WELCOME, TEDDY!

"So at last you've come back to the U. S. A. You're welcome as all of the flowers in May; And we hope that you really are going to stay To help us run the nation. We love you and trust you the same old way; Long may you live for many a day! If you want to know why, right now we'll say This is the explanation: You are rough and ready Teddy; you are Miss Columbia's "steady," And although a trifle heady, you're the real hot stuff. With your Big Stick always handy, you're a MAN and you're a dandy, And the Presidential candy, and that ain't no bluff."

TOLL OF THE PRIMROSE PATH.

ONLY IN THE STAGE SETTINGS and the actors does that fearful tragedy on the Vancouver trestle, Friday night, differ from thousands of others. The primrose path is a toll road, and its frequenters nearly always pay heavily for the privilege of using it. Some of them pay the price by years of misery and regret over their folly, while others, like the victims of Friday's tragedy, settle the bill with a hurried rush into eternity. There was but little time for reflection when the big touring car that had been hurtling through the storm at express-train speed, shot through the railing on the trestle, and carried Mabel Monto and her companion down to death. In those few last awful seconds, however, there must have flashed through the brain of the wayward girl agonizing regrets over the life that had made possible such an ending.—Oregonian.

The above is part of an editorial in "The Oregonian" on the auto accident that carried two to death from the Vancouver bridge. It is merely another way of voicing the common expression, "He went the pace that kills, and he paid the price."

But who does pay? Is it the man who burns the candle, who wastes his substance, who steepes his system in liquor, who "paints the town," who turns life into a continuous and uproarious "joy ride."

Or is it the wife and children whose lives are tainted by the contact, whose hearts are wrung by anguish, whose appeals fall on unheeding ears; the father and the mother whose keen suffering drives hope from their hearts and shames them before the world? Who does pay the price?

CURED HAY FEVER

AND SUMMER COLD
A. S. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered two or three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business, I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success."—Red Cross Pharmacy, (John Preuss, Prop.)

PROVEN ECZEMA CURE.

Many eczema sufferers have failed so utterly with salves and other "discoveries" that even the assurance of the best physician or druggist cannot induce them to invest another dollar in any remedy. It is to these discouraged sufferers in particular that we now offer, at only 25 cents, a trial bottle of the accepted standard eczema remedy, a simple wash of oil of wintergreen, thymol and glycerine, as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription. Hundreds of cures have convinced us and we know you can prove instantly with the first application that it takes away the itch at once. Red Cross Drug Co.
