and Mr. Hawley given an opportunity to ascertain exactly what Coos Bay desires so that when he goes back to Congress he will be better able to present Coos Bay's claims for recognition.

Hear Contests.—Yesterday the homestead contest of Tommy Smith vs. the Northern Pacific involving land in the Fall Creek country was heard before United States Land Commissioner Selby. To-day, the contest of Alton Sengstacken vs. the Northern Pacific, involving a claim in the same vicinity, is being heard before Mr. Selby. The claimants are trying to get the land as homesteads, while the railroad company maintains it has them under timber lieu land selections. F. E. Alley of Roseburg is representing the railroad company at the hearings.

Daughter Arrives.—Conductor H. Wright is wearing a smile that makes the locomotive headlight look like a tallow candle. It's all because of a telegram received from Oregon City, where Mrs. Wright has been visiting at the home of her parents, telling of the arrival of a beautiful baby daughter and that mother and child are doing well. He is happy as a railway president and expects to leave in a week or so to see his new girl.

Brother Sick.—Mrs. Harvey Smith, who was called to Sisson, California, by the serious illness of her brother, Peter Flood, writes to Mr. Smith that he is now on the road to recovery. The Sisson Headlight publishes the following concerning Mr. Flood's illness: "Peter Flood, who has been hovering between life and death for many weeks, is now on a fair road to recovery. His case has been one that has taxed the skill and attention of both physician and nurse. For nearly nine weeks he has been in the grip of typhoid fever, complicated by brain fever, pneumonia of both lungs and abscess of the lungs. But at the present writing it seems that scientific nursing and medical attention has won out."
