he can find a place there which will suit him. Mr. Woodward has been in the valley ten years. He goes to Washington to find a good college for his children who have progressed as far as possible at the Arago school.

George Peoples has perfected arrangements whereby he will in the near future assume control of Fred B. Haight interests in this county. These interests consist of the O. K. Creamery at this place of which Mr. Peoples has been manager for some years, and a cheese factory at Arago. The time for this change of management is not yet definitely known, but Mr. Peoples stated that the leases would likely be signed in a very short time.

The Frey Oratorical contest will take place at the Masonic hall on the evening of December 17. There will be seven contestants, two from North Bend, two from Myrtle Point, one from Bandon and two from Coquille. Miss Gretchen Sherwood and Miss Iva Howey will represent Coquille. It is necessary for the same town to win the cup three times before it can be kept. Coquille won it last year and has every hope of being able to carry off the honors at this contest.

GOOD EVENING.

There is one word which may serve as a rule of practice for all one's life; that word is "reciprocity." What you do not want done to yourself, do not do to others. —Selected.

The Settling Up Is Certain.

You may take the world as it comes and goes, And you will be sure to find That fate will square the account she owes, Whoever comes out behind; And all things bad that a man has done, By whosoever induced, Return at last to him one by one, As the chickens come home to roost.

You may scrape and toil and pinch and save, While your hoarded wealth expands Till the cold, dark shadow of the grave Is nearing your life's last sands; You will have balance struck some night, And you'll have your hoard reduced. You'll view your life in another light When the chickens come home to roost.

You can stint your soul and starve your heart

With the husks of a barren creed, But God will know if you play a part, Will know in your hour of need; And then, as you wait for death to come,

What hope can there be deduced From a creed alone? You will lie there dumb While the chickens come home to roost.

Sow as you will, there's a time to reap, For the good and the bad as well; And conscience, whether we wake or sleep,

Is either a heaven or hell; And every song will find its place, And every passion loosed Drift back to meet you face to face When the chickens come home to roost.

Whether you're over or under the sod,

The result will be the same; You cannot escape the hand of God, You must bear your sin or shame. No matter what's carved on a marble slab

When the time is all produced, You will find St. Peter was keeping tab, And that chickens come home to roost.

You can't have your own way, but perhaps your own way wouldn't be any better.

The neighbors are mad at a woman about half the time because she doesn't beat her children more.

It is perhaps just as well that a man is a long time learning he won't do any better tomorrow than he did today.

A boy's parents may expect him to become president, but the boy personally prefers to make the National league.

A newspaper man, sooner than any one else, learns what a little thing is takes to upset a lifetime friendship.

A college professor says the Ten Commandments need revision. And even then they couldn't be universal popular on Coos Bay.

The man who won the model husband contest in Chicago allows his wife to carry his pocketbook. The idea is so simple the wonder is that some Coos Bay husband never thought of it.

There was a man in this office Saturday who made the solemn statement that Boston, Mass., has an annual rainfall that exceeds Coos Bay's by five or six inches. He got out before we recovered from our faint; but he cannot escape. We know him and if he proves it, and robs us of our one dear monopoly he must take the consequences whatever they are; no outrage like that may go unpunished.

STORY OF THE DAY.

"John," a Coos Bay girl looking straight into his eyes, "have you the whisky habit?"

"Jane," he answered in hurt tones "of course not. What makes you ask that?"

"Well, I have always noticed, dear, that when you say you are drinking in my beauty and hold my hand you never take more than three fingers."

It has about rained out.

In this day if it's worth a struggle you will have to struggle for it.

The bravest man in the world does not dare say he dislikes flowers.

A small oversight by your neighbor seems like a great crime to you.

It is reported that there is an increased demand for whisky. Probably there is an epidemic of imaginary stomachache sweeping over the country.

Some one has said that it does not rain in Oregon. It rains flowers and green grass and big red apples and prunes—rains verdant and flower bedecked fields and bountiful harvests. So, let it rain, if it is not through.

Now that the football season is entirely over the demand that the game be reformed into something more gentlemanly is becoming quite insistent, particularly in the colleges that were walloped.

While Harriman's great fortune was "made" in New York it was drawn from millions of shippers and consumers all the way from the Atlantic to the Pacific. But New York will keep all of the Harriman inheritance tax of $1,490,000.

It is predicted that the approaching election in Ireland will be the most interesting since 1886. And our Irish friends certainly know how to conduct an exciting contest, whether it be in New York, Boston, Marshfield or on the "ould sod."

This story was told by a preacher: A man died and went to the Bad place, where he took on a pompous and overbearing manner. Finally, the devil approached him and said: "Who are you, anyway? You act as though you owned this place: 'I do own it,' replied the man, 'my wife gave it to me before I died.'"

As Old As Eve.

There is no understanding a woman.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

We could have told you so before you experimented.

Personal.—Frank Parsons was smiling all over yesterday at the prospects of a fall of snow. Probably he wants to go out sleigh-riding in his cigar cutter.

There is nothing in the theory that married men are always willing to flirt; nearly all Coos Bay married men are afraid their wives will hear of it.
