Former President Tells English They Should Either Rule or Leave Egypt.

SAYS EGYPT DOES NOT ASSIST HERSELF.

Denounces National Party and Stirs 1,000 Noted Men in His Audience.

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 31.—Theodore Roosevelt was to-day presented with the freedom of the city of London and accepted the honor in a speech which has created a sensation. The American statesman gave the motherland some bold advice on her duty toward her most troublesome dependency in Africa. "It was," Roosevelt said, "either right or not right for Great Britain to be in Egypt and establish order there. If it was not right she should get out but he hoped she would remain in. Roosevelt eulogized British rule in Uganda and the Sudan. He also declared Great Britain had given Egypt the best government the country had in 2,000 years, but in certain vital points had erred. Timidity and sentimentality might cause more harm than violence and injustice."

"Sentimentality," he added, "is the most broken reed on which righteousness can lean." Roosevelt denounced the Nationalist party. Egypt was neither desirous nor capable of guaranteeing primary justice. It was trying to bring murderous chaos on the land. "Some nations," he said, "would govern Egypt. He hoped and believed the English would decide that duty was theirs." As the whole speech constituted the most forcible expression on foreign topics that distinguished man has made during his European tour and the outspoken views sent a thrill through the 1,000 auditors who occupied Guild Hall, famous in history, where the exercises occurred.

NAME USED AGAINST WISH

C. A. Johnson Made Delegate to Assembly After He Had Refused to Serve.

"You can say that my name was not only put on the list of delegates to the Coos County Republican Assembly without my knowledge and consent but was put on after I had expressly told the parties arranging it that I would not go and that I did not want my name used to further the assembly because I was opposed to it," said C. A. Johnson, the well known Marshfield furniture dealer this morning. "R. O. Graves came around to me a few days before their Republican primary or caucus and asked me to serve as a delegate and I told him that I did not want it, wouldn't have it and didn't want my name used. I notice that they went ahead and used it anyway."

"I am for the direct primary first, last and all the time and am unalterably opposed to any plan to thwart it, put it aside or interfere with its workings. I was for the primary from the start and think it should be retained under all circumstances without any 'guiding hand.' I am opposed to the assembly and want everybody to know I am against it, even if they did 'honor' me by putting my name on the list of delegates." Just how many others of the delegates chosen in the old machine way hold the same view The Times has not been able to ascertain.
