FINDS MORE BAD FRUIT

County Inspector Discovers San Jose Scale on Big Shipment of Fruit.

P. M. Hall-Lewis, county fruit inspector, has condemned quite a lot of oranges and lemons which he found to be infested with San Jose scale. They were shipped in here from California and are held at different stores in the city. All of the boxes which had been opened, Mr. Hall-Lewis took charge of and put coal oil on the contents so that the fruit could not be used. There are in stock a large number of unopened boxes of lemons and oranges of the same shipment. These represented quite a large investment on the part of the local dealers. The inspector says he did not want to incur too great a loss upon the dealers so he has asked the State Inspector for permission to ship these unopened boxes back to California.

"The trouble is," says Mr. Hall-Lewis, "that there will be difficulty in getting these oranges back into California. They are not so particular when they are shipping out of their State, but when it comes to sending bad fruit into the State they are close in the inspection. These oranges and lemons were each tied up nicely in paper and there were plenty of pictures and labels on the boxes, but the fruit is badly infested with San Jose scale, and that is a disease which we do not want here, for if it ever gets a footing it will take thousands of dollars to get rid of it."

DISAPPEAR FROM HOME

Much Anxiety Created When Two Children Mysteriously Vanish From Home.

GOLD BEACH, Ore., August 22.—The disappearance of two children from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adams at what is known as Skookum House Prairie, created a good deal of excitement for a time. The children are aged eight and ten years and are orphans, who are being raised by Mr. and Mrs. Adams. The foster parents have given the same care to the children that they would to their own and were much grieved when the little ones disappeared. Both Mr. and Mrs. Adams were a short distance away from the house and when they returned the children were gone and most of their clothing was also gone. Mr. Adams rifle had also been taken.

It was thought that there was something wrong as the children had disappeared in such a mysterious manner, and the sheriff's office was called upon for assistance. The children were finally found in the woods. They had concluded that they would run away and left the house and had wandered about in the woods.

KILL PET COON.

Tom Hall and Fred Neime Have Exciting Hunting Experience.

The hunting spirit in West Marshfield was the cause of the death of Mrs. John Josephson's pet coon. The coon got away from home and came within the range of Tom Hall's hunting dog. Mr. Hall went to look for his dog and found that the dog had a coon treed. Fred Neime came along about that time. Fred has just returned from Curry county where he was hunting deer with some other young men and his keen sportsman spirit has been sharpened. A coon in a tree was too much for him and he got his gun and fired two shots. The coon came down dead and upon examination it was found to be Mrs. Josephson's pet.

COUNCIL HAS HOT DEBATES

another warm discussion in which the ability of City Engineer Sandberg was questioned by Councilmen Coke, Hennessey and others. The matter was brought up by Hugh McLain, who said that he wanted to know definitely as soon as possible whether the council proposed to change it. He said he was right to the point where he wanted to know pretty quick.

Councilman Powers said that he and the other members of the council had looked it over last week and that he was in favor of the proposed change if it could be legally done. He said that practically all the people in that section were in favor of it. R. T. Street, who was present, said that while he had not directly opposed it at that time, he since had talked with City Engineer Sandberg, who had assured him the sewer would work on either of the streets equally as well, but that as City Attorney Goss had stated to change it might invalidate the whole system, he didn't believe it would be good policy to change. He said that he thought Sandberg was the man whose advice should be taken in regard to it, as he was the only high priced expert on the job.

Councilman Coke said that the city engineer's office was too high priced—that it had cost one-third of the city's entire expenses last month. Coke said that he favored the change if it was not for the danger of legal complications. He said that he didn't know about the legal questions involved, but he knew from common sense that the change desired would be a good one.

Councilman Hennessey wanted to know if the city engineer was the whole show in the matter and if the council didn't have something to say about it. Mr. Coke said that apparently all the council had to do was to pay the engineer's bills.

Councilman Savage, who presided in the absence of Mayor Straw, suggested that there was apparently nothing they could do about it and wanted to know if they were ready to adjourn.

"Yes, for three months," interjected Councilman Powers, who was growing irritated by the long discussion.

"Yes, and let Street and Sandberg run the thing," remarked Tom Coke, who added some other remarks that wouldn't look well in print. Street came back with a stinging retort and Coke said if he didn't shut up he would come across and "get him." The rest of the councilmen broke in and stopped this discussion.

Here someone stated that the plans for the sewer had been changed and that it affected some of the contractors who figured on the work. It was claimed that the plans originally provided for the sewer to be put thirty-two feet underground one place and that later this was reduced to about twenty feet. No plans or profile of the sewer are on file with the Recorder, so this could not be looked into.

Street said he opposed changing the sewer from the alley to the street because in the future it would mean tearing up the paving, etc. Councilman Powers said this would not be as expensive as it would be to dig over twenty feet for each connection to the sewer.

Councilman Hennessey wanted to know what was necessary to change things so that the city engineer would not have so much power. He said he was getting tired of the mistakes of the engineer and that he wanted one that they could have confidence in.

Councilman Albrecht said that he thought the council ought to devote more attention to the projects in the early stages and see that they were all right. He said he did not think the engineer's office was too expensive considering the amount of work underway as it was costing only about two per cent. He said he was sorry the engineer was not present so the council could hear his side of the controversy. He said that henceforth the engineer should be required to place plans and profiles on file with the Recorder so that the council would not be altogether in the dark. As to paying more attention to the work, Mr. Hennessey said he didn't have the time and didn't think the rest of the councilmen had.

Hugh McLain said that while he did not want to get mixed in the matter, he thought that too much feeling had been worked up over the matter and that he thought both sides could give and take and adjust the matter amicably. He said that some of the people were threatening to enjoin him from going ahead with the work because the engineer had changed the flush tank on the end of the sewer one block from where it was originally located.

R. T. Street said that according to his understanding, nothing could be done now as the city engineer had informed them that to make the change in the sewer might invalidate the whole assessment. Furthermore, he said that if anything was wrong, it would soon show and that the city engineer would have to bear the burden of it.

M. E. Whitmore said that he wanted to inform the council that if the flush tank was moved as the engineer proposed that they were going to kick vigorously.

Finally it was agreed to let the matter go over until City Attorney Goss returns from Portland Saturday morning, and meanwhile Contractor McLain will have his men work on another section of it.

Other Business.
Contractor Bliven was instructed to postpone planking the big fill on Highland avenue for a few months until it has time to settle.

The usual number of bills were allowed.

Hans Asplund, who had protested to a member of the council that he didn't want to pay for a second permit to fix his sewer within a few months, it not having been put in deep enough to allow for the present grading of the street. Inspector Tribbey assured the council that in cases of this kind he didn't charge for a permit. Mr. Tribbey said he thought the man who dug Asplund's ditch was to blame and not the city engineer.

It was stated that the government dredge will be here in 35 or 40 days to fill North Front street for paving. The property owners want to have part of their property filled at the same time, the dredge cutting down the "hog's-back" near the cold storage plant for it. North Front street will probably be closed meanwhile a unsafe.

is often blamed when the real trouble lies in the brand of flour used in making the bread, biscuits and pastry. We have found that our Snow Drift Flour, made from selected North-western grown Blue Stem Wheat meets with the approval of most housewives. Of course, our process of milling has a lot to do with it. Snow Drift isn't a bleached flour—that's an advantage. It proves in the baking.
