ter registered twenty-two above zero Tuesday night, two degrees colder than the previous night. The high barometer still prevails and local weather forecasters today are prophesying a continuation of the clear, cold weather.

May Prosecute Mills—Deputy Game Warden Cal Wright is investigating the claim that one of the mills on or near the Bay and a mill at Ten Mile are dumping refuse into streams and killing the fish. The state law prohibits this and the offenders are liable to a heavy fine.

Take Up Road—The county commissioners today are considering arrangements for building the balance of the North Front street elevated road connecting up Marshfield and North Bend. A number of citizens of North Bend and Marshfield are in Coquille urging the matter.

House Was Electrified—During the absence of Mrs. H. H. McPherson in San Francisco, one of the faucets in the upper story sprung a leak and flooded the room. The water soaked the insulation on the electric wires and short circuited them and as a result, the water pipes, sink and stove had considerable electricity in them, giving several shocks before the trouble was discovered. Manager Blanchard was called over and quickly remedied the trouble.

STORIES OF THE STREET

Colonel Waterswiger, driver of the water wagon, wishes us to state that the lithia cart will make its regular trips regardless of the weather and frozen pipes. The situation in North Bend is a little more serious and a mass meeting will be held at the town pump at midnight and water served as long as it lasts to all present. First come, first served. Bring your temperance hymnals.

My friend Jack Smith of North Bend, phoned me last night that he noticed by The Times that someone in Marshfield was reported to have felt an earthquake shock the other day that lasted for two minutes. Jack was through the San Francisco disaster and he says the big quake there lasted only 37 seconds but at the time it seemed two years to him. He says if one ever experiences the real thing in earthquakes the measurement of time will acquire a new meaning to them.

The astronomers tell the world that now is the time to watch the stars and observe their movement but few have been star-gazing during the cold crisp nights. The skies are clear and every star is visible to the naked eye.

Venus, Sirius and Mars are at their best. Venus in particular has been attracting a great deal of attention during the last week. As soon as darkness sets in the big planet is seen in the west as large as a search-light on an airship. It drops below the horizon about 11:00 p. m., but before that time it is dimmed by the haze. It is most brilliant at about 9 p. m.

The big bright star in the east in the early part of the night is Sirius, commonly known as the dog star, the largest of the fixed stars.

Mars is almost overhead and is one of the planets that is causing much comment in the scientific world.
